$200,000,000 LOAN WITH NO MORATORIUM, EXPERTS' SUGGESTION FOR GERMANY

DECLARES HE CAN SAVE TAXPAYERS ABOUT $40,000 ON PAVING JOB

Unsuccessful Bidder on City Street Work Complains of What He Calls an Unreasonable Specification as to Material to Be Used.

SAYS THE HITCH LIES IN "WILLITE"

He Asserts That This Is Only Ordinary Asphalt With an Admixture of Vitriol, But Is Controlled Through Patent.

Property owners on Botanical, Castleman, Cleveland and Flad avenues, from Grand boulevard to Tower Grove avenue, and on Loughborough, from Gravois avenue to Moellenhoff street, can save themselves $35,000 to $40,000 by looking into bids recently opened for the construction of those streets.

This statement was made yesterday by Shelby L. Heman, president of the Trinidad Asphalt Manufacturing Co., an unsuccessful bidder on the work, who said he would post a $40,000 bond guaranteeing to construct those streets at $35,000 to $40,000 less than the successful bidder if the Board of Public Service will withdraw "an unreasonable specification."

This specification, he explained, is a requirement to use a patented asphalt manufacturing process that prevents free bidding and enables those who control the patented process to exact exorbitant prices.

Where Alleged Hitch Lies.

This, a newly patented process, known as "Willite," is only ordinary asphalt with an admixture of blue vitriol, said Heman, and does not appreciably add to the durability of a good asphalt street. But the process is controlled by the Missouri Willite Co., which fixes the price to contractors, and therein lies the hitch that prevents free bidding.

Since Heman has protested against the new specification, E. R. Kinsey, president of the Board of Public Service, has stated that he also suspects a combine or secret understanding among certain contractors to gouge the taxpayer, and announced yesterday that he would make an investigation with a view to bringing down the present high level of street construction prices.

"Willite," which is ordinary or straight asphalt containing a small quantity of copper sulphate to harden it, is specified by the city for use in more than one-fourth of the street construction work on the 1924 program. Of a total of 562,646 square yards of construction for this year, the area specified for "Willite" is 154,405 square yards and an added 11,915 square yards of Willite or bitulithic." Bitulithic is also a patented process material that has been in use here for 20 years.

Only Two Bids on Job.

Bids were received Tuesday for constructing Botanical, Castleman, Cleveland, Flad and Loughborough avenues wth "Willite," and the Central Paving and Construction Co. was low bidder with $2.39 a square yard for the "Willite." There was one other bidder, Heman's company, which was forced to bid high, according to Heman, because of the cost of "Willite" to the contractor.

First-class asphalt paving, such as is on Locust and other good streets, can be laid on those jobs for $1.75 to $1.85 a square yard, said Heman, and "Willite" ought to be laid at $1.90 a square yard. There is nothing so expensive in "Willite," Heman added, that would justify a price of $2.39 a square yard.

The Missouri Willite Co., the plant of which is at 6161 Maple avenue, demands $10.75 cents a ton at the plant for binder course and $15.50 for top mixture. These prices are exorbitant, said Heman, and his company can manufacture the new process at a much lower figure.

"But we cannot make a reasonable bid if we have to pay those prices," said Heman, "and the city, by accepting the specification for that patented process, has placed the taxpayer at the mercy of high prices without any real benefit to the people. There is no better paving than straight asphalt properly laid."

President Kinsey said it has been

FOUR MEN KILLED BY SHOTS FROM KLANSMEN'S TRAIN

13 Other Townspeople Shot at Lilly, Pa., as "Special" Departs After Demonstration.

PARTY OF ABOUT 500 FROM JOHNSTOWN

Policemen Meet Them on Return to That City, Arrest About 25 of Them and Seize 50 Revolvers.

By the Associated Press.

LILLY, Pa., April 5.—Four men were killed and 13 were injured when shots were fired into a crowd of townspeople just before 500 members of the Ku Klux Klan boarded a special train for Johnstown after holding ceremonies in a field near the town and a demonstration in the stareets tonight. The dead, all residents of this town are: Philip Conrad, 25 years old, Frank Measko, 22; Floyd Paul, 28, and an unidentified man. The injured, some of whom are expected to die, were taken to hospitals in Johnstown and Altoona.

Some residents of the town are said to have played a stream of water from the town fire hose upon the visitors as they were marching back to the station.

No arrests were made, although there were state police in the town to prevent disorders. The shooting and departure of the train occurred so quickly they did not have time to act.

25 Klansmen Arrested, Revolvers Confiscated by Police.

By the Associated Press.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., April 5.—When the special train bearing members of the Ku Klux Klan back from Lilly, Pa., where four men were killed and 13 injured in a shooting just before the Klansmen entrained after holding a demonstration in that town, arrived in Johnstown shortly before midnight, it was met by more than 50 police officers, headed by Sheriff Logan N. Kellar. Twenty-five klansmen were arrested and about 50 revolvers were confiscated.

New Liner Deutschland Arrives.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The new German passenger liner Deutschland of the Hamburg-American line arrived tonight on her maiden trip from Hamburg, too late to proceed to her pier. The vessel, a sister ship of the Albert Ballin, left Hamburg March 27. The Deutschland is more than 600 feet long, with a gross tonnage of 22,000, and has passenger accommodation for 250 first, 350 second and 1000 third class passengers.

'PICKING UP' AUTOS WAS DIVERSION OF BARNETT AND PAL

Youth Slain as Robber and Chum, Edward Dillon, Took Car Last November and Abandoned It.

300 AT FUNERAL OF HIGH-SCHOOL BOY

Fraternity "Brothers" Act As Pallbearers — Audience Composed Largely of School Acquaintances.

"Picking up" other people's automobiles was a familiar accomplishment of George Wesley Barnett and his chum and high school fraternity brother, Edward G. Dillon.

They deemed themselves lucky to escape prosecution for these thefts—but had they found it less easy to "get away with" the offense of stealing automobiles, Barnett might not now be dead by the bullet of a detective whom he tried to hold up, and Dillon might not be held on suspicion of being Barnett's companion in Wednesday night's fatal circuit of highway robberies.

Police suspicion of young Dillon, in the robbery cases, is still strong, though it has no identification or other direct evidence as a basis. It is based chiefly on this very aptness of Dillon's in stealing automobiles, in just the way in which Philip de C. Ball's Marmon coupe was stolen by two young men, Barnett and one other, Wednesday night, for use in the series of robberies.

An Earlier Theft.

The cars "picked up' by Barnett and by Dillon—the police have no record of their operating together in such matters—were not taken to some convenient market and sold. They were simply driven about until the young men got through with them, and then were abandoned. As has been told, the police have in the past arrested both young men for these offenses, but the car owners have refused to prosecute them. A case not previously told, as to Dillon, came to notice yesterday.

Marion Niedringhaus' Stutz car was stolen the night of Nov. 9 last, as it stood in front of a residence in Portland place. It was found four days later, abandoned on a roadside near Foristell, St. Charles County, 50 miles from St. Louis. The two young men who left it there had walked into the town of Wentzville, had borrowed $5 from a butcher (who was repaid later), and had used the long distance telephone to get further help from relatives in St. Louis. Tracing of the telephone calls led to the arrest of Dillon, then 17 years old, and living with his mother at 726 Heman avenue, University City, and Stewart Walker of 6930 Columbia avenue, University City. They admitted that they took the car and drove it to Columbia, Mo., to attend a football game. The breakdown was on the return trip.

George W. Niedringhaus of 10 Westmoreland place, speaking in his son's absence last night of the matter, said:

"My son Marion had no acquaintance with either of the young men who were arrested. The taking of the car was theft pure and simple, and the damage and expense involved for my son came to more than $300. As he told me, he was dissuaded from prosecuting by the plea of young Dillon's mother."

Seen Getting Into Auto.

University City policemen, two weeks ago, saw Dillon and another young man get into an automobile not belonging to either, at Washington and Adelaide avenues. They called to the two, and Dillon got out, explaining that he got into the car to see if it was equipped with a cigar lighter, as he had wished to light a cigarette. He was not arrested. A month ago, he was one of six youths arrested in a dice game at 6668 Delmar boulevard, but was not prosecuted.

The police have made a special inquiry into the circumstances of the theft of Ball's car Wednesday night. The chauffeur, who has worked for Ball 8 years, said he was summoned by Ball to the Chase, and that he parked the car in front of the Chase garage, and went inside the garage for a few minutes, during which time the car disappeared. He said at first that he left the car locked, but said later that he did not lock the ignition, but only locked the coupe door, a precaution rendered useless by his failure to close the window.

A requirement that unattended machines be left locked is part of the city's automobile ordinances, but the police have not prosecuted owners and drivers for neglecting

INITIAL SUCCESS IN REED MOVE TO RULE CONVENTION

Farris Announces He Will Name Fred L. English, Underwood Supporter, as Temporary Chairman.

WILL DELIVER KEYNOTE SPEECH

Reed Following Apparently Is Planning to Back Goltra for the National Committeemanship.

BY CURTIS A. BETTS.

A decision yesterday by Senator Frank A Farris, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, to name Fred L. English of St. Louis temporary chairman of the Democratis State Convention in Springfield, April 15, is an initial success in the campaign of the Reed forces in Missouri to control the convention through a consolidation of the Reed and anti-McAdoo elements with the Underwood following.

Senator Farris last night confirmed the fact that he has decided to name English and added that Frank Armstrong, of Cass County, candidate for the nomination for Secretary of State, would be named temporary secretary, and George Bryant of Saline County temporary sergeant-at-arms.

English is an Underwood man, and his selection undoubtedly will be heralded as a great victory for the anti-McAdoo following, but actually it is not a matter of great import who is temporary chairman. A temporary chairman has very little to do except deliver a "keynote" speech, which is forgotten, usually, about as soon as it is delivered.

Farris Counted for McAdoo.

Just how the selection of English was brought about has not been explained. Farris is counted safely in the McAdoo camp, at least until there is a development in the convention to indicate what the actual McAdoo strength is. He is counted certainly against Reed and any political combination which would operate to Reed's advantage.

There is a rather definite suggestion that Morton Jourdan, with whom English is associated in the practice of law, and who is for Underwood and rather violently anti-McAdoo, had a direct hand in the selection.

However, it was accomplished, it is difficult to see a direct advantage to the Underwood forces. A temporary chairman in his "keynote" speech cannot commit the convention, nor can he influence a landslide of delegates, his speech being delivered many hours in advance of convention action on anything. He has no voice in the seating of delegates, or even in the selection of committees. The temporary roll is made up by the State Committee and the members of the convention committees are chosen by the district delegations in caucuses.

It may be that in choosing an Underwood man for temporary chairman the McAdoo forces have headed off a fight over the position of permanent chairman, who will preside during any real fights that may develop.

Chairmanship Possibilities.

It was said yesterday that no decision had been reached regarding a permanent chairman. Those being given the greater consideration by the anti-Reed forces, who presumably control the State Committee, are Farris, who probably will not be selected because of his position as State chairman; Allen McReynolds of Carthage, a lawyer, and an active anti-Reed leader of Southwest Missouri; Arthur V. Lashly, a lawyer residing in Webster Groves, but practicing in St. Louis, and R. E. Culver of St. Joseph, a lawyer.

Farris, in calling the convention to order, will of course deliver a speech which is apt to prove more of a "keynote" address than that of the temporary chairman.

Interested in advance of the convention continues to center about the selection of national committeeman and the delegates-at-large to the national convention, who will be chosen by the State convention.

During the past few days there has gradually unfolded the plan of the Reed following on the national committeeship, a plan which has for its purpose the defeat of Breckinridge Long at any cost. This purpose apparently has narrowed the fight to Long and Edward F. Goltra, present national committeeman. Neither Reed nor his St.

APARTMENT WILL REPLACE $7,000,000 ASTOR MANSION

Vincent Astor Files Plan for Building on Site of Marble Structure in New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The $7,000,000 mansion of the late John Jacob Astor on Fifth avenue, scene of some of the most elaborate and historic social gatherings in New York, will be razed to make way for a modern apartment building, it was learned today.

The fate of the magnificent white marble residence, which was built in 1890, was made known through the filing of plans for the new apartment, to cost $1,800,000, by an architect for Vincent Astor, son of Colonel Astor, and present owner of the mansion.

The wealth of furnishings and art treasures, which include a number of masterpieces, adorning the stately French renaissance structure, are not included in its valuation. These will be removed to one of Mr. Astor's suburban homes, it was said.

It was understood the ground covered by the mansion of New York society was appraised so highly that taxes made the cost of maintaining one-family houses excessive and that many other houses in "millionaires' row" would be supplanted by expensive apartment buildings. Some of the Astor neighbors already have taken to nearby apartments.

The site of the Astor home was appraised for taxes at $2,000,000.

On either side of the Astor holdings such well-known names still appear as Hamilton Fish, William Guggenheim, Frederick Lewisohn, Elbert H. Gary, Thomas F. Ryan and Harry Payne Whitney.

BOY HIT BY AN AUTO DIES OF FRACTURE OF SKULL

Warren Wagoner, 7, of Webster Groves Run Over When Playing Near Home.

Warren Wagoner, 7 years old, of 68 North Gore avenue, Webster Groves, died at St. Luke's Hospital, at 6:45 p. m. yesterday, of a fracture of the skull suffered about two hours earlier when he was run over by a Ford coupe driven by Clifton Clifford, 18, of North and South and Clayton roads, St. Louis County.

The boy was playing near his home with other children when Clifford, driving North down a steep hill on Gore avenue at that point, struck him as he ran from behind a parked automobile, the police were told. Another machine, coming up the hill, narrowly missed the boy.

Clifford took the boy to the Webster Groves police station, from where he was rushed to a doctor's office and then to the hospital. Clifford is being held pending the inquest.

HOW OBREGON CAUGHT A REBEL

"Remembered He Had Dynamited Trains," Says President.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, April 5.—President Obregon admitted today that it was true he recently had captured Col. Anaya, a rebel leader, single-handed. He was proceeding alone in an automobile from the national palace to the Chapultepec residence at the time.

One of the many versions of the encounter is that President Obregon saw Anaya standing on the corner of one of the principal business streets, and, stopping the car, ordered him to enter, meanwhile drawing his pistol. Anaya was about to run, but changed his mind upon seeing the revolver and the President took him to a military prison. "I knew it was risky," the President said, "but when I saw Anaya and remembered that he had dynamited passenger trains, I could not restrain myself."

The President described the revolution as "dead" and said that executive power would be transferred without molestation next December to the candidate who was victorious in the July presidential elections.

WITNESS TO TELL OF A LARGE SUM HAMON HANDLED AT CONVENTION

More Oklahomans Have Been Summoned in Connection With Theory There Was Deal at Chicago Involving the Naval Oil Lands.

INQUIRY IN ANOTHER CALIFORNIA RESERVE

Walsh Asks for Documents on Buena Vista Tract, Where Irregularities Are Alleged by Senator La Follette to Have Occurred

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April, 5.—Further testimony concerning the part played by the late Jake Hamon at the Republican National Convention in 1920 will be introduced by Senator Walsh in the oil investigation next week. When Walsh stated, a few days ago, that he sought evidence concerning the theory that the naval reserves were leased as the result of a conspiracy entered into at the convention, he was not indulging in mere legal phraseology. He expects to prove it, and for that purpose has summoned a number of additional witnesses from Oklahoma.

Walsh's theory, as he explained it to the writer today, is that Hamon went to the convention as the representative of great oil interests, which desired to get possession of the naval reserves. He found there a large stock of delegates controlled by a few men. By the use of large sums of money, Walsh believes, Hamon succeeded in getting control of these delegates, whose support was then offered to the candidate who would, if elected, appoint a Secretary of the Interior who would be "complacent" toward proposals to lease the reserves.

It is Walsh's hypothesis, that the plan was for Hamon to be Secretary of the Interior, and for Albert B. Fall to be Secretary of State. The killing of Hamon by Clara Smith Hamon shortly after the election altered the plan, and Fall became Secretary of the Interior, with the results known.

Draft for Enormous Sum.

One of the witnesses who will testify this week is expected to tell that Hamon cashed a draft for an enormous sum of money while the convention was in progress, under circumstances indicating that he had immediate use for large amounts of cash. Al Jennings and Robert Wilson already have testified that Hamon told them he "put Harding over," and that he paid $25,000 to Harry Daugherty. That fits exactly into Walsh's conception of what happened.

A circumstance which also enters strongly into his conclusions is the undisputed evidence that, within 30 days after the Harding administration took office, Secretary of the Navy Denby told Admiral Griffin, the officer in charge of the reserves, that they were to be transferred to the custody of the Interior Department. Denby did not ask the Admiral's advice, and the evidence is that he had not even consulted his general board or bureau chief about it. He simply announced, almost immediately after taking office, that the transfer would be made.

Walsh finds nothing in the record which explains this precipitate decision. Secretary Denby did testify that somebody had reported to him that the reserves were being drained, and therefore needed the attention which the Interior De-

POPE TO LEAVE VATICAN TO BLESS K. OF C. WORK FOR ITALIAN CHILDREN

(Copyright, 1924.)

ROME, April 5.

POPE PIUS XI will leave the Vatican on Wednesday, the Post-Dispatch is informed on good authority.

The United States will be intimately concerned with this historic event. His Holiness intends to bless the Knights of Columbus work for Italian children in the Cratorium of St. Peter's, just outside of Papal territory, to the right of the famous Porto Bronzo in the Piazza San Pietro.

According to the present arrangement, His Holiness may later visit the actual welfare establishment. When Edward Herne of the Knights of Columbus expressed his intention to build a throne at the welfare establishment, His Holiness said "No, don't do that; it will attract attention."

This dramatic move is in line with political and clerical developments in Italy. Premier Mussolini appreciates to the full that if he succeeds in winning the Pope's approbation he is sure of an unlimited period in office. Time and time again he has informed His Holiness that all Italy is free to him. It now looks as though the Pontiff has decided to take a step which may lead him much further afield than Italy.

MAETERLINCK CHALLENGED BY LAWYER IN MILAN

Latter Objected to Article on Palermo Which Poet Wrote After Sicilian Trip.

By the Associated Press.

MILAN, Italy, April 5.—A challenge sent by Sebastiani Rondi, a Sicilian lawyer domiciled in this city, to Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian poet and playwright, because of an alleged defamatory article recently published concerning the poet's Sicilian trip, has aroused lively speculation here as to whether the affair will be settled by 10 rounds with the gloves or by a duel with the sword or pistol. Maeterlinck's prowess with the gloves is well known.

In his challenge to the poet, Signor Rondi is quoted as saying: "I read with indignation and disgust your infamous article on your recent trip to Sicily, published in a Belgian review and then reproduced in the Secolo in Milan on April 1. As a citizen of glorious Palermo, famed for its courtesy, I notify you herewith that I consider your ears boxed. I hold myself at your disposal."

Friends of Rondi have jokingly warned him to beware of April 1 publications.

THELMA CONVERSE IN FILMS

Daughter of Former American Consul Finishes First Scenes.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Thelma Morgan Converse, daughter of Henry Hays Morgan, former American Consul-General at Brussels, and a twin sister of Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, has finished the first scenes in which she appears as a motion picture actress. She did a Cuban dance for a film soon to be released.

Several months ago she said she intended making a career for herself in the films, because society life offered nothing for an ambitious woman.

MOLASSES FED TO THE FISHES

Stream Miles in Length in Wake of Steamer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NORFOLK, Va., April 5.—A stream of molasses miles in length was left in the wake of the American steamer Tancarville when she passed out to sea today bound for Caibarien, Cuba. After discharging a large part of her cargo of bulk molasses at a local pier, the vessel's pumps became clogged with the setting. Eighteen thousand gallons of this residue is being fed to the fishes.

POST-DISPATCH GIVES SYNOPSIS OF PLAN ABOUT TO BE REPORTED

Dawes Committee Will Give Its Findings Tomorrow or Tuesday—Americans to Furnish Money.

REGULAR REPARATION PAYMENTS BY 1929

Gold Bank of Issue With Foreigners on Board Provided — Commissioner-Generalship Created.

By ARNO DOSCH FLEUROT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, April 5.—The report of Gen. Dawes' committee of experts was whipped into final shape tonight and will be handed to the reparations commission Monday or Tuesday morning, being released for publication at the same time.

The committee wishes the widest publicity possible for the conclusions, which show on the face of the report and the technical analysis Germany's ability to pay reparations and outline a plan by which it can be done.

The report contains more than 100 pages, and presents full details of the formation of a new German bank of issue and of a method of mortgaging German railroads and industry, by means of which reparations are to be paid. The report will admit that is necessary, in the interest of a workable plan, to take political considerations into account; but the plan proposed remains a technical and not a political document.

Essentials of the Plan.

The Post-Dispatch and New York World are able to give essentials of the committee's plan in its final form.

Figures previously cabled have been modified in some cases, but the present schedule may be considered final.

Germany will continue paying deliveries in kind and treaty charges without moratorium, but, as she can't do so now out of her own resources, a loan of $200,000,000 is planned. Most of this loan, it is expected, will come from America. The money will not go to Germany to be spent as she may please, but to pay treaty charges, the armies of occupation, and deliveries between now and the year 1929, which, it is expected, will be a normal year. Then the full reparations installment must be met—2,500,000,000 gold marks (about $625,000,000) annually, with a possible accretion according to the index of prosperity scientifically figured. The total is to be raised by 1,250,000,000 gold marks in taxation, 660,000,000 income from railroad debentures, 290,000,000 transport tax, and 300,000,000 debentures on industry.

To supervise the imposition of the necessary taxation and the regulation of inner financial reforms, the plan provides for the appointment of a commissioner general, who will be the representative of the reparation commission. Under him there will be four chief commissioners with numerous assistants. If Germany agrees to the plan, these commissioners will be in a position to supervise her acts in respect to the agreement, but they will not be able to interfere with the domestic economy of Germany beyond certain matters over which they are given power. The four chief commissioners will be, First, in the Bank of Issue; sec-

GERARD CHARGES HUGHES SOLD U. S. RIGHTS IN TURKEY

Declares He Also Surrendered Cause of Armenia in Return for Chester Oil Concession.

PREDICTS DOWNFALL OF KEMAL REGIME

Says America Stands to Gain Nothing in Lausanne Treaty and Should Delay Recognition.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Calling upon the Senate to reject the Lausanne treaty, James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, declared before the Foreign Policy Association today that the State Department had sold the cause of Armenia and American rights in Turkey for the Chester oil concession.

"I will put to Secretary Hughes two pertinent questions," Gerard said.

"Why did he take so active and vigorous a part in behalf of the Chester oil concession, even at the risk of forcing resumption of hostilities and why does he now deny that he had anything to do with it?

"Why did he request General Goethals to accept the presidency of the Chester Company, and in what capacity did he direct the reorganization of that company?

"Secretary Hughes made a hurried and inglorious retreat from the position which he took in December, 1922. He accepted the Turkish views on the capitulations and upon the Armenian case. In other wards, in consideration of the Chester concession, he surrendered to the Turks the rights which he claimed for American nationals and for Armenia before the granting of that concession Obviously, he went to Lausanne fully prepared to make any and all sacrifice to cinch this oil concession, and he betrayed Christian Armenia and his own country to attain his purpose."

Says Kemal Is Tottering.

Referring to the Kemalist Government, Gerard said:

"The Kemalist regime is on its last legs. Factional armed conflict, widespread banditry, and hopeless economic chaos seriously threaten Kemal's regime. The establishment of a 'Republic' and abolition of the caliphate in a country of illiterate, primitive, and fanatical peasants are eloquent proofs of the instability of Kemal's Government. Kemal is not removing, as is alleged by some superficial observers, hindrances from the path of progress, but he is, in reality, resorting to desperate measures to get rid of his opponents."

America stands to gain nothing by resuming relations with Turkey in this state, Gerard asserted. "The downfall of Kemal is inevitable and imminent. By now surrendering our rights to him we shall find it difficult to reassert them again in any regime which may overthrow and succeed him. We can well afford to wait."

Recognition Opposed.

Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, of Harvard, in a letter sent to the meeting, said the fundamental trouble with the Lausanne Treaty was that it assumed that "the so-called Republic of Turkey is a modern civilized nation."

"There is no assurance that the Turks who authorized the signature of the treaty will carry out any provision that hereafter may seem inconvenient," Hart's letter continued. "The Turks have been making the same kind of promises of behavior and protection to the foreigner and recognition of the rights of minorities for more than a hundred years, and they have never observed one of those pledges."

Albert W. Staub, American director of the Near East Colleges, favored the ratification of the treaty and maintained that the Turks had made sufficient progress during recent years to justify the confidence of the United States.

200 Million Dollar Loan, No Moratorium, Suggestion

ond, in the railroad administration to oversee debentures; third, in that part of the Ministry of Finance which will control debentures on industry; fourth, in the budget. The last will have many assistants.

Gold Bank of Issue.

The basis of the plan is the gold bank, which will be a bank of issue. It will be capitalized at 400,000,000 gold marks. Shares for 100,000,000 will go to the present Reichbank for its share. The remaining 300,000,000 will be placed on the market as a profitable investment. The capital will be entirely in gold or in foreign money equivalents. Dr. Schacht will be the first president. The gold will be kept in Germany if the bank directorate desires which is a consolation to Germany, considering the amount of supervision that will be inevitable. The bank in Berlin will also have a managing board.

The general board which will decide the bank's policy will consist of 14 men, of whom seven will be Germans and the other seven French, Italian, Belgian, American, Dutch and Swiss. If two-thirds of this general board decides to remove the gold and the note presses from Germany, it can be done.

The bank's chief business will be two-fold. First, it will issue bank notes for Germany, and in this it will have a monopoly. Second, it will serve as a repository for reparations collections.

The organization outlined for it is like that of an American commercial bank permitted to do an ordinary commercial business and act also as a clearing house for other banks. There will be control on lending to the Government to prevent another inflation. The Government specifically will not be permitted to overdraw. It will be a gold bank unless a majority of all but one member of the board decide this is not feasible—that one presumably the American, as it is known that the Americans have insisted on a gold bank only.

Half of the bank's profits will go to the Government for the privilege of the currency monopoly and the other half to the subscribers to the 300,000,000 gold marks. If the plan works, it ought to bring these investors good returns.

The bank will be obliged to keep gold for 33 per cent of outstanding bank notes, with progressive penalties for a reduced reserve. It must redeem outstanding German marks at one to a trillion,the present stabilized German rate. It also will absorb the renten marks. This provision is calculated to give the renten marks a new lease on life, until a new plan is adopted by the German Reichstag.

In the bank transfer committee there will be six members, all foreigners, including one American, whose business it will be to handle the reparations account, and to handle money and all else turned over by Germany under the supervision of the commissioners already mentioned.

Powerful Committee.

This transfer committee will be a powerful body. It will decide when it is advisable to buy foreign currencies and to make payments to Germany's reparation creditors without injuring the stability of German money. They will be empowered to invest moneys turned over to them in German bonds and other properties or to buy German goods to be used in payment. The transfer committee is not to keep more than 5 billion in the bank at a time, as a safeguard against the building up of a war chest. With this committee will rest the power to prevent Germany from defaulting on any part of the agreement, as it is permitted in this event to invest funds in Germany itself, and whatever it invests in becomes tax free.

The money which will be collected under the supervision of the commissioners and turned over to the trustees of the bank will come half from taxes, three-eights from the railroads, and one-eighth from industrial debentures. The budget commission will have supervision over the ordinary taxes, which are a part of the budget. The railroad debentures are a more complicated affair.

Forty thousand miles of German railroads, which now belong to the Government, will be turned over to a private company chartered for 50 years, at the end of which they will return to the Government. As the German Socialists object to private ownership of railroads this is some consolation for them. The holding company will have all right to operate usually enjoyed by private railroad companies but with financial strings held by the Government. The first act of the new company will be to sell 2 billion gold marks of preferential shares, one-fourth, or 500 million, to go to the Government—this to balance the existing budget. The rest of the capitalization will be ordinary shares owned by the German Government.

The railroad administration board will consist of 18 men, of whom nine will be Germans and nine will be appointed by the reparation commission. To all practical purposes, the Germans will run their own railroads without interference, if they live up to expectations in point of revenue. As expectations are high, interference eventually might seem inevitable.

Besides putting the railroads on a paying basis, the board of administration must bond them for 11,000,000,000 gold marks at 5 per cent interest and 1 per cent sinking fund. In addition it must provide 3,000,000,000,000 gold marks in bonds on the transport tax, which amounts to 7½ per cent on the gross freight and passenger earnings. The bonds will run for 40 years. As the purpose of bonding is to bet reparations, bonds and transport taxes are to continue to yield interest and taxes for 50 years, even though all the bonds are meanwhile redeemed.

The 300 million that industry must yield to the reparation fund is to come from a bond issue of 5 billion at 6 per cent. This is nearly the old Cuno plan, and is well understood in Germany. As justification for what might seem a confiscatory tax is the unquestioned fact that industry profited enormously on the fall of the mark and paid off mortgages aggregating about this sum. Big landowners who paid off three times as much mortgages in worthless marks get off scot free.

It was originally intended to tax industry 10,000,000,000 as Cuno suggested, but that was decided to be unnecessary.

A further purpose in not taxing industry too heavily is to avoid affecting the standard of living in the Germa nfactory regions or create coolie labor again.

To help Germany get immediate liquid capital, interest on 5,000,000,000 won't be collected the first year, and until a normal year it will progress slowly until it reaches 6 per cent. All these 5,000,000,000 gold mark debentures on industry will be turned over to the trustees of the bank and put on the market, as in the case of the railroad debentures and the transport tax bonds—the total of bonds to be marketed by the trustees being 19,000,000,000 gold marks, nearly $5,000,000,000.

The basis of the plan is that Germany should borrow $200,000,000 abroad to put her on her feet, and then seek abroad $5,000,000,000 in debentures—for the benefit of the reparation commission. An indeterminate part of the 300,000,000 gold marks capital for the gold bank also will come from abroad.

The plan is carefully worded in saying that, if Germany fails, after accepting the plan, to live up to it, the nations which participated in drawing up the plan will act concertedly in deciding what action to take—this being put in evidently to prevent independent action by France.

Both Germany and France are expected to refuse at first to consider the Dawes-Young report as the basis for reparations. If this refusal takes no oficial form, that will be due, it is believed, to a lack of opportunity; it will, nevertheless, be expressed through public opinion. But in the end, both countries will accept the report, and an agreement for future reparations will be reached, with it as the basis, it is predicted.

The importance of the report is becoming increasingly apparent as the hour when it will be issued approaches.

Delays Intimated.

Meanwhile there are the intimations of a refusal at first by Germany and France, or a delay in reaching a decision on the report.

It is expected that Germany will plead as her excuse the forthcoming elections, and the impossibility of the present Government taking the responsibility to decide at the very time when the country is in a position to decide for itself.

The French will refuse to give up the Micum agreements with the German industrialists and the railroad control without a better bird in the hand.

These attitudes will put over the decision until the middle of May, after the elections in both countries, when the general conference will take up discussion of how to put the experts' plan in operation.

Ambassador von Hoesch told Premier Poincare yesterday, according to practically official reports, that Germany would agree to the Micum agreements in the Ruhr on April 15, but only for a month, in order to tide the matter over until after the elections. Similar agreements for the Rhineland were signed recently for a full year, but the Ruhr agreements were at first refused unconditionally.

The storm of criticism that has been aroused against what is considered a proposal to give up the Ruhr for less certain guarantees of Germany paying reparations subsided today. It can be expected to blow up again, however, as soon as the report is published.

DECLARES HE CAN SAVE TAXPAYERS ABOUT $40,000

the practice of nearly all the street construction contractors to combine or come to an understanding before bidding on street work and the result has been very high prices.

"They are a lot of highbinders," he said, "and I have a plan to lay before the Board of Public Service which I hope will bring prices down to a proper level.

"I do not take much stock in their condemnation of 'Willite.' I rather believe they are condemning it to cut the throat of the concern that is introducing this fine pavement."

Kinsey said he and Clinton H. Fisk, Director of Streets and Sewers, went to California at the expense of the Western Willite Co. to inspect "Willite" highways in that State and came away convinced that it was a superior pavement.

Having Investigation Made.

"It does not wave, rut or crack like ordinary asphalt, and we are merely giving it a trial in St. Louis," said Kinsey. "However, there appears to be a scheme on foot to control things here, and we shall block it. We are not fostering a monopoly, and do not intend to do so. If Mr. Heman can show us where we can save the taxpayers $35,000 or $40,000 let him come forward with his plan. That is our business—to save money for the people and the city.

"I am having a thorough investigation made of these bids and the conditions under which they were submitted. I do not think there will be any contracts let Tuesday, as planned, and it is not likely that they will be let at all. Property owners could well join us in a protest against general high price levels for street work."

Thus have the property owners on Botanical, Castleman, Cleveland, Flad and Loughborough avenues an opportunity to save themselves $35,000 to $40,000.

NORRIS' ATTITUDE ON NEBRASKA PRIMARY

Senator, in Substance, Says Voters Must Regard Him as a Nonpartisan.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 5. — Senator George W. Norris, a Republican in name, today issued a characteristic statement to make known his attitude toward the fight that is being waged over the Senatorial nomination which will be settled by the Nebraska Republican primaries next Tuesday. He says in substance that the Republicans must take him as a Non-Partisan candidate for re-election or let him alone. He concludes by asserting that he is ready to accept either verdict willingly and cheerfully.

The statement is taken by his friends to mean that he is preparing the minds of his constituents for a defection from the regular Republican ranks should his friend La Follette of Wisconsin head a third party. The text follows:

"It has been suggested to me by Washington correspondents, as well as by numerous letters received from Nebraska that I ought to issue a statement to the people of Nebraska prior to the primaries.

"Fighting for 20 Years."

"I have taken no part whatever in the primary contest. I could not have done so without seriously neglecting my duty here. I have no personal ambition of my own to gratify. I am only anxious to the extent of my ability, to give to the people of the country in general, and the great West in particular such legislation as will promote the prosperity and happiness of our people. For 20 years I have been fighting bosses and political machines who for selfish reasons have done their best to control our Government through the instrumentality of partisan politics.

"My experience in public life has led me to believe that partisanship is one of the greatest evils in our Government; and in this respect, both of the great dominant political parties are equally guilty. I have felt it my duty to oppose what I believe to be wrong or evil in my own party just as quickly as though it existed in any other party. A public servant in every official act that he performs should be moved entirely by his conscientious convictions as to what is right and not by the wish of the demand of political bosses or so-called alleged party leaders. I have tried to steer such a course in my official life. If I am retained in the Senate I shall continue along that line. If the people of Nebraska are satisfied with such service, I take it that I will be retained, if they do not want such a servant in the Senate, then I should be retired. Whatever verdict, I am ready to accept it willingly and cheerfully."

Opponent Is a Lawyer.

The statement violates the rules of practical politics, but it reveals again the stand the Nebraska Senator has taken since the announcement of his retirement brought forth a flood of telegrams and letters insisting that he stand for re-election. The present campaign has been almost entirely in the hands of his friends.

Norris has taken no part in the Coolidge-Johnson fight in Nebraska, and it is known that he cares as little for the Johnson brand of progressivism as he does for the conservatism of Coolidge.

Norris' opponent for the nomination is Charles H. Sloan, a lawyer of Geneva, who has served in the House. Sloan is the candidate of the standpat Republicans, who have conducted a bitter fight against Norris.

WITNESS EXPECTED TO TELL OF LARGE SUM HANDLED BY HAMON

partment could give them, but he didn't even recall who told him that. Fall says the subject was discussed at Cabinet Meetings, but Secretaries Hughes and Hoover both deny ever hearing of it, and Walsh unqualifiedly accepts their statement.

It was this transfer of the reserves which made their leasing by Fall possible, and Walsh proposes to establish, if possible, that the transfer was a direct outcome of what happened at Chicago.

In an entirely different connection, he has asked Secretary of the Interior Work for all documents pertaining to the present condition of the affairs in the Buena Vista Reserve in California. This reserve has not figured in the investigation so far, although the Senate recently passed a resolution, presented by Senator La Follette, extending the scope of the inquiry to cover it. La Follette declared, in urging the passage of the resolution, that the turning over of a large part of that reserve to the Honolulu Oil Co. comprised a close parallel to the acquisition of Section 36 in the Elk Hills Reserve by the Standard Oil Co., of California.

Validated Honolulu Claims.

When LaFollette introduced the original resolution for the investigation of the Teapot Dome lease, in 1922, he declared that the Honolulu Oil Co. occupied about 1100 acres in the reserve, based upon private applications for entry which had been shown to have been signed by employes of the Chicago Stockyards, under the impression that they were signing election petitions. During the latter part of the Wilson administration, Secretary of the Interior Payne, after extended hearings, declared the Honolulu Oil Co. a trespasser. It is charged that when Fall came into office, he reopened the case, and validated all the Honolulu claims, just as he did for the Standard in Section 36.

One vital aspect of this situation was the fact that the Honolulu company occupied alternates section of the reserve. A map of it, indeed, looks like a checkerboard. Drilling operations in these alternate squares constituted such a formidable danger of drainage to the Government sections that it became necessary to lease the entire reserves.

No action was taken against Mrs. Leland. Leland has taken steps to appeal the case.

SCAIFE ASKS THAT WICKERSHAM AND GOFF BE CALLED

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The Brookhart Committee, which is investigating the Department of Justice, will decide Monday whether, in view of recent statements made by George W. Wickersham and former Assistant Attorney-General Guy Goff, these two men shall be called before the committee to explain their activity in the Standard Aircraft case.

On being informed that both men had made statements denying his allegations, H. L. Scaife, former Department of Justice investigator, who sponsored charges, made a formal request today they be called. He promised to supply the committee with documents which would make their examination interesting. Members of the committee said they were disposed to accede to Scaife's requests.

Meanwhile a course of action has been decided on in regard to former Attorney-General Daugherty which may have an important bearing on the future outlook of the Republican party. Hitherto the inference has been that President Harding to the time of his death was standing completely behind Daugherty in everything the latter did. This feeling has been an important factor in holding to Daugherty such support as he has had and in enhancing his political power.

Had Harding Cooled?

But the story, which has reached the committee, and which, one of the members said today, they would be able to substantiate, was that Mr. Harding changed his view completely concerning Daugherty shortly before the President died, and witnesses are to be called from Ohio in an effort to tear the mask off by showing that Mr. Harding had expressed his disappointment in his one time best friend and was considering his withdrawal from the Cabinet. The story is that for this reason Daugherty was not invited on the Alaska trip just before the President's death.

If such disclosures can be made it will be cordially welcomed by the Lodge-Pepper group in the Senate, who believe that in such fashion Daugherty's potentialities as a trouble maker would be greatly reduced.

With the inquiry temporarily halted today while the records of the War Department were being examined, it became more and more apparent that from now on Daugherty is not going to be the only target to be shot at. He may not even be the chief target.

In this connection, William J. Burns' attitude is being watched with the utmost interest. Burns, on the stand, without particularly involving his friend, the former Attorney-General, succeeded in getting in some good digs against Secretary Mellon. He is to be called back for further examination about the liquor cases, on which he claims the Treasury Department halted his investigations as they were getting after the "higher-ups." He also will be asked about the aircraft cases in which Secretary Weeks is concerned and the expectation is that he will not hold back on either of these two Cabinet officers. In view of this attitude it would not be at all surprising if Burns himself should escape any heavy attack.

MAYOR AND ROSES GREET MABEL NORMAND

Plenty of Honors and No Talk About Scandals for Screen Star.

As Miss Mabel Normand said from the stage of a motion picture theater yesterday afternoon, any number of St. Loui speople had been awfully good to her.

There was Mayor Kiel who, at the head of a delegation of movie exhibitors, met the train from New York at Union Station.

"You're among God's people now," said the Mayor heartily. He gripped Miss Normand's hand as the manager of a theater placed two dozen roses on the other arm.

Miss Normand said: "Here, take another one," indicating that her attention was on a photographer. The photographer took another one with the Mayor looking at Miss Normand and she looking at the Mayor.

Mayor Welcomes Her.

"Welcome to St. Louis," the Mayor repeated, again assuring Miss Normand that she was indeed among the right sort of people. His insistence on the fact seemed evidence that he wanted to be sure that she got this just right.

Reporters pressed forward with questions. One started to ask the new arrival if she was going back to California to testify as a witness to the shooting of Courtland S. Dines. There had been considerable talk about this latest Hollywood scandal, when it was fresh at New Year (it will be remembered it was an event of last New Year's day when Miss Normand's chauffeur shot Dines, an oil man, because Dines would not let her accompany the chauffeur to her home from his apartment to which the chauffeur had been summoned to get her) and this talk was recently revived when the preliminary hearing was called after Miss Normand had departed from Los Angeles on her present tour.

Another reporter wanted to know whether Miss Normand had gone any further with her investigation of the William Desmond Taylor murder—another Hollywood scandal. Not quite so fresh, perhaps, as the Dines shooting, but still, Miss Normand's name had been mentioned.

A Bad Cold, You Know.

The inquisitors were shoved aside by a large gentleman who said smilingly, "Not now, boys. Not now. Miss Normand has——"

"I have a dreadful cold. Can't talk now," put in the film actress.

And wasn't it good of whoever did it to send that imported car to the station with a traffic patrolman on a motorcycle to lead the way out to Hotel Chase?

Unable to talk with Miss Normand, a Post-Dispatch reporter conversed with a publicity man, who somehow was not too busy to talk. This was Miss Normand's first return to the stage and screen, was it not? The ban had been lifted on her pictures everywhere? How could the public receive her?

"Watch this crowd this afternoon," said the publicity man. "Just watch 'em. She's a cute kid, see? She'll get up there and talk to them and they'll like it, see? That's all."

This press agent knew what he was talking about as subsequent events proved. The theater where Miss Normand is appearing in her latest release was jammed to the doors. The crowd appeared to enjoy "The Extra Girl," which is the name of this film. And then an announcement was flashed on the screen. "Miss Mabel Normand in person," it read. The curtain rolled up on a gilt and silver drapery.

Just Would Appear.

Out walked the large gentleman of the scene at Union Station.

"I am going to introduce to you a little girl," he said gently. "She has come a long way to see you. She has got up from a sick bed to make her appearance. I tried to dissuade her but she said, 'I'll go on if they have to carry me on in a stretcher.' That, you will agree with me, took courage."

The audience did agree with him. There was a storm of applause. What a brave little girl! Not to disappoint them.

The stout man bowed and curtains parted and Miss Normand, herself, walked out. She was clutching at her throat. A handkerchief peeped from one trembling hand.

"I can't say very much to yo' all people," she began after several broken "thank yous." "I got a cold. An awful cold. But I said I'd come on if they had to carry me on in a stretcher. Of course, I can't say anything and all that. I can't because I've got a cold and all that. But I wondah if you'd like to heah about that ol' lion?"

Audience Naive, Too.

Apparanetly the audience was eager, even anxious, to hear about the lion. So she told them about the bad old lion, and how it had nearly frightened her to death, breaking loose in the studio the way it had. Her account was most naive. Laughter followed on rolls of applause. The audience was apparently naive, too.

Soon she stopped and clutched her throat again.

"Just Love Yo' All."

"I've got to stop. I got a cold. An awful cold. I just want to tell yo' all how everybody in St. Louis has been so good to me. The mob at the station and all that. I just love yo' all." She blew them a kiss as the curtain went down on thunderous acclamation.

"Hear that?" taunted the publicity man back stage. He had been listening while a reporter asked hesitant questions about the American mind—how it reacts to unpleasant publicity involving its entertainers—and its ideals. "Hear that!" said the press agent again more loudly. "She went over? I'll say she did. Man, they ate it up."

Miss Normand will make three appearances daily here this week.

Strange Incident Recalled.

A strange incident relating to young Dillon was recalled yesterday. One night last June, he went into the Page boulevard police station, and asked the desk sergeant, "Do I look like a user of narcotic drugs?" The sergeant replied in the negative, and Dillon then declared that he had lost his memory, and could not tell his name or address. He was sent to the City Hospital, where the superintendent, Dr. Scharff, recognized him, and he was taken home.

Dillon and Stewart Walker were two of the pallbearers at Barnett's funeral, held yesterday afternoon in an undertaking chapel at 5165 Delmar boulevard. More than 300 persons were present, the chapel and adjoining rooms and hallways being filled.

The four other pallbearers were "brothers" of Barnett and Dillon in the Phi Delta fraternity—Bob Ritter, Frank Hogan and Carey Link, with whom Barnett and Dillon rode to Hotel Chase Wednesday night, and Holton Price, whose home the group held a fraternity meeting.

The audience was composed of school acquaintances of Barnett and friends of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Barnett of 731 Hem avenue, University City. Detectives, investigating the robberies committed by Barnett and his companion in the short period between the stealing of Ball's car and the killing of Barnett at Clarendon and Cates avenues, yesterday found that the automatic pistol, dropped by Barnett or his companion at the time of the fatal encounter with Detective Carter, was stolen in a burglary. Numbers on the weapon showed that it was the one which was taken by a burglar the night of Feb. 23 from Lieberstein's apartment, Pershing avenue.

The robbery was committed the absence of the Lieberstein family. A neighbor, who knew that family was out, observed lights being switched on and off in the apartment, and telephoned for policemen. The burglars got out before the police arrived, taking besides the automatic, two banks containing change and woman's wrist watch. The was discharged once, apparently accident, before the burglars the house.

Detectives are looking for wrist watch. If it should be found in some young woman's possession it might lead to further information along the line of the inquiry. Meanwhile, Dillon is liberty under $10,000 bond. A warrant, issued Friday, charges with "suspected first degree bery."

HERCULES BILL LOOKED MEAN BUT WAS A PACIFIST

Women Shuddered as They Passed by English Bulldog — Owner Unmasks Him—Never Had Fight.

COLISEUM SHOW TO CLOSE TONIGHT

Shepherd Field Trial Develops Some Excitement—Man in Padded Suit Has Lively Time.

Hercules Bill, an English bulldog all the way from London, Canada, stood on his bench last night at the dog show. Women shuddered as they passed him by. Children looked at Bill and pulled back their hands. Once Bill yawned reflectively and a Scotch terrier across the aisle cringed. There was nothing about Bill that gave the least assurance or comfort. Mere if ever was a dog with a single track mind, a dog with homicidal tendencies, utterly, irrevocably past appeal to a better nature.

A patch of brown over one eye, dirty white over the other. A half-moon gash filled with teeth. A crumpled nose. Bad, bad eyes—bilious, choleric eyes. Scars. That was Bill. Even uglier than that. 'Tis hopeless to describe the abandoned, abysmal wickedness of Bill.

He had awed the dog show crowd until the young man in sport clothes came along, escorting three girls, and halted before Bill's quarters.

"There's Hercules Bill," said he and his companions gasped, "Oh-h-h," as much to question, "Do you know him?"

The stroller glanced at Bill reminiscently.

Bill's Record.

"Quite a scrapper, aren't you, Bill?" the young man continued. Then he half turned. His audience was there all right. "Bill has a record. And a queer thing about that dog, too. He kills clean. You know some bulls mess up the dogs they're fighting. Chew 'em. First one ear and then the other, then one eye and then the other"——

"Oh-h-h"—— said several auditors, looking at Bill. But Bill was eyeing the reminiscer appreciately.

"Bill isn't that way at all," the account ran. "Bill fights clean. One crunch. That's all. Under the throat."

And the speaker closed his fist expressively.

"Why I've seen—that is men I know have seen, Bill kill three in an afternoon. They say he's killed 17 during"——

Just then a large individual moved up alongside Bill's bench and the young man passed on. A reporter did not.

"Say," he haid to the newcomer. "You know Bill?"

"Yeh. He's my dog."

The man eyed Bill tolerantly.

"About those dogs he killed—"

"Killed—when—just now?"

"No. Some time ago."

"Oh" and Bill's owner looked relieved. "Bill hasn't ever killed anything. Have you, Bill?"

And Hercules Bill seemed to drop his head.

Never in a Fight.

"Bill's gentle. He hasn't ever been in a fight. He's a show dog. Champion of Canada. English bulls don't fight. Reckon you're thinking of those American bulldogs they used to breed. White with a terrier's head?"

It was true. Hercules Bill had been found out. Oliver H. Homer of Benld, Ill., who owns Bill, is sure of it. His dog has never been in a fight.

"But those scars?" the reporter persisted.

"Well, Bill is crated around to so many shows," was the explanation, "and sometimes they are careless about clinching their nails."

There was nothing else half so dramatic as the unmasking of Hercules Bill, last night. Of course, the struggle between Amor von Rotstein, Fels von Freinstein and Funk von Vet Maschstal for the shepherd field trial prize developed a lot of excitement. Funk was a fine jumper, an indifferent fighter and very smart. Fels was a wolf on attack but not a redoubtable performer over the wall or not especially smart. Amor seemed to have the best combination of the three qualities. He bit the man in the padded suit so enthusiastically that his teeth sank through more than once.

Judges Flip Coin.

Amor, owned by Maxine Orthwein, was given 97 points out of a possible 100 and so were his rivals. So the judges flipped a coin and luck was with Amor.

The judges in the show ring spent most of their time looking at Boston terriers and beagles. In the competition for limit dogs 15 pounds and under 20 pounds, Miss Mabel Thorpe's Busy Bee won over J. M. Cohen's Sweet and Pretty. The latter got away to a poor start but in other classes placed first and as reserve winner for Boston terriers.

Other notable wins in the Boston classes were W. A. Sorcani's Shick VIII for open dogs; Wee Acre Good Enough, owned by Wee Acre Kennels, in the novice class; Speed Way's showing as reserve winner among American-bred dogs; William Rawlings' Wild Boy in a novice class; Theodore M. Gould's Oread Sensation and Mrs. W. W. Heathcote's Tiny Ching.

Zev, owned by Emmett Murphy, starred in the puppy beagles' class. These classes were largest in the show and will be completed today as will the Boston terriers.

Skookum Jr., a greyhound owned by Mrs. Albert Boettler, carried off a blue ribbon.

The show will be held afternoon and evening, opening in the evening at 7 p. m.

Tonight is to be the closing performance. Officials in charge say that the show is by far the most successful financially that the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club has ever had.

13 MEN ROBBED OF $673

Italian Fruit Vendors Interrupted at a Card Game.

Two young men, one armed with a revolver, held up 13 Italians in a room of a house at 1120 North Tenth street, at 4 p. m. yesterday, taking $673. The men robbed are all fruit vendors, and meet at this room each Saturday, when they decide on one of their number to buy the next week's stock, after which they have a card game. They were playing when the robbers entered.

Frank Longo, 1216 North Thirteenth street, was robbed of $240; Charles Geracia, 1420 North Thirteenth street, had $140 taken from him, and the robbers took $117 from Lorezno Marmino, 1107 North Eleventh street. The remainder were robbed of amounts ranging from $35 to $2.

BECCARD 'SHAKES' WITH HOAGLAND IN HOWARD'S OFFICE

Police Board Member Applies Golden Rule in Bringing Detective Chief and Sergeant Together.

HIS ACTION LIKELY TO CAUSE DEADLOCK

Commissioners Now Said to Be Split Over "Liar" Incident With Deciding Vote Up to Mayor.

Three members of the Board of Police Commissioners are prepared to enter a meeting Tuesday to consider further the case of Detective-Sergeant John Beccard, who called Chief of Detectives Hoagland a liar before the board several weeks ago and got away with it. The fourth, Clarence H. Howard, has something up his sleeve.

Ordinarily when a subordinate officer is disrespectful to his superior in the degree Sergeant Beccard was, immediate dismissal results. In that instance the board passed it over and then ordered Sergeant Beccard to apologize. The next week he appeared again and said that while he was sorry if he had hurt the chief's feelings, he said he still thought he was right in his position, and, in effect, reiterated his charge that the chief lied.

Deadlock Seems Likely.

The board, expecting an apology, was shocked. When it recovered the sergeant was suspended until the meeting Tuesday. Yesterday sentiment on the board had reached a stage where Commissioners Brockman and Moore favored dismission Sergeant Beccard while Commissioners Howard and Young favored retaining him. A deadlock, which might be broken only by Mayor Kiel, ex-officio member, loomed.

It was at this point that Commissioner Howard undertook to measure the damages by the application of the Golden Rule. From his office in the Pierce Building he called Chief of Detectives Hoagland. When the chief arrived he found Sergeant Beccard in the office. Commissioner Howard genially explained his view of the situation. The chief, whose task it is to please all commissioners, was not going to be a dissenting member. The information is that Sergeant Beccard made a new apology without reservation.s The Chief had not lied. Sergeant Beccard had been in error.

Commissioner Howard took Sergeant Beccard's hand and led him to his superior. They shook and so far as Commissioner Howard, Chief Hoagland and Sergeant Beccard are concerned, the Chief is not a liar and the incident is closed. The Chief is vindicated and the sergeant feels that he still has his job, which is something after having disputed the Chief's veracity before the board.

Howard Silent on Matter.

"Mr. Howard begs to have his name left out of the papers," it was said at the Howard home last night when the commissioner was asked for a statement of the affair

"So far as I am concerned the case in which Sergeant Beccard is concerned will be before the Board Tuesday," Chief Hoagland said.

Sergeant Beccard could not be reached for a statement.

Another member of the board said that he had heard Commissioner Howard had proposed to invite Hoagland and Beccard to his office. "It will not change my vote," he said.

Cause of Original Trial.

The trial of Sergeant Beccard was held originally because Inspector Vasey had found him in the Washington Hotel bar on the early morning of March 2. Vasey made the raid following an affidavit by a guest at the hotel who said he had purchased liquor there after it had been closed following the murder of Charles O'Neal, one of the proprietors. The affiant set forth that he had frequently seen police officers in the place.

Sergeant Beccard testified that he and another officer, Patrolman George Mason, had entered the bar to sell tickets to the police circus.

Chief Hoagland jumped into the story when he met Sergeant Beccard at Kingshighway and Delmar boulevard one night while investigating a reported shooting. It was a false alarm and in the conversation among officers that followed Hoagland said Beccard slighted him.

Grievance of Hoagland.

"I felt insulted," Hoagland told the board. "So I walked over and said: 'Sergeant when I treat you like a gentleman I want you to treat me as such.' Then"——

Sergeant Beccard interrupted.

"Maj. Hoagland didn't you say: 'I've never done a —— —— thing to you Beccard.'"

The Chief denied it and then Sergeant Beccard accused him of uttering a deliberate lie.

But the parties to the conference in Commissioner Howard's office yesterday feel that it's all over now. That's what the commissionerq has up his sleeve.

HORSE SHOW IN NOVEMBER

Already 38 Boxes Have Been Sold —Many Likely to Exhibit.

The directors of the St. Louis Horse Show Association, Inc., have leased the Coliseum for the week of Nov. 24 to 29 for the next horse show. Already 38 boxes have been sold. An early canvass of possible exhibitors has been made, and assurance already has been made that there will be a much larger number of exhibitors than at the Horse Show last fall.

A campaign for the sale of Bit and Bridle Club memberships will be started immediately. Purchasers of boxes last year will be given an opportunity to buy the same boxes this year.

INITIAL SUCCESS IN REED MOVE TO RULE CONVENTION

Louis following has the least liking for Goltra, but it now appears that he will receive the full Reed strength in the convention.

During the early stages of the fight the Reed influence was said to be directed toward lining up votes for William T. Kemper, Kansas City banker, but in the light of more recent events this action appears to have been much of a blind to conceal the real purpose, or perhaps was being carried out in good faith to see whether Kemper could gather enough strength outside the Reed organization to make a combination successful.

A conference of Reed, Bennett Clark and Senator Michael Kinney with Luther Wilson of Nevada, Goltra representative, in Kansas City several days ago, is reported to have had the Goltra-Reed combination as its purpose. In addition to this the Reed members of the St. Louis City Committee are beginning to talk Goltra, and a secret meeting of the city committeemen in the Tenth Congressional District Friday night is said to have resulted in a decision to support Goltra.

Goltra has strength among the women, who have been active in the anti-Reed organization, but virtually no personal following among the men. What strength he will develop is uncertain, but the Reed supporters must believe he can win with their help or they would not take him up. On the other hand, they may consider him their only hope in their determination to defeat Long.

Slate Being Made Up.

There will be eight delegates-at-large, four men and four women, each with one-half vote in the national convention. Anti-Reed men are gradually working out their slate which they hope to put through the convention. So far it contains the names of Farris, Charles M. Hay and Charles H. Mayer of St. Joseph. If Long should be defeated for national committeeman his name undoubtedly will be added to the slate for delegate-at-large. If he wins the committeeship it will not be. It is understood, however, that the fourth place will be left vacant for the present.

Former Gov. Gardner has been considered for a place on the slate, but so far he has not been put on. His action in withdrawing his candidacy for indorsement by the state convention for the nomination for the presidency, his action in absenting himself from the State during the McAdoo-Reed fight and the revival of his candidacy after Reed had been defeated in the county conventions have created a feeling of antagonism toward him among the anti-Reed following.

From the Reed side there is a strong demand for Justice Graves of the Supreme Court to go on the delegation, but this, too, is meeting with opposition. The anti-Reed leaders so far are holding fast to the contention that they won over Reed in the conventions and they intend to take the fruits of victory. However, this all may be changed when the "harmony" workers get into action at the convention. The Reed following is loud in its demand for harmony and they may be able to force harmony whether the individual delegates want it or not.

Women Mentioned.

There seems to have been little attention given to the women to be placed on the delegations, though among those mentioned are Mrs. Fred A. Reid of St. Louis, Mrs. W. E. Ewing of Odessa and Mrs. Ella Jean Flanders of Excelsior Springs.

All the detailed activity of the Reed men looks to a definite purpose, the control of the convention by Reed, the methods employed being similar to those used by Reed in his campaigns. Reed attracts votes in blocks. He says something or does something to get the Irish vote, something else to get the "wet" vote, something else to get the German vote, something else to get the woman vote, and so on.

In the present fight may be seen the effort to get an instructed delegation for Gardner for the presidency to tie the Gardner following to the Reed program. An effort to put over Goltra for national committeeman to get the support of the Goltra strength. But back of it all, the main idea of electing an uninstructed delegation to be made up largely of delegates who will support Underwood, delegates chosen, however, as far as possible from the Reed following so that if there should come a deadlock in the convention and Reed was put forward as a candidate he would have a sizable vote from his own state.

WILLIE CUSSED 'EM IN CODE; RULED FROM AIR

"Who in Hell Are You," He Asked Over Radio—a Government Agent, He Finds.

Willie Lippman had his enemies among radio amateurs—confusion to their tuning coils! He was a licensed operator; they mere headphone small fry. He tickled the ether with a sweet spark gap while they were obliged to sit mutely and listen in. Jealousy, that's what it was, jealousy. At least Willie thinks so now.

Station 9AQB, St. Louis, is heard no more. Its 15-year-old operator no longer works with key and audion tube. He and Station 9AQB have been silenced by no less power than the United States Government. And it all came about because Willie sent swear words through the air in Marconi code. In other words, he told a Government official to "Go to hell." Decidedly bad form. Even in Marconi code.

Picture Willie seated at his radio in the home of his father, William Sr., at 6 Thornby place. He belonged to an association of amateur operators whose chief pleasure it was to relay radiograms from station to station. Willie's was not a broadcasting station. It was a relay affair. There wasn't enough power in Stateion 9AQB to disturb the atmosphere for a great distance. But Willie could pick up messages from other amateurs and pass them on to still other amateurs, and Willie did.

Careless About Time.

Now the Government has been obliged to pass traffic rules for the ether above the United States. It had decreed that between the hours of 8 p. m. and 9 a. m. little stations lige 9AQB should be silent in order to give important broadcasters a chance.

But Willie was careless about time. Once in a while he would relay a message to Station XYZ at Belleville, say, at 8:30 or perhaps 9:30 p. m.—Siz—crack—zzmzzmzz—would sound Station 9AQB. Sometimes it would sound to hundreds of mere head-phoners like static and at all times it would be most annoying. Once Willie broke in on a bed-time story and once on Beethoven's Minuet in G No. 2. "Get out of the ether," radio fans would scream impotently, or "Get off the air," both being good radioese.

Last October a number of amateurs, owning only receiving sets, mind you, complained to Dr. Charles L. Klenk, then chief radio traffic officer. Lese majesty! No end. Willie feels the hurt of it to this day.

So Dr. Klenk took action one evening when Station 9AQB was sending after the 8 o'clock evening time limit.

"Kindly stop sending," Dr. Klenk radioed Willie.

An Indignant Reply.

Both young Lippman and his father agree now that the reply should not have been what it was:

"Who in hell are you?" Willie tapped out in code. "What right have you got calling me down? Get off the air yourself." You see Willie thought it was only a disgruntled amateur who had got hold of a sending set for a few minutes.

But it was Dr. Klenk. The doctor reported Station 9 AQB to his superior at Chicago. Two hundred angry radio fans signed a petition. And Feb. 2 the Government revoked Willie's license.

"My son makes no defense for his grave error in using profane language," said William Lippman Sr., last night. "He is taking his medicine as a fellow of recent training should." Station 9 AQB has been dismantled.

Teachers at Soldan High School, where Willie is a student, say that his work shows amazing improvement, dating from some time in February.

HOMER BASSFORD SUFFERS BREAKDOWN; QUITS THE TIMES

Former General Manager Granted Indefinite Leave of Absence to Regain Health.

Homer Bassford of 6 Shaw place, former general manager of the St. Louis Times, is under the care of a physician at his home, following a nervous breakdown, suffered Thursday morning.

Coincident with his illness, Bassford announced he has severed his connection with the Times, with which he was connected since it was founded in 1907. G. A. Buder, president of the American Press, publishers of the Times, said that Bassford had been granted an indefinite leave of absence in order to regain his health. Bassford is 54 years old. He began his newspaper career on the Mexico (Mo.) Ledger as a youth, and in 1889 became Sunday editor of the Kansas City (Mo.) Times. He came to St. Louis in 1893 and became drama and music critic of the St. Louis Republic.

KU KLUX KLAN AN ELECTION FACTOR AT KANSAS CITY

Democratic Charge That Hooded Organization Is Backing Republicans Agitating Negro Voters.

VOTE ON MAYORALTY WILL BE TUESDAY

Republicans Alleging Extravagance Under Present Rule—$5000 Pendergast Check Flaunted.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 5.—The Ku Klux Klan may be the determining factor in the municipal elections in Kansas City and St. Joseph Tuesday, even as it was in city elections in many smaller places in Western Missouri last Tuesday.

The klan has openly indorsed the Republican nominee for the mayoralty in St. Joseph and is actively supporting the Republican nominees here. The knights of the mask and hood are supposed to be very numerous both here and in St. Joseph, although their actual strength in each place is unknown.

Democrats in waging their campaign for the re-election of Mayor Cromwell are charging that Republicans and the klan co-operated in a wholesale attempt to disfranchise nearly 15,000 Democrats on the eve of the election and are lashing Gov. Hyde and the leaders of his faction who dominate the Republican party here, as responsible for the numerous alleged police atrocities of recent months.

Charges of Republicans.

Republicans, in urging the election of Albert I. Beach, former president of the Board of Aldermen, are charging the Cromwell administration with extravagance, resulting in a huge deficit in the funds, and with having injected politics into management of expenditures, for the construction of the new $11,000,000 water works, now being built. They also are making much of a check for $5000 drawn by the Kelly-Dennis Construction Co. to Thomas J. Pendergast, and indorsed by the latter, which was cashed at the Commerce Trust Co. here during the 1922 mayoralty campaign.

The Kelly-Dennis concern built the big Turkey Creek sewer for which Kansas City paid in excess of $2,000,000. Pandergast is head of the "Goat" faction of the Democratic party in Kansas City.

Republican politicians obtained the check some time ago from the wife of a discharged employe of the contractors, and brought it into the campaign, in a bit of cleverly arranged hokum by which the woman rushed into one of the Republican meetings and mounted the platform in a dramatic manner, pleading for a chance to tell her story, which, of course, was accorded to her. Floats with fac similes of the check and newspaper reproduction of it have been used freely, the imputation being cast that Pendergast got the money personally.

Pendergast Denies Charge.

This he denies, being corroborated by W. T. Kemper, former president of the Commerce Trust Co. Pendergast asserts that the money went into the campaign funds used in electing Cromwell. It was not listed, however, among contributions reported by the treasurer of the Democratic County Committee, as required by law.

Influential Democrats have hinted that the $60,000, admitted to have been spent in the first Cromwell campaign, was only a small part of what actually was expended, and that another and far larger "pot" was collected, handled and spent privately, names of its donors kept secret as well as those of its recipients. It was into this pot that the $5000 went, they say.

Campaigns as waged by Democrats here are tremendously expensive, for there is no Democratic newspaper in Kansas City, so members of that party have to rely for publicity on circulars and other matter sent through the mail. Printed matter is used in vast quantities and 15 to 25 mass meetings are held every day.

Senator Reed and Congressman Jost, both former Mayors of Kansas City, came back here to aid and both are speaking nightly.

Comparison of Meetings.

If large meetings mean anything Mayor Cromwell could rest easy, as five to 10 persons attened the Democratic meeting for negroes in one that goes to the Republican assembly, especially in the "black belt," where negroes enraged by the klan alliance with the Republicans are flocking to Democratic meetings.

Last night, for instance, at a Democratcl meeting for negroes in a picture show in the Sixth Ward, about 900 negroes attended, while across the street, at a Republican meeting in a church, there were only about 125.

Democratic leaders, however, are somewhat perturbed by the probable effect of propaganda based on the Pendergast check, and, although declaring they expect to win heavily, they privately admit some nervousness. Cromwell was elected in 1922 by about 13,000 votes.

MOVE TO PLACE RIVER BODY UNDER WAR SECRETARY

Provision Written Into House Bill to Change Status of the Mississippi Commission.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The House Rivers and Harbors Committee, at the instance of Major-General Lansing H. Beach, Chief of Engineers, today wrote into the rivers and harbors bill a provision putting the Mississippi River Commission, which has its headquarters in St. Louis, under the supervision of the Secretary of War and the Chief of Engineers. At present the commission is a semi-independent body, although army engineers are members of it. The Beach provision does not abolish the commission, but merely changes its status. There has been criticism, members of the committee explained, that the army engineers, who have charge of river development on the upper Mississippi, the Missouri and Ohio rivers, and the commission, which has charge of improvements below St. Louis, have been unable to co-ordinate their work.

By unanimous vote, the committee passed a resolution, introduced by Representative Cleveland A. Newton of St. Louis, providing that all waterways projects adopted by the army engineers shall be completed within five years unless the Secretary of War, on the advice of the Chief of Engineers, shall declare such completions physically impracticable. This resolution is the first to set a time limit for finishing the river work. This means, according to Representative Newton, that if Congress indorses the declaration, the $73,000,000 needed for improvement of channels on the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio rivers, will be available by annual appropriations in five years, after which time only maintenance appropriations will be necessary.

Newton redrafted his $73,000,000 bill so it would conform to the adopted project program. His proposals, now approved by the committee, will be included in the general rivers and harbors bill, on which a report is expected next week. The unanimous committee vote today indicated success in the House of his proposals.

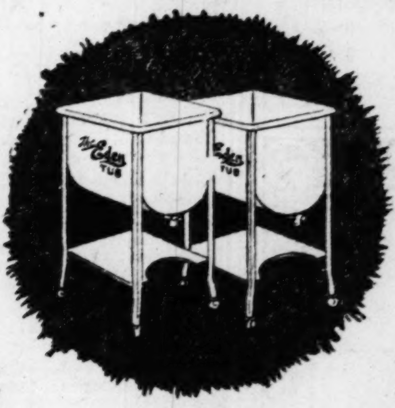
DURING THIS ANNIVERSARY SALE WE WILL GIVE

2 Eden Tubs Free



TO ALL WHO ORDER EDEN WASHERS NOW!

Those who received two of these wonderful Eden Tubs free with Eden Washers some time ago have been so enthusiastic in their acclaim of these labor savers that we have decided to make the Eden Tubs the feature of the Eden's 13th Birthday Sale. The Eden Tubs are compact with big capacity, they are made of heavy rustproof galvanized steel and are electrically welded into one solid piece. Decide now to have Eden washdays and you will receive

These 2 Eden Tubs FREE

"Self-Drainers"—"Easy Rollers"—"Labor Savers"

As a 13th Anniversary Gift

You can't appreciate the ease and satisfaction of washing at home until you've used an Eden with the two Eden Tubs—an ideal home-laundry team of three units for the price of one. We'll gladly demonstrate this great team for you without obligation if you prefer to see it work before you buy.

Very Liberal Terms

A few dollars when you decide to buy and the balance on very convenient terms, so low that the Eden practically pays for itself. And, after you've used the Eden Tubs once, you wouldn't part with them for $25 each if you couldn't get another pair.

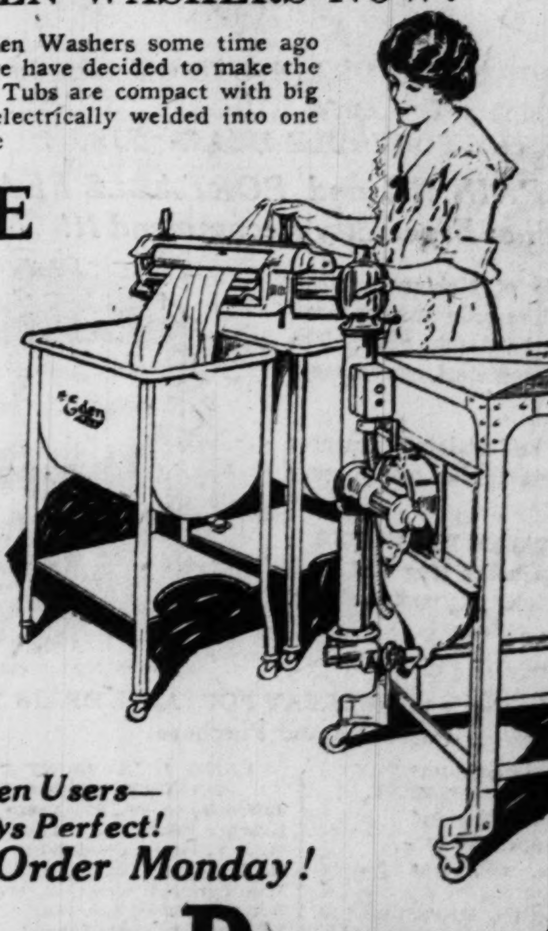
The First Eden

Crude, wasn't it? But in spite of its crudeness Edens were built right in 1911, just as they are today. Many of the first Edens, vastly inferior to today's Eden, are still giving faithful service every washday.



You Get the New 1924 Model

ADVANCE OF 8 CENTS AN HOUR GRANTED TO TILE HELPERS

New Scale, Which Is Result of Compromise, Effective From April 1.

Eight cents an hour more for the 200 members of Marble and Tile Helpers' Local No. 18 and 12½ cents an hour more for the 500 St. Louis members of the International Hod Carriers' and Common Building Laborers' Union marked yesterday's development in negotiations for new wage scales for the various organized crafts identified with the building trades.

The new scale for the marble and tile helpers, effective from Tuesday, April 1, is the result of a compromise between employers and tradesmen. The union demanded an increase of 28 cents an hour, from 72 cents to $1. The other increase was a voluntary one and makes the new wages of the laborers, mostly stonemason helpers, $1.12½ an hour instead of $1, the present rate. There is no written contract covering this increase.

Negro "Trade Week."

Seeking to stimulate trade of St. Louis negroes among merchants of their own race, the St. Louis Negro Business Association will conduct a "Trade Week" from April 7 to 14, inclusive. The event will start with a parade tomorrow afternoon and a public mass meeting at Y. W. C. A., Garrison and Lucas avenue, tomorrow evening. Features of the week will include a contest for the prettiest negro woman and contests for the most popular negro business man, minister and school teacher

"CHICAGO'S MOST ELABORATE FUNERAL" HELD FOR GANGSTERS

Friends Send Truck Loads of Flowers as Tribute to Pal Slain by Detectives.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 5.—"The boys," of Chicago's underworld, who are accustomed to "say it with guns," today held one of the most elaborate funerals in Chicago's history for one of their fallen idols, Frank Caponi, shot in a pistol duel with half a dozen detectives as an aftermath of the recent election in Cicero.

The little house where the body lay became a tomb of Easter flowers early in the day as truckload after truckload of roses and lilies, tributes of "the gang," arrived. It was established that the floral tributes, which overflowed the house and were stacked in towering heaps on the lawn and walks, cost more than $20,000.

For two blocks in each direction from the cottage where Caponi lived, his friends stood in line while those unable to gain access to the streets lined neighboring roofs and windows. In the funeral cortege were more than 200 limousines, some of them carrying policemen and detectives who had clashed with Caponi and his gang many times in the past.

SAILS TO GET 'APPETIZER'

William Travers Jerome Off to Bermuda for Ale.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—William Travers Jerome, former District Attorney, sailed today for Bermuda aboard the liner Arvadian for the specific and solitary purpose of getting some Bass' ale, which he said was the only real appetizer.

"You can get most anything to drink in New York," he said, "except Bass' ale, which I have always felt, after a long and careful study, is the only appetizer. Cocktails take the place and have the reputation, but only in Bass' ale is perfection met. You can say while the others golf and fish and ride and swim, Mr. Jerome will absorb ale, more ale, most ale."

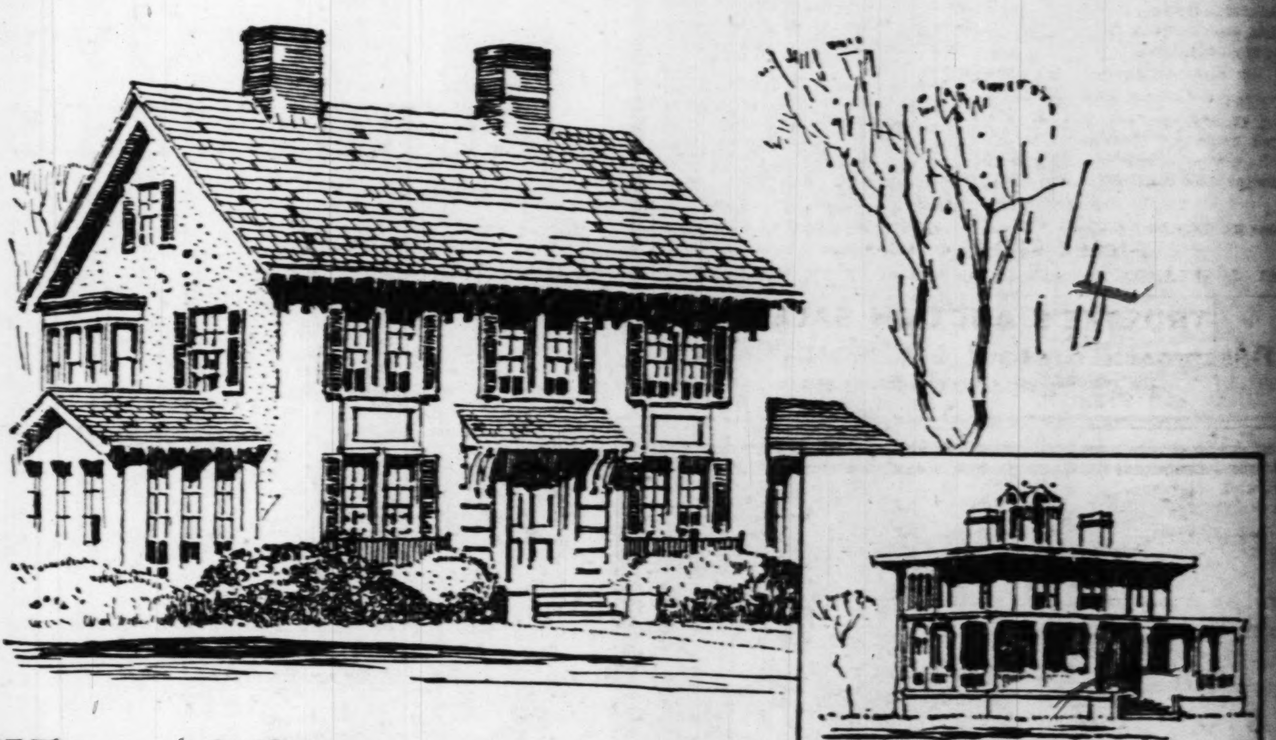
Make the old home attractive, comfortable—and worth more money



What a difference a few changes make

OURS was a good old house. Well constructed of honest materials—but in design, completely out of date. So much so, in fact, that when we tried to sell it we found we could get very little more for it than the value of the lot alone.

Then my wife sent for the Barrett Book

"Better Homes from Old Houses" solved our problem. It is chuck-full of suggestions for alterations which work wonders with old houses. And we like our new home so much better than any others we have seen that, in spite of many good offers, we wouldn't sell it at any price.

Get the Barrett Book yourself

Your lumber, hardware or building supply dealer has this book—or send 10 cents to The Barrett Company for a copy. Then talk it over with a local builder. You'll be surprised how quickly and inexpensively your old house can be transformed into a modern, attractive home.

Better Homes from Old Houses

This Book did it—

This fascinating book "Better Homes from Old Houses," shows many practical, economical ways to transform old fashioned houses into artistic, modern homes. Get this book from your dealer, or send us 10 cents today for your copy.

THERE is a Barrett Roofing for every type of building, whether dwelling, garage, office or industrial plant. Be sure the roofing you buy bears the Barrett label.

FARMERS APPEAL TO THE PRESIDENT AND CONGRESS

Continuation of Present Conditions Will Result in General Deportation, It Is Said.

"100,000 LEFT EACH MONTH LAST YEAR"

Coolidge Urges New Credit Body to Join War Finance in Relief of Wheat Growers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Continuation of present unfavorable conditions on American farms will result in a general "deportation" of American farmers, representatives of several farm organizations, declare in an open letter addressed to "the President, the Congress and the People of the United States."

Farmers were forced from their homes during 1923 at a rate of 100,000 a month, the letter said, and "the process still is under way in all its cruelty."

The McNary-Haugen bill was indorsed as an emergency relief measure.

Signers of the Letter.

The letter was signed by T. C. Atkeson, Washington representative of the National Orange Grange; Gray Silver, for the American Farm Bureau Federation; James R. Riggs, National Livestock Producers' Association and George J. Wett, general manager of the American Wheat Growers' Association.

"Country conditions cannot be told in words," the letter said. "The conditions of broken banks are real, but the suffering which followed them is hidden in the haze of distance. Unceasing toil of millions of people, futile attempt to protect family and property, is lost without recognition. The recognition for this remains unchecked, although it has existed for five years.

"The cause is evident. A disordered world emerging from war and handicapped by man-made barriers across channels of international trade proves unable to absorb the surplus production of our farms and our industry at prices commensurate with American standards. An elaborate structure of economic protection is provided for industry and labor but does not reach the farmer.

Remedy Declared Obvious.

"The remedy is as obvious as the cause. It rests in the application of effective protection to the products of the farm equally with those of other industry, the establishment of domestic markets for farm crops on an American basis, apart from world conditions, to conform with like markets already provided for among manufactures and American labor."

President Coolidge today asked the recently organized Agricultural Credit Corporation to undertake, in co-operation with the War Finance Corporation, the extension of credit to Northwestern wheat growers for farm diversification.

The request was embodied in a letter to C. T. Jaffray of Minneapolis, chairman of the board of directors of the Agricultural Credit Corporation, which was organized by Eastern and Middle Western financial interests, with a capitalization of $10,000,000 as a result of the February conference on the Northwest farm situation.

Text of Letter.

The President's letter said:

"At the conference held in Washington early in February in connection with the agricultural situation in the Northwest one of the important questions considered was the movement toward diversified farming in areas of the Northwest which have in the past been devoted mainly to wheat growing. In my address to the conference, I referred to the Norbeck-Burtness bill, then pending in the Congress, which appropriated a fund to be used by the Department of Agriculture in making the loans to wheat farmers to enable them to purchase livestock and poultry, and thus equip their farms for dairying and general farming.

"I suggested that such a fund could be administered in a sound and effective manner, if coupled with a general program of refunding and extension of overdue indebtedness. The Norbeck-Burtness bill, however, has failed of passage in the Senate, and it is thus apparent that relief along these lines cannot be expected.

"In my address to the conference I suggested also that the conference consider what steps the financial, industrial and agricultural interests represented could properly take to render material and effective assistance in the emergency. In response to this suggestion the Agricultural Credit Corporation * * * was organized. I am informed that the capital stock of the corporation to the amount of $10,000,000 has been subscribed by business interests and it has been gratifying to me to note the public-spirited manner in which these interests have come to the aid of the situation.

"Since the defeat of the Norbeck-Burtness bill I have been considering what other steps the Federal Government can take to aid in the movement toward diversified farming in the Northwest. I recommended in my address to the conference, and in a previous address to the Congress, that the time during which the War Finance Corporation may make advances for agricultural purposes be extended until the end of the calendar year.

Extension of Power.

"A resolution granting such an extension has since become law. The War Finance Corporation, however, cannot make direct loans to farmers. It can act only through responsible financial intermediaries. The question has arisen, therefore, whether it would not be practicable and within the general purpose of its organization, to have the Agricultural Credit Corporation undertake along sound and effective lines some of the work which I had hoped the Department of Agriculture would be permitted to undertake under the Norbeck-Burtness bill.

"I know of no more effective service that could be rendered to Central Northwest. Where a farmer proves himself to be competent and industrious, and willing to undertake the added responsibility and labor incident to diversified farming, it should be possible for him to obtain the funds and the practical assistance necessary to enable him to purchase livestock and thus make a start toward diversification.

"If such a program is soundly administered, it should be possible to make loans of this character on sound security and without undue financial risk. In connection with business of this kind, moreover, your corporation would, I am informed, be legally eligible to make legal application to the War Finance Corporation for loans in substantial amounts.

"I would appreciate it if you would advise me whether or not in your opinion, and in the opinion of your board of directors, it will be practicable for your corporation to undertake, in co-operation with the War Finance Corporation and along sound and conservative lines, a substantial amount of business of the character which I have outlined in this letter."

Action Filed by Wife of Eugene V. Brewster, Movie Magazine Publisher.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Mrs. Eleanor Brewster, wife of Eugene V. Brewster, wealthy publisher of motion picture magazines, today filed suit in the Supreme Court against Miss Corliss Palmer, charging her with alienation of her husband's affections and asking $200,000 damages.

In 1922 Mrs. Brewster began a suit for separation, maintaining that her husband had housed in his Roslyn, Long Island, home, a screen actress. After the suit was settled out of court, Brewster took up his home on an estate at Morristown, N. J., where he was said to have installed Miss Palmer, her mother and family. He said he would marry Miss Palmer "as soon as the law permits."

The complaint says Brewster and Mrs. Brewster were married at Stamford, Conn., Dec. 27, 1916, and lived together happily until December, 1920. Mrs. Brewster says a son, Virgil, was born to them Feb. 20, 1920, and that the boy remains in her custody. The couple had homes in Roslyn, New York City and elsewhere.

Mrs. Brewster says she aided her husband to establish himself and that, as an author and moving picture producer, he has become wealthy. She says Miss Palmer arrived at Roslyn in December, 1920.

The complaint then alleges that Brewster and Miss Palmer are now living together in Morristown, N. J., where, the complaint says, Miss Palmer induced Brewster to set up an elaborate, luxurious establishment for her use.

Boy, 13, Enters Building Contest—One in Mother's Vanity Case.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 5.—A 13-year-old boy, with 14 radio sets, all in working order, disposed about his person, appeared to enter the school playground radio set-making contest today.

He was Wilbur Wetlin and one of his sets was fashioned of his mother's vanity case. Her powder box was the receptacle for another and a pencil and two fountain pen caps proved the receptacles for three more. He produced a penny match box, a mouse trap, an old watch case, two peanut shells and several other "pieces of junk," all of which were receiving sets. The peanut set, he explained, cost a nickel, because he had to buy a bag of peanuts.

BRADENTOWN, Fla., March 5. —The Milwaukee club absorbed its ixth straight beating, at the hands f the Cardinals here today, the core being 5-2. They escaped a hut-out by pushing over two tallies in the ninth. In the six games etween the two clubs, the Cardinals outscored their opponents, 7-19, and outhit them, 72-49. Including the games with Syracuse and Bradentown, the Cardinals' Florida record reads, 14 victories and 3 defeats for a percentage of 823.

Today's game, the Cardinals' arewell here, furnished the first real line on the "come-back" of Allan Sothoron. Al worked the irst five innings and gave a splendid exhibition, permitting but four hits, none of them very savage. He had one chance to field a bunt. Matthews laid one down in the fifth and beat it out, but Sothoron played the ball well and his throw to first was perfect. The closest the Brewers came to counting off Sothoron was in this fifth when he walked two men and Matthews' safe bunt filled the bases with two down. The ex-Brownie pitched carefully to Lober and the batter flied to Freigau. Allan walked three, apparently experimenting with his "spitter" which he has not been unable to use for a couple of years. He also fanned three and, in all ways looked good.

The Cards hopped on Shaack, the first Milwaukee pitcher for five wallops and three runs in the second. Bottomley started with a hit but Mueller was called out on strikes. Bell, Freigau, Vick and Sothoron followed with safeties and three runs came over. In the fourth, Freigau's single, Vick's double and an infield out, gave the Cards a fourth run and their fifth and last went over in the fifth when Freigau tripled for his third hit and drove Lester Bell home from first.

One Safety Off Keefe.

After this, the Cardinal attack was conspicuous mainly by its absence when Dave Keefe, formerly of the Athletics, assumed the hurling duties. The only hit Keefe yielded in three innings was Hornsby's lusty triple to the tourist-camp in right center.

Sothoron passed to the showers after the fifth, his place being taken by Myrl Brown, ex-Pirate. Brown went great guns for three innings, but evidently tired in the ninth. Cooney, first up in the final, singled and Mellilo followed suit. Brown couldn't control his underhand delivery and passed McCarthy, filling the bases and drawing for himself a clubhouse ticket. Lou North, the demon reliever who, this spring, looks as well as he did in 1922, pinched for Brown and got Sherry Magee and Strohm, two alleged pinch-hitters easily. Then a battle of wits ensued between Managers Rickey and Clarke. Desiring a shut-out, Rickey pulled North out and sent Bill Sherdel, a southpaw pitcher, to face Wid Matthews, a portside hitter. Clarke came back by sending Scheer in to hit for Matthews and Heine obliged with a single to left, which permitted Cooney and Mellilo to cross the plate. Sherdel ended the game by sneaking a third strike over on Lober.

Freigau Is Slugging Star.

Freigau with three hits and Hornsby and Vick with two apiece, led the Cardinal attacking party.

Today's game was the final flash of form so far as Bradentown is concerned. Tomorrow night the Cardinals depart for the North, stopping over en route home in onville, Savannah, Atlanta Nashville before arriving in Louis next Friday morning.

WINDSOR (COLO.) QUINT WINS U. S. SCHOLASTIC BASKETBALL LAURELS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 5. — Five boys from Windsor, Colo., a little town of 1300 persons, with 62 girls and 58 boys in their high school, tonight won the National Interscholastic basketball championship tournament held under the auspices of the University of Chicago, decisively defeating Yankton, champions of South Dakota, 25 to 6.

Manchester, N. H., won third place in the tournament by defeating Northeastern of Detroit, 20 to 14, in a game in which Bozek, Manchester right forward, made more than half of his team's points.

Warrensburg, Mo., won the consolidation championship, defeating Elgin, Ill., 34 to 27. The Warrensburg team was a two-man affair, Carrison, forward, and Loman, center, making 30 of its 34 points.

Browns, Held to Five Hits, Win From Dallas, 3-2; Smart Work On Bases Is Deciding Factor

Only Once During Contest Do Sisler's Men Get More Than One Safety in an Inning—Danforth and Davis Pitch—Ellerbe Plays Well at Third Base.

By J. Roy Stockton,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

DALLAS, Tex., April 5.—George Sisler's Browns broke their losing streak by defeating the Dallas club of the Texas league this afternoon, 3 to 2, but it took smart base running, a brilliant defense and considerable luck to put the St. Louisans on the long end of the score. The Brownies failed to shake off the hitting slump that has shackled them since they left Mobile. They made only five hits today, whereas Dallas gathered eight off Danforth and Davis.

The story of how the Brownie runs were scored tells how helpless the men of Sisler were at the bat with runners on the bases. They scored one in the second inning on a double steal, Jacobson sliding over the plate and Severeid reaching second. To state that Jacobson and Severeid worked the double steal certainly must indicate that the throw to second and the return throw were far from perfect.

McManus opened the fourth inning with the Browns' second hit and it took an error to pave the way for the second run. Jacobson hit to the pitcher, whose throw to second had McManus forced, but the second baseman was slow in covering and dropped the throw, spoiling chances for a possible double play. Severeid walked, filling the bases, with nobody out.

Ellerbe Drives in Run.

Ellerbe sent a long fly to right and Rice, running for McManus, scored. Jacobson went to third and Severeid to second after the catch. That blow of Ellerbe's came nearer to being a blow in the pinch than any other hit by the Browns. There was no further scoring that inning, despite the fact that there were men on second and third with only one gone.

The squeeze play was called for, but Danforth missed his attempt to bunt the ball and Jacobson was run down between third and home. Danforth then struck out to end the inning.

In the fifth inning the Browns' third and winning run was produced and it cannot be said that it was knocked over the plate. With one out, Gerber singled to right and went to third when Sisler singled to center. That was the only inning in which the Browns made more than one safety. The pitcher threw out Evans and then McManus walked and when Jacobson also drew a pass, Gerber was forced over the plate with the run that decided the game.

Brownie Defense Brilliant.

To offset their impotent attack, the Browns played brilliantly in the field. McManus turned one of the best plays ever seen when he started and finished a double play in the second inning. With one out and Segrist on first, Lovelace hit a hopper to McManus who scooped up the ball and ran toward the advancing Segrist to touch him before throwing to Sisler. Segrist stopped in his tracks to try to prevent a double play and McManus quickly snapped the ball to Sisler and then raced back to second in time to take the return throw and tag Segrist sliding into the bag. It was as smart a play as a second baseman ever pulled and was a great relief after the thick-headed work by the Brownies during the two games at Shreveport.

There were other excellent plays. Frank Ellerbe was busy at third base and handled grounders and throws cleanly. He was the only Brownie to get an extra base hit, crashing a double against the center field fence to start the sixth inning. He was left on base, however, Danforth, Tobin and Gerber failing to get the ball out of the infield.

Danforth and Davis both were

GOULD BEATS MORGAN IN CHALLENGE MATCH

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Jay Gould of Philadelphia, perennial holder of the national court tennis championship, successfully defended his title today by defeating Hewitt Morgan of New York in the challenge match of the tournament, 6-1, 6-1, 11-9.

Morgan won the right to play Gould for the championship by scoring an international victory yesterday in the final round, defeating W. D. MacPherson of the Queens Club, London.

VILLA AND McKENNA TO BATTLE APRIL 23

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., April 5.—Pancho Villa, flyweight boxing champion, and Eddie McKenna, New Orleans bantam, will be the principals in a 10-round final in this city April 23.

The bout between Villa and McKenna will be the main event on a card of several other matches marking the reopening of the professional boxing game in this city after a suspension of several years.

The card will be under the auspices of the local American Legion.

Pampas Bull Puts Out Al Reich in The First Round

More Than 25,000 Persons See Firpo Dispose of American Opponent.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, April 5.—Luis Firpo, the South American heavyweight champion, tonight added another victory to his record, by knocking out Al Reich, the American heavyweight, who came to Buenos Aires with championship aspirations.

Firpo's powerful right turned the trick. In less than two minutes after the sound of the gong in the first round, Firpo landed on Reich's jaw, and Reich crashed to the floor. Notwithstanding desperate efforts, he was unable to rise within the allotted time and, after the count of 10, was carried to his corner.

Firpo wasted no time in going after his man. He landed a couple of heavy rights to the body, and Reich succeeded in putting a light left on the South American. They clinched several times, and Firpo punished the American severely between the clinches. Suddenly he let loose a series of right to the head and body, which left Reich helpless. Reich tried to block the blows, but without success. The knockout was the third of three heavy rights to the jaw.

Firpo received a gerat ovation as he went over to Reich's corner to ascertain if he had seriously injured his opponent.

The weights of the men as announced were: Firpo, 220 pounds; Reich, 213½ pounds.

It was estimated that more than twenty-five thousand persons saw the fight.

GUTHRIE (OK.) TEAM WINS GIRLS' NATIONAL BASKET CHAMPIONSHIP

By the Associated Press.

ROSELLE, N. J., April 5.—Guthrie, Okla., tonight clinched the National High School girl's basketball championship by defeating Westfield, 34 to 17, in the second of a three-game series. The first game, on Thursday night, resulted in a 23 to 22 score in favor of the girls from the western school. A third game will be played here on Monday night.

Members of the Croton-on-Hudson High School team, who last year lost to Guthrie attended the game tonight and challenged Westfield for a series of three games to determine the eastern championship. The games will be played the latter part of April.

CARPENTIER AND LEDOUX TO SAIL FOR U. S. MAY 9

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 5.—Georges Carpentier, Charley Ledoux and Paul Fritsch, French boxers, will sail for the United States on board the steamer France May 9, Francois Descamps, manager of the men, told L'Auto last night.

Team Work of Eastern Soccer Eleven Baffles Local Professionals

St. Louisans Taught a Lesson in Defensive Tactics — Hitchcock Kicks Ball Through His Own Goal.

By Dent McSkimming.

St. Louis soccer fans have heard much on the efficacy of speed and perhaps they have begun to wonder if "pep" was not sufficient within itself to win any soccer game. Those who watched yesterday's exhibition game at High School Field were disillusioned. They were convinced that team play and a thorough understanding of the fundamentals of defensive play are essential to success against high-class opposition.

Bethlehem's team of imported stars, some of them in this country less than a year, gave a team of selected St. Louis professional stars an object lesson in soccer. At the conclusion of two forty-five minute periods the score was 3 to 2 in favor of the eastern team. In view of the fact that one goal scored for Bethlehem was kicked into the St. Louis net accidentally by a St. Louis fullback, the final result was not at all bad from a St. Louis viewpoint.

Best Team Seen Here in Decade.

So smoothly did the Bethlehem team co-ordinate and so impressive was the work of each player that local critics and officials after the game voiced the opinion that it is the best soccer machine that has played here since the visit of the Pilgrims, more than a decade ago. The good showing of the visitors cannot be attributed to a weak St. Louis defense for Ribby Murphy, Schweppe and Peterson, halfbacks, with Vaughn and Hitchcock, fullbacks, rank with the best in the St. Louis Soccer League.

The visitors earned the applause of the crowd of 1500 on several occasions, not through any strained efforts at fancy exhibition but through the tact, neatness and skill that marked every effort. There was more than one generous round of hand-clapping from the stands to reward a fine individual thrust.

Alec Jackson a Brilliant Player.

While the entire team functioned so perfectly that it would be quite impossible to discover a real weakness, there were some especially brilliant individual performers. Alec Jackson, at outside right, was no disappointment. He knew how to elude a halfback and he crossed very neatly to his brother Walter Jackson, the center forward. Frank Vaughn, who does not put great faith in his injured knee, rose to great heights in often arresting the progress of this speedy and resourceful Alec Jackson.

Inside Left Maxwell was the most entertaining and one of the most dangerous men on the field. His dribbling was a revelation. He dribbled forward, fast. He and the other forwards shot from beyond the penalty line and this is the only thing that kept the score down. Bethlehem seemed to have no inclination for "roughing it" in the goal mouth and once, when Goaltender Diel was quite helpless with the ball in his arms, W. Jackson refrained from charging him and permitted him to throw the ball away.

The outstanding impressions left in the mind of a spectator were not at all complimentary to St. Louis. Our men appeared at a loss for a method of combating the Bethlehem combination. In short, St. Louis did not "cover." The halfbacks were forced to run on and on, trying hard to make up for a lack of team play by putting greater physical effort into the defense.

The one redeeming feature of the match was that in spite of the obvious superiority of Bethlehem, the local team was able to keep the score down to 3-2. It proves that St. Louis players score from less advantageous positions and with fewer opportunities than their adversaries.

Backs Covered Forwards Well.

In the backfield, Bethlehem seemed to work with as complete an understanding as in the forward line. Center Half Carnihan, a tall fellow, covered Allie Schwartz consistently and was still able to get his hand into the attack. He played well back and the fullbacks, spread far apart, covered the outside forwards, E. Dunn and Joe McCarthy. Jock Ferguson, left fullback, although a man of close to 40 years, had little trouble in smothering the efforts of the young and fast Eubie Dunn. This was a startling surprise to St. Louis fans for Dunn has heretofore been able to get away from any fullback.

Robert MacGregor, the right halfback, was especially remark-

TEN-U-VUS TEAM GETS 2940 TOTAL IN CITY HANDICAP TOURNAMENT

The Ten-u-vus team was the pace maker in last night's rolling in the city handicap bowling tournament on the Washington alleys, with a total of 2940, which included a handicap of 210 pins. Woodward with 580 and Krag, 567, were the individual stars for the quintet. The scratch games for the five were 954, 944 and 832.

Other scores last night were: Engineers No. 1, 2891; Johnson, Stephens & Shinkle, 2819; Peters Weatherbirds, 2797; General Superintendents, 2734; Benton Parks, 2722; Hall & Brown, 2694; Gems, 2683; Red Goose, 2669; Kissel Drugs, 2639; Berry Packard, 2609; Grape Bouquet, 2588; Florida Street, 2570; Office Boys, 2556; Passenger Receipts, 2490.

NEW SOONER SOUTHPAW SHUTS OUT NEBRASKA

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NORMAN, Ok., April 5.—The Oklahoma University Sooners won the second game of the series with the University of Nebraska baseball team at Norman today, when Bill Swischer, Sooner southpaw, blanked the visitors by a score of 3 to 0. The Sooners won Friday's game, 5 to 2.

It was Swischer's first time on the mound in college athletics and although he walked nine men, and 14 men were left on base for the Cornhuskers, the young southpaw coolly pitched baseball and held the Huskers at his mercy.

But three scattered hits were allowed the visitors and these came in three separate innings. At the same time, Rhodes, another southpaw, was handling himself capably against the Sooners. Rhodes allowed five hits and walked five men.

LONDOS RESTING UP IN HOTEL AT MEMPHIS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 5.—Jimmy Londos, Greek wrestler, is still confined to his bed at the Hotel Chisca. Ivan Linow started rough tactics in his match with Londos Thursday and finally slammed the Greek in the jaw, knocking him flat. The referee called a foul and gave the match to Londos.

Londos plans to take sufficient time for complete recovery and is at present undetermined as to when he will leave Memphis. He will go either to St. Louis or Chicago.

Sarazen and Havers Will Meet in Second Golf Match April 27

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—ARTHUR HAVERS, British open golf champion, who defeated Bobby Jones, American open champion, at Atlanta today, will meet Gene Sarazen, holder of the United States professional title, at Rye, N. Y., April 27. Sarazen won an unofficial world's professional championship from Havers earlier in the year.

No Fighter Can Be Entirely Crooked as Long as He Continues to Keep His Left Straight

National League Clubs Rely on New Pitchers and Shortstops to Bolster Flag Hopes This Year

Majority of Teams Will Take the Field With Comparatively Few Changes in Lineups—Giants Have Gained Hurling and Batting Power.

By Herman Wecke.

From present indications there will be few changes in the make-up of the various National League clubs when the season is officially opened April 15. Managers in the main will be forced to rely on veterans, although, as usual, some youngsters may stand the test of the training camp grind. Chief among the latter class of athletes are pitchers and shortstops.

For instance, the Giants have three high-priced pitchers — Dean, Baldwin and Maun—who are expected to strengthen the none too strong McGraw hurling staff. The Reds have Sheehan and May. The Braves point to Stryker and Yeargin; the Cubs especially to Jacobs, who was with the Cardinals some years ago; the Dodgers have Yarrison; the Pirates, Kremer, Yde and May, and the Phillies, Carlson, a former big leaguer.

At least five teams will start with new shortstops. The Pirates are counting on Glenn Wright, former A. A. star; Johnny Jones, in spite of his late reporting date, will open for the Dodgers; the Cubs will use Adams unless Hollocher makes an eleventh-hour decision to report; Manager Bancroft will be at the position for the Braves; Jackson for the Giants.

The above mentioned seem to be the outstanding changes during the spring training jaunt of the various clubs.

A brief resume of the various teams with the athletes who probably will be retained follows:

The Giants.

JOHN McGRAW, manager of the N. L. champions, will start the season with a strengthened outfield, a weaker infield, unless Travis Jackson develops into a real phenom; a better pitching staff and the oldest catching staff in captivity.

The acquisition of Southworth to play between Meusel and Young adds strength to the outer defense. Southworth is a great hitter and fielder. The Giant infield is uncertain. Jackson has not come through as expected and McGraw may be forced to do some shifting.

The addition of Wayland Dean, the $50,000 Louisville beauty, and several other costly recruits should help the pitching staff, which was none too strong a year ago. Dean, Maun and Baldwin have shown well in spring training.

McGraw's catchers are Gowdy, 34 years of age, with 14 years of service in the majors; Snyder, 30 years old, who has been up since 1914; Ainsmith, 34 years of age, 14 years in the big league.

The Giant roster:

PITCHERS—McQuillan, Ryan, Bentley, Dean, Baldwin, Maun, Bradshaw, Oeschger, Watson, Nehf, V. Barnes, Gearin.

CATCHERS—Ainsmith, Snyder, Gowdy.

INFIELDERS—Kelly, Frisch, Jackson, Groh, Terry, Lindstrom.

OUTFIELDERS—Southworth, Young, Meusel, O'Connell, Wilson.

The Reds.

ONE of the early favorites for the pennant. The Reds will have a new manager—Jack Hendricks—who was named because of the untimely death of Pat Moran this spring. Hendricks will start with a veteran club. Youngsters have no chance to break in as regulars.

The only newcomers on the hurling staff will be Sheehan, Mays and May. They are expected to aid the stars the team owned a year ago. Wingo and Hargrave will again do the catching.

Daubert, Bohne, Caveney and Pinelli will be the regulars in the infield and Burns, Roush and Duncan in the outfield.

The players Hendricks will rely on to beat out the Giants:

PITCHERS—Luque, Donohue, Rixey, Benton, Mays, Sheehan, May, Harris and McQuaid.

CATCHERS—Hargrave, Wingo and Sandberg.

INFIELDERS—Daubert, Bohne, Caveney, Pinelli, Fonseca and Fowler.

OUTFIELDERS — Burns, Roush, Duncan, Pick and Harper.

Hendricks is counting heavily on Sheehan and May. Both have shown well in spring games, while Pick has been hitting hard and may force the regulars to hustle to remain in the outfield.

The Pirates.

WHEN the Pittsburg Pirates start the 1924 campaign against the Cincinnati Reds, there will be at least one newcomer in the batting order. This athlete will be Glenn Wright, former star shortstop of the Kansas City club. Wright will play in Maranville's old position, while the Rabbit has been shifted to second. Other additions to the club are Kremer, Yde and May, pitchers. All three have made good showings in the spring training trip.

Two infielders in addition to Wright will without a doubt be carried for a time. They are Moore and Barnes. Alley will be retained as catcher and Luce and Cuyler loom up as real candidates for outfield berths.

The Pittsburg roster:

PITCHERS—Cooper, Morrison, Adams, Meadows, Kremer, Yde, May, Stone, Demarest, Steinecder.

CATCHERS—Schmidt, Gooch, Mattox, Alley.

INFIELDERS—Grimm, Maranville, Wright, Traynor, Moore, Ens, Rawlings, Barnes and Adams.

OUTFIELDERS—Carey, Bigbee, Barnhart, Luce, Cuyler, Mueller.

The Cubs.

BILL KILLEFER, manager of the Cubs, right now has one real weak spot in his 1924 machine. The gap that must be filled is at shortstop. Charles Hollocher, St. Louis boy, is still out of the fold and Adams, who played after Hollocher left the club in 1923 is again at the position. But Adams is no Hollocher.

The Cubs will start with a veteran outfield, the catchers will be the same, while the pitching staff seems to have been strengthened by the addition of Jacobs, Blake, Pierce, Bush and Dumovich. All have shown well in practice. Barrett and Cotter, infielders, and Grigsby, an outfielder, have shown enough to warrant their retention.

The 1924 Cubs:

PITCHERS—Alexander, Aldridge, Kaufman, Keen, Jacobs, Wheeler, Bush, Blake, Dumovich, Pierce and Osborn.

CATCHERS—O'Farrell, Hartnett and Churry.

INFIELDERS — Friberg, Adams, Grantham, Grimes, Barrett, Vogel, Tungeon, Cotter and Hollocher, if he reports.

OUTFIELDERS—Statz, Miller, Heathcote and Grigsby.

The Braves.

DAVID BANCROFT, former star shortstop of the Phillies and Giants, will this season make his debut as a major league manager. Bancroft takes over the Boston Braves, tailenders of 1923. If anything, Bancroft's club will be improved. At least one gap—that at shortstop—will be filled satisfactorily, with Bancroft himself playing the position.

Of course, the Braves lost Southworth, a heavy hitter, but in his place they obtained Stengel and Cunningham, two good meadowmen. Hitting strength also was added when Tierney was obtained from the Phillies. Third base is the weak spot. Efforts to obtain Stock from the Cardinals were unsuccessful. However, Smith, who played short for a time last year, and Kelleher, have been doing satisfactory work in the training camp battles and unless another is obtained, one will start at the position.

The Braves are well supplied with catchers. They have O'Neil and Smith as regulars, with Phillips to help out. Three of the team's star hurlers, Genewich, Benton and McNamara, youngsters a year ago, should be improved flingers. But Bancroft's hurling staff as a whole is a question mark. In other places, except at third his club looks improved, but he must get some pitching strength. Yeargin and Stryker have been doing well in the South.

The Braves roster:

PITCHERS—Marquard, Cooney, Barnes, Benton, Genewich, McNamara, Stryker, Yeargin, Lucas and Batchelder.

CATCHERS — O'Neil, Smith and Phillips.

INFIELDERS—Bancroft, McInnis, [illegible], [illegible], [illegible]er, and Padgett.

OUTFIELDERS — Stengel, Cunningham, Nixon, Felix, Cruise and Bagwell.

The Dodgers.

WILBERT ROBINSON, the rotund manager of the Brooklyn club, faces a real task this season. Robinson, on records, has pitchers, catchers and an outfield. But his infield is something else again. Johnny Jones, who cost $25,000, reported only recently. He is scheduled to play short. There is a gap at third base that must be filled and there is another at second.

Robinson has three great pitchers in Grimes, Vance and Ruether. In addition he has Dickerman and Decatur, two right-handers, who hurled good ball last season. Rube Yarrison is the best among the youngsters. In fact, he is counted upon as a regular.

There are four catchers—Deberry, Taylor, Hargreaves and Gonzales. Robby is trying to peddle one for a third sacker. Fournier will play first; Johnston or Klugman at second; Jones short and High or Johnston third. Wheat, Neis (unless he makes good his threat to quit) and Griffith will be the outfield regulars. Simpson, a home-run hitter in the Eastern League a year ago, will remain with the team. He will alternate in right field with Griffith if he does not oust Tommy entirely before the season has gone far.

The team's roster:

PITCHERS—Grimes, Vance, Ruether, Dickerman, Decatur, Henry, Yarrison, Schreiber, McPhee and Green.

CATCHERS—Deberry, Taylor, Hargreaves and Gonzales.

INFIELDERS Fournier, Johnston, Jones, High, Klugman, Silverman.

OUTFIELDERS—Wheat, Neis, Griffith, Bailey and Simpson.

The Phillies.

ART FLETCHER, starting his second season as manager of the hopeless" Phillies, faces another serious proposition. Fletcher has a good outfield with Walker, Williams and Powell or Mokan. He has one of the best young catchers in the N. L. in Henline. He has one real pitcher—Jimmy Ring. And right there the assets of the club end.

The Collinsville boy will have Walter Holke at first; Ford should be an improvement over Parkinson at second; Sand, an erratic fielder, will again be at short. But third base is an uncertainty. Helgeth and Wrightstone are the leading candidates.

In addition to Ring, Fletcher's hurling staff will be made up of cast-offs, including Mitchell, the left-handed spitballer; Couch, Glazner, Hamilton and Carlson, who came back from the Western League. Others likely to remain on the staff are Betts, Bishop, Hubbell, Weinert and Pinto.

The Phillie roster:

PITCHERS — Ring, Couch, Mitchell, Glazner, Carlson, Betts, Hubbell, Weinert, Pinto, Hamilton.

CATCHERS—Henline, Wilson and Wendell.

INFIELDERS — Holke, Ford, Saml, Parkinson, Helgeth, Woehrs, Wrightstone.

OUTFIELDERS — Williams, Walker, Powell, Mokan and Lee.

Helgeth and Carlson have made the best impression among the few rookies taken South by the Phillies this spring.

N. L. to Put Ban On Spring Games

Legislation Against Clubs of Same League Playing Predicted by Heydler.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Legislation against National League teams playing each other on their Southern training trips was predicted today by President John A. Heydler, who has just returned from a tour of Florida camps.

"The managers feel that they should have more games between their regulars and their Yannigans," said Heydler. "Personally, I feel that exhibition games within the league is not a good practice. There was once a rule against this but it was abrogated when several National League teams in the same locality could not find other opponents. It is my opinion that a rule forbidding it hereafter will be brought up at the next league meeting.

"The public forms some erroneous impressions from these games. The fans judge solely by the score. Some managers bring their teams along slowly and other drive their clubs harder. The games really mean nothing at all. The main object of a training trip is to get a line on the youngsters and get the veterans in condition."

The National League head also commented on the number of college men now seeking berths on National League teams.

"I was very much impressed by the fine grade of young men gathered in these baseball camps from all over the country. I found more college men there this year than we ever dreamed of in the old days of baseball."

Houston Seeks Injunction.

HOUSTON, Tex., April 5.—Houston baseball club owners will seek an injunction to restrain Harry Strong from playing with the Racine club of the Midwest League if Strong, who recently jumped a local contract, appears in a Racine uniform. Strong was bought by Houston from Beaumont, for several thousand dollars.

Firpo Insists He Stopped Willard In Seven Instead of Eight Rounds

Wild Bull of Pampas, Telling of Experiences, Asserts Timekeepers, Referee and Judges Made Mistake.

Mexican Fight Fans Saw No Reason Why Boxers Should Not Get Wet and Insisted Bout Be Held in Downpour.

By Luis Angel Firpo
(As Told by Alfred Mayer.)

THIS is the third of the series telling of Luis Angel Firpo's experiences in America. It tells of his trips to Havana and Mexico for bouts with Italian Jack Herman and Jim Hibbard as well as his match with Jess Willard, which made the Wild Bull of the Pampas a wealthy man.

CHAPTER III.
Arrival at Havana, Cuba.

(Copyright, 1924.)

WHILE there may have existed some doubt in the minds of some sport followers as to the ability of Firpo, there was none so far as the Cubans were concerned. He was regarded as invincible and preparations of a most elaborate nature were made to receive him. Havana declared a national holiday when Firpo came.

A few days after our arrival came Joe White, Firpo's opponent. White had boxed a few rounds with Firpo in New York and he was fully convinced he could stop the South American. The Cubans, while convinced no man living could defeat Firpo, nevertheless gave White a fine reception. Bands were on hand to meet him.

White, warned about overtraining, announced after his first day's training that he would box on the next day and that the toughest sparring partners were to be provided for him. He added he didn't care what color they were. A negro lightweight who wasn't particularly "tough" was chosen to box with White. The men wore 16-ounce gloves. They had been boxing for about two minutes when suddenly the negro caught White with a right hook to the jaw and knocked him out.

There was a wild rush to the telephone to endeavor to get Rickard to find another opponent to come to Cuba to meet Firpo. After much negotiation, Italian Jack Herman was persuaded to come. He was stopped in the third round.

"Rabbit Punch" Used.

HERMAN was knocked out with a "rabbit punch" as he lay huddled on the floor. His seconds were vainly trying to bring him to. Firpo sat in his corner watching their efforts. Suddenly he rose, picked up a bucket of water and emptied it all over Herman. This brought him to. Then Firpo picked him up as if he had been a baby and carried him to his corner.

The four-day journey from Havana to Vera Cruz was spent playing poker. Firpo won most of the way across and was in excellent spirits when we reached Vera Cruz.

Firpo had several thrills in Mexico. The first came when we reached Esperanza. Firpo wanted to get out and stretch his legs, but the conductor at once locked the doors as both ends of the Pullman car. He explained that as soon as a station of importance was reached the doors were locked, as otherwise the company couldn't be responsible for the safety of the passengers' baggage.

Firpo's fight at Mexico City against Jim Hibbard of Buffalo was promoted by De Sogurola, an operatic tenor, who never before had promoted a fight.

Upon our arrival at Mexico City we were driven to the hotel and Sogurola introduced Firpo to Kid Savage, Sam Langford, Jim Tracy and Fireman Jim Flynn. All these boxers, who once had been more or less famous, were now endeavoring to earn a livelihood in Mexico. Firpo solemnly shook hands with all of them, then turning to me remarked: "This place seems to be a sanatorium for retired fighters. I wonder if I'll end my days here."

Small Crowd Attends.

OWING to the postponement of Firpo's match at Havana, our stay in Mexico was very short. There was a clause in Firpo's contract with Sogurola that in the event of rain the match would be postponed one week. Sogurola hoped it would rain so that the match would be postponed and he would have more time to advertise it.

It did rain; in fact, it poured, but the match wasn't postponed. Lady luck was certainly against Sogurola. The fight was held in "La Plaza de Toros," probably the most beautiful bull ring in the world. Tremendous preparations were made. Police, soldiers and firemen were on hand. Altogether they numbered more than a thousand strong, to keep order among a crowd which did not exceed 5000.

Every one of the 5000 present was armed to the teeth. Spectators arrived at the ringside with double belts of cartridges and two revolvers.

ON the morning of the bout the chief of police came to the hotel and told me he understood I would be at the ringside to cable news to South American newspapers. He was very friendly and told me it frequently happened that spectators began shooting when they were dissatisfied, and he had always found that under the ring was the safest place. I made a mental note of the advice and determined to follow it should the occasion arise.

Spectators Have Say.

AT 3 o'clock the heavens seemed to open and it poured; the ring was soon flooded and resembled a lake. We were convinced the fight couldn't be held. I saw Sogurola in the distance. He seemed to be jubilant. Presently the representative of the City Council stepped into the ring and announced that because of the rain the fight would be postponed to the following Sunday.

We believed this to be final, but we had reckoned without the public. Every one by this time was thoroughly wet, and they saw no reason why the boxers shouldn't get wet. The crowd refused to move, became very ugly and threatened to wreck everything unless the fight went on immediately. Meanwhile, President Obregon sat in his box and awaited developments.

The members of the City Council must have been used to these demonstrations, and no doubt believed that discretion was the better part of valor. So they ordered the fight to proceed. Sogurola was in tears. The fight was soon over. Two rounds and Hibbard was carried to his corner. Prize fighting is not popular in Mexico. It is considered cruel. From a financial point of view, the fight was a total failure.

Immediately upon his return to New York from Mexico, Firpo went into training for his match with Jess Willard. Less than two weeks remained to train. Firpo agreed to depart for de Forest's training quarters at Allenhurst, although the South American champion detested the country.

Firpo Is Great Eater.

DE FOREST, who has been wonderfully successful in training boxers, believed that Firpo should be trained like other men. Perhaps de Forest was right and perhaps he was not, but it is obvious that Firpo is a very peculiar man and that peculiar methods of training must be adopted in his case. Firpo does about everything that an athlete shouldn't do, yet he thrives on it and every doctor who has examined him has declared him to be a perfect physical marvel.

Let us take Firpo's meals as an example. Firpo, like most of the Latins, is a tremendous meat eater. For lunch he will eat perhaps a can of sardines with some fruit to begin with, then an enormous steak with several fried eggs on top of it, then more fruit and tea. He seldom eats vegetables, not even potatoes, yet he never has known a day's illness in his life and doesn't even know what a headache is.

Firpo eats a great deal whenever he feels hungry, he pays no attention to rules or regulations and doesn't even care what time of day it is. When he is hungry he eats, whether it is 1 o'clock or 5. He is now nearly 29 years old and he has done that all of his life, therefore it is his contention and that of many others that if he keeps well on this table fare it should be continued.

After meals Firpo lies down and sleeps, sometimes an hour, sometimes more. He takes exercise when he feels like it and doesn't abide by any set rule. While training for an important match he does road work if he feels like it. It all depends upon whether or not the spirit moves him. It will, therefore, be readily understood that Firpo's methods of training and those of de Forest clashed. They clashed to such an extent that the Willard match was the last one de Forest trained Firpo for. Many have criticised Firpo for not taking de Forest as his trainer for the Dempsey match, but Firpo's methods of training for that memorable fight were absolutely unique and will be dealt with later.

Everybody Was Wrong.

"I WILL knock out Willard in seven rounds," Firpo said just before the match. He did it in eight but to this day Firpo insists he won in seven and that the timekeeper, referee and judges were wrong and did not keep track of the number of rounds.

This match was held at Boyle's Thirty Acres, made famous by the Dempsey-Carpentier match. Firpo was in great physical shape but not in such fine condition as he was for the McAuliffe fight. In fact, I have never seen him in that condition since. If he ever can get in the same physical condition again Firpo will be a hard man to beat. Even Dempsey will have his hands full next time they meet.

Firpo's victory over Willard made him a rich man. I do not know whether Firpo was more pleased over the fact that he had won than over the fact that he never again would be a "vagabond."

"I guess I need never worry again," Firpo said afterwards. "Never again will I have to sell boxing gloves to the kids of Argentina and Chile to make a living. Nor will I have to hobo through South America to get fights. My success has been rapid since it began, but it was many years before it decided to start. I was champion of South America when I came to America and in o[illegible] become champion I had to cross the Andes on foot because I did not have enough money to reach Santiago, Chili, where the championship was to be held. I crossed in midwinter; I fell in snowdrifts, I slid down mountain sides to make the going easier; and all that to win the championship of South America and a purse of $65 in American money. I guess those days are gone and I am not sorry."

(The fourth article of the Firpo series will appear in next Sunday's Post-Dispatch.)

COLLEGE TITLE TRACK MEET TO BE HELD IN MAY

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 5.—A. C. Bickford, Harvard track manager, today received definite assurances from 13 of the 23 members of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. that they would enter teams in the forty-eighth annual championship track meet at the Harvard Stadium on May 30 and 31.

They are Colgate, New York University, Mass. Institute of Technology, Amherst, Boston College, Georgetown, University of Pennsylvania, Princeton, Williams, Syracuse, Yale, Bates and Columbia. Nearly all the other colleges in the association are expected to compete.

Lane Tech Wins Central States Swimming Title

Four Records Shattered in High School Tank Meet in Washington U. Pool.

Scoring four firsts and placing in every event in which they qualified, swimmers from Lane Tech of Chicago, won the third annual Central Mississippi Valley championship meet in Wilson Pool, Washington University, last night with a total of 35 points, almost double the total counted by Louisville Male High School. The Louisville paddlers counted 18 points.

Four records went to the boards in the competition. Lane Tech set a new record of 1:48 1-5 against the old standard of 1:50 3-10 in winning the 200-yard relay. Connie Oker, who formed a "one-man team" from Parker High School of Chicago, negotiated the 50-yard free style in 26 1-5 seconds, one second faster than the old mark.

The 100-yard breast stroke mark suffered badly, when W. W. Kratz of Louisville swam the distance in the exceptionally fast time of 1:15 5-10. This figure cut 13 seconds off the old standard. The other mark to fall was in the plunge for distance which Lavielle of Louisville won with 64 feet against the old figure of 60½ feet.

Calbath's Driving Features.

In addition to winning the 50, Oker, who landed fifth place for his team, with 10 points, captured the 100-yard back stroke in 1:09 9-10, running away from his field. There is no standing record for this event in a 75-yard pool. Capt. Erwin Crothers of Lane won the 220 and 100 yard swims and swam on the relay team, thereby gaining top scoring honors.

One of the features was the fancy diving of Walter Colbath of Lane Tech, who holds the national interscholastic championship. Colbath gave several exhibitions and drew rounds of applause from the 600 persons present for the meet.

Point scorers in addition to Lane and Louisville were as follows: Western M. A., 13; Principia, 11; Parker High, Chicago, 10; Urbana, Ill., 5; Yeatman, 3; Cleveland, 2. Central and Maplewood failed to score a point.

iker Athletes Easily Win Meet From Vanderbilt re Was 85 to 50, Although Accidents Cost Washington Men Two Firsts.

MITCHELL UNFORTUNATE

ck Pole Vaulter Fails to Warm Up With Others and Does Not Qualify.

By Arthur Schneff.

The Washington University Pikers won their first outdoor track meet of the season by defeating the Commodores of Vanderbilt University in an intersectional meet at Francis Field yesterday afternoon. The score was 85 to 50.

Although the Pikers failed to capture two events they had expected to win, notably the high hurdles and the pole vault, the team coached by George Rider showed general superiority and had little difficulty in winning first place in eleven of the sixteen events on the program. The Pikers failed to place in only one event, the pole vault.

The veterans Ralph Blanchard and Floyd Andewert led the Piker scorers with 10 points each. Andewert won the 100 and 220 yard dashes in addition to running on the winning half-mile relay team. His time for the century dash was 9 9-10 seconds.

Blanchard Knocks Down Hurdles.

Blanchard was disqualified in the 120 yard high hurdles for knocking over too many of the sticks, but he won the low hurdles and the broad jump. He also ran on the half mile relay combination.

Captain Bier of Washington was another important factor in the Piker triumph. Bier, who owns the Missouri Valley 440 title, wone that event and played a prominent part in helping the Pikers win both relay races. In running fourth on the mile relay team Bier had to overcome a lead in order to give Washington victory.

Fred Hageman, who won the high jump for Washington with a leap of 6 feet, and Shirley Capps who won the mile race for the Pikers and placed second in the two-mile run were also important contributors to the day's triumph.

The outstanding stars of the Commodores were Rountree and Kirkes. Rountree scored 9 points for his team mates and Kirkes 8, each man placing in three events. Rountree won the Javelin throw, placed second in the 100-yard dash and third in the 220. Kirkes took second place in the high hurdles and pole vault and placed third in the high jump.

Gentry Runs Fine Race.

One of the most spectacular races of the day was the performance of Gentry, who won the two-mile race for Vanderbilt. He broke loose with a brilliant sprint to overcome his two Piker rivals and won by a comfortable margin. Over-confidence probably cost Mitchell, Piker pole-vaulter, several points. Mitchell, who usually vaults better than 12 feet was so confident of placing that he did not start vaulting until the bar was placed at 11 feet.

Not having warmed up gradually he was unable to make the height and hence failed to qualify. Had he crossed the bar at any height at all he would have placed, since there were only three men entered in the event.

Billikens to Rely On These Brothers In Washington Game

VERNON BRADBURN

WILLIAM BRADBURN

BROWNS GET ONLY FIVE HITS BUT WIN FROM DALLAS, 3 TO 2

effective, though they were too wild for comfort. Danforth walked five men and hit one in six innings while Davis gave two passes in three. Dallas scored both its runs off Danforth, getting six of their hits off the left-hander. Danforth struck out six men. Davis had two strike-outs. Dixie looked strong out there and the Browns were enthusiastic over his ability to bear down so early in the season. However, he was fild, being down to virtually every batter.

Vache Scores First Run.

Dallas scored a run in the second inning when Vache, last spring a Brownie, doubled to center and scored on Segrist's single to left. The other Dallas run was scored in the fourth. Griffin singled, Segrist struck out and Lovelace walked. Lingle scratched a single past third, filling the bases and Griffin scored while McManus was throwing out Bryan.

Four men tried to steal on Severeid and he caught three of them. His throw on the fourth was low, or he would have had his man. Severeid did great work behind the bat, stopping numerous potential wild pitches with Dallas runners in scoring position.

Elam Vangilder and Herschel Bennett departed for Tulsa tonight to receive medical treatment pending the arrival of the Browns there.

Physicians have advised an operation on Vangilder's hand. The palm of the right hand was bruised by a fungo bat and became infected. Chick Shorten of the Minneapolis club was in Dallas today suffering from exactly the same trouble. Chick dallied with the injury until the bone became infected and was in the hospital for a week and will be unable to play for two more weeks.

McManus Sprains Ankle.

Vangilder wanted to go to St. Louis to receive treatment from Dr. Robert Hyland, club physician, but the Tulsa club asked that Vangilder pitch a game there if possible and Vangilder was ordered to go to Tulsa for medical treatment. He already has had three doctors working on his hand and the Tulsa carver will be number four.

Marty McManus sprained his ankle sliding into second base in the fourth inning today and may be given a rest tomorrow afternoon. In that case Gene Robertson, who relieved him this afternoon, will play second for the Browns.

Shocker and Voigt will pitch for the Brownies in the second game with Dallas. Shocker will be permitted to work six or seven innings.

PRINCETON'S FAVORITE ROWING SHELL GOES TO BOTTOM OF LAKE

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 5.—Princeton University's favorite rowing shell, which has won many victories for the Tigers, was wrecked and the varsity crew plunged into Lake Carnegie yesterday when it struck a snag during practice.

The shell was ripped from end to end and sank immediately. The crew swam ashore.

The wrecked boat was Princeton's prize craft, having carried Heinie Leh and his crew to a championship over Yale, Harvard and the Navy in 1921. Last season's only Tiger victory, over Harvard, was made in the same shell.

Jones Loses to Havers 2 Up in 36-Hole Match

U. S. Open Champion's Weak Putting Costly in "Unofficial" World Title Clash.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 5.—Great Britain triumphed over the United States in an unofficial golf match for the world's championship here today when Arthur Havers, British open champion, defeated Bobby Jones, youthful American open title holder, 2 up and 1 to play on the links of the East Lake Country Club.

Jones, playing on his home course, fought valiently for the match, but in the final holes of the battle was unable to overcome the commanding lead which Havers piled up due to Bobby's erratic start. Playing consistent golf throughout, although slightly outdriven by his opponent, Havers never once was headed after he had taken the lead.

Only once during the entire 36 holes did Jones show a flash of his accustomed brilliance. That was on the twenty-eighth, when by masterful approach and putting, he won the hole with a "birdie" three and cut down Havers' lead to three up. He took the next with a neat par three, held his opponent to halves on the next three holes, and then made another stride toward victory by winning the thirty-third, 5 and 7.

Jones' Putting Weak.

Breathless, the gallery of more than 700 persons, watched him halve the next hole, only to see him lose the thirty-fifth, 5 and 4, when victory would have made the match all square and given him a chance for international honors.

The match, played most of the time in a drizzle of rain, furnished some of the most spectacular golf ever seen on a local course. Both men made tremendous drives consistently, despite the soggy condition of the ground and displayed remarkable ability in recovering from bad lies.

Jones was weakest in putting. Several times he dubbed easy shots which might have won him the match.

The morning round began in mediocre fashion with neither player approaching championship stride. Havers took the second hole with a par 3 after the first had been halved, but lost the next one to Jones. The Englishman again gained the lead on the fifth by taking the hole, 5 and 7, and increased it on the seventh, which he won with a birdie 3 to Jones' 4.

Havers 2 Up After First 18.

Twice Jones reduced the lead, but each time Havers came back with another victory and at one time had the Atlanta youth 4 down. The round ended with Havers 2 up, six of the 18 holes being halved.

Bobby entered the afternoon round wearing a blinding new pair of hose, but they served him badly, for the British champion took the nineteenth, 4 and 5, and held Jones to halves for the next three holes.

On the twenty-third, Jones holed out in par 5 and took the hole when Havers missed a 6-foot putt. Havers won the next two due to faulty niblick and mashie work on the part of the American champion. They halved the next two and made the turn with the English title holder 4 up.

Jones won the next two holes, one with a birdie 3; they halved the next three and from that point on, the match was hotly contested.

Havers Caught in Trap.

The climax came on the thirty-third when Havers got caught in three unsuccessful efforts to emerge from traps at the green and finally conceded the hole to the Atlanta youth, 5 and 7. That left Jones 1 down and it seemed certain that he was destined to overcome his opponent's lead.

Despite his ill-luck in landing in a 6-foot trap on the thirty-fourth, Jones recovered with a remarkable pitch shot and placed his ball within three feet of the cup. With a chance to square the match, he dubbed the easy putt and halved the hole in 5. The Englishman won the thirty-fifth hole and the match with a neat par 4.

ALEKHINE AND MAROCZY DRAW IN CHESS TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Alexander Alekhine of Russia drew with Geza Maroczy of Hungary after 33 moves in the first completed game of the fourteenth round of the International chess tournament which was resumed today.

Eldfin Bogoljubow of Latvia announced that he would resign his game with Dr. Lasker of Germany, adjourned last Thursday.

Jose R. Capablanca of Cuba, who dethroned Dr. Emanuel Lasker of Germany as world's chess champion in 1921, tonight inflicted upon the latter his first defeat of the International chess tournament in 50 moves.

Dr. Savielly Tartakower of Austria won from Frank Marshall of New York in 61 moves.

Bogoljubow won from Ed Lasker of Chicago in 57 moves.

Pikers to Send Strong Quint Against Billikens Thursday

Fine Defensive Combination Available Despite Probable Loss of Minner and Wagner—St. Louis U. Will Lose Services of Eggler—High School Stars Start Training.

A completely changed Piker lineup will represent Washington University in its basketball game with the St. Louis U. Billikens at the Coliseum, Thursday night, for the benefit of the St. Louis Olympic Fund. Injuries and illness have forced Coach Don White to make radical changes in his combination. Jack Minner, former captain of the team and star forward, will positively be unable to play.

Jack injured his ankle in the University of Kansas game and the Pikers' scoring ace has been limping ever since. It also seems more than likely that Fritz Wagener, the other regular forward, will not be available. Wagener underwent an operation several weeks ago and he believes he has not recovered sufficiently to take any chances.

The absence of these two players has necessitated several changes; but in view of the general strength of the Piker squad the performance of the new combination is not expected to be a weak one. Wiley Cox, recently elected captain, will be moved from his regular place at running guard to a forward position. Cox is fast, shifty and a good shot, and he will probably be entirely at home in his new birth.

Reid a Sparta High Star.

The other forward position will be held by either "Pie" Reid or Winkler. Reid was formerly a star on the Sparta (Ill.) high school team and has shown impressively in practice. Winkler played in a number of conference games with the Pikers this year.

Russ Seago, who followed Minner as a scoring star, will play his regular position at center. This big fellow has been going at a fast clip in the recent workouts. The rest since the regular season ended seems to have done him much good and he will be able to carry his share of the burden in the coming struggle. "Red" Manning, who won his letter this year at center and forward, will also be ready to handle the tip-off if necessary.

Lyle to Replace Cox.

Paul Weil, the Pikers' star back-guard, will be used at his regular position, but his running mate will be Martin Lyle, who will take Cox's place at running guard. Lyle has won his letter playing at forward and guard for the Pikers, so Coach White is not experimenting with the little fellow.

This new combination, although possibly weaker than the regular outfit in scoring punch, gives the impression of a better team on the defensive.

The fact that several members of the basketball squad are also participating in baseball, spring football and track practice has made it especially hard to bring out a representative squad at Washington at this time.

St. Louis University players have been working hard and the team is in its best form, except for the absence of Eggler. The Billikens are out to win and interest of the students is shown by a request of Chairman McMahon that half the seats be set aside for St. Louis U.

Fenenga Handling High Five.

The high school teams of St. Louis and St. Louis County, announced above, promise almost as interesting a setto for the Olympic fund honors as the varsity game. Coach Fenenga of Cleveland, in charge of the all-star St. Louis high squad, will work his men every day next week, while the county boys also will endeavor to develop some team play.

The committee incharge of raising the St. Louis quota for the Olympic fund announces that tickets for the games can be obtained at Spauldings or Leacocks sporting goods houses. Prices will be $3 for box seats, $1 for reserved seats and 50 cents for balcony seats.

Special prices will be given high school students. They will be able to obtain reserved seats for 75 cents and balcony seats for 40 cents. These student tickets can be obtained only at the Grand Central theater box office between the hours of 3 and 6 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. They will not be sold downtown.

The committee announced that invitations had been sent to Gov. Hyde, Mayor Kiel, Chancellor Hadley of Washington University and Assistant Chancellor Throot; Rev. W. F. Robinson of St. Louis University and Archbishop J. J. Glennon and J. J. Maddox, superintendent of public schools.

TEAM WORK OF EASTERN SOCCER ELEVEN BAFFLES LOCAL PROFESSIONALS

able in passing the ball with his head. There was hardly an occasion when he did not beat his opponent on a high ball and he always had direction on his passes.

The passing of the visiting halfbacks was a lesson in itself to the local players who have not given much attention to this very essential achievement. There was no kicking over the forwards' heads by Bethlehem backs.

All-Stars Lead in First Half.

St. Louis performed in a creditable manner in the first half and came off the field with a 1-0 advantage. The goal was scored after 34 minutes of play by Joe McCarthy who met the ball with his right foot as it was deflected from the foot of a defender. The ball had been worked through center by Ballam and Schwarz.

In this first period Walter Jackson headed a cross from Terris against the St. Louis goal upright and Goldie also hit the goal post. Diel, in goal for the home boys played one of the best games of his career and at times seemed invincible. His work far outshone Highfield's but, of course, his opportunities to handle the ball were more numerous than were his rival's.

After three minutes of the second half Maxwell drove through a long shot after Schweppe had cleared a corner kick with his head. Schweppe was hit in the eye in heading the ball away and could not follow up the bouncing ball. Maxwell, therefore, was open when he shot.

Hitchcock Scores for Bethlehem.

A minute later A. Jackson tried a long, diagonal shot which was destined to go out for a goal kick. Fullback Hitchcock, attempting to clear it, booted the ball into his own goal, giving Bethlehem a one-goal advantage.

A third goal went to the visitors a few minutes later when Alec Jackson, dribbling the ball from his outside right position to center forward cut loose with a tremendous shot from outside the penalty line and placed the ball in the upper corner of the net.

St. Louis brought its total to 2 when Bergin, following up a pass from Joe McCarthy, blocked Jock Ferguson's kick and drove the ball through Highfield's hands.

Second Game Today.

Manager Willie Foley of the Hoovers, a member of the committee which selected the St. Louis teams, said last night that Jimmy Dunn would not play at center forward today and that Buddy Brengel will appear there. Dunn is due to depart for a baseball camp early this week. Bethlehem will stand pat unless some of the players request a rest.

The second game of the exhibition series will be played this afternoon at High School Field, starting at 3 o'clock.

The teams will line up as follows:

Bethlehem	Position	St. Louis
Highfield	Goal	Bartnett
Young	Right Full	Fitzgerald
J. Ferguson	Left Full	Brady
MacGregor	Right Half	Hennessey
Carnihan	Center Half	Burke
Terris	Left Half	Oster
A. Jackson	Outside Left	McHenry
Granger	Inside Left	Harris
W. Jackson	Center	Brengel
Maxwell	Inside Right	Brannigan
Goldie	Outside Right	Fitzgerald

Referee — McCabe (Philadelphia). Linesmen—P. Kavanaugh and J. Finnegan. Time of halves 45 minutes.

KINSELLA RETAINS SQUASH TENNIS TITLE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Walter Kinsella of New York successfully defended his title as American squash tennis champion today when he defeated William Ganley of Rye, N. Y., in the final match of the national open championship, 15-10, 15-3, 15-0.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Pikeway Varsity Ties Alumni, 3-3

Levy Doubles With Two On in Ninth, Give Regulars Two Tallies.

The Pikeway rebuilt baseball team of 1924 had about tossed in the towel, in surrender to the Alumni, after the eighth inning of the game at Francis Field, yesterday afternoon. The score stood 3 to 1 for the Old Timers and Lyon had been pitching well.

Then the scene shifted. Two men worked their way to base and then Levy whacked out a double that drove the tying runs across the plate. Then Lyon tightened up and the scoring ended.

Honor was saved, however.

It was the first practice game of the season and the ambitious Pikers did not want to lose it. Their showing was creditable, as the Alumni combination was a strong one with Marquard and Lyon doing the hurling.

Slingman and Levy pitched for varsity and were effective after the first two innings. Slingman was off to a weak start and in the first two periods all the alumni runs were scored. After that he was airtight.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9		T.	H.	E.

The lineups were:

"Take Turf on All Iron Shots," Sarazen Says

"But Don't Dig Divots Big Enough to Jump Into," Champion Warns.

By Gene Sarazen,

Professional Golf Champion of America.

(Copyright, 1924.)

While playing in a match in Miami recently in which former Gov. Cox of Ohio was a participant I was asked this question by one of the party: "On which shots, Sarazen, are you supposed to take turf?"

"That depends largely on the kind of soil or fairway on which you are playing," I answered. "The fairways of most of the Florida courses are of a sandy nature and it is well to play the ball as cleanly as possible. If you attempt to take turf you are apt to fluff the shot, because the club-head gets through too quickly and comes up underneath the ball."

Ordinarily, however, one ought to take turf in playing all iron, shots up to the chip or the short approach. And in this respect it is well to take more turf with the mashie than with the mid-iron.

Strike on Down Stroke.

Of course, some players overdo the thing and in playing an iron dig divots deep enough to climb into. Harry Vardon contends the shot can be played quite as well without taking any turf, and what is more he puts this into practice. But it must be remembered that Vardon has a very upright swing, rather unusual and different from any other, and with that kind of stroke he can play the shot successfully without the aid of turf.

But in order to keep the ball straight and the shot firm it is quite necessary that turf be taken with the irons. In fact it would be almost impossible to play a shot firmly without some turf.

On all good shots, as I have stated before, the ball is struck on the down stroke. The forearms and wrists are very firm and rigid and when the club-head comes in contact with the ball it is traveling at top speed. There is no chance then to turn the club-head up and away from the natural line of flight. Instead you swing the club through in its natural arc, and, of course, you are bound to cut through the turf.

No Divots on Approaches.

The blade of the mashie being wider than that of the mid-iron, there is naturally a bigger divot taken. And with the mashie-niblick, provided you play the shot properly, you will take more turf than with the mashie.

But on short approaches or chip shots there is more play in the wrists. They are more flexible on this kind of shot; in fact the wrists are called into play more than the forearms.

A short chip, for example, is more of a click of the wrists than it is a stroke of the forearms. I don't mean that the wrists or the arms should be held loosely, but firmness can be obtained without taking turf, because the stroke is considerably shorter.

I learned long ago in watching the stars and in practice that better results are obtained by punching the ball than by merely hitting it. A drive or a brassie shot is more of a sweep than a hit and with the wood it is proper to allow the arms to do most of the work and to swing quite freely.

But with the irons, in my own case at least, I am always striving for firmness and direction. Consequently I use as short a back-swing as possible, with the elbows held close to the body and the forearms very stiff. With this kind of stroke there is no wabbling when the club-head comes in contact with the ball, and because I keep my left arm practically straight from the start to the finish of the stroke I am bound to take turf as the club-head travels through in a natural arc.

Then, on short approaches, when I am standing well over the ball the wrists are more flexible and I am able to bring off the shot without digging divots.

Illinois U. Honorary Athletic Society to Punish Professionals

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 5.

FORFEITURE of membership in "Tribe of Illini," honorary athletic society, will hereafter be the penalty meted out to any athlete who attempts to play on a University of Illinois athletic team after having been guilty of professionalism. The resolution as passed recommended to the athletic association that any such athlete be deprived of any prizes or emblems awarded him either before or after the offense. The Unexpected Victory of the Cambridge Crew Indicates That the Oxford Shell Was a "Dud"

Cambridge Crew Upsets Dope by Beating Oxford

Defeated Eight, Stroked by W. P. Mellen of U. S., Was 1 to 3 Favorite.

TIME CLOSE TO RECORD

Winners Negotiate 4½ Miles in 18M. 41S., Fastest For Race Since 1911

By the Associated Press.

PUTNEY, England, April 5.—Pulling their oars in splendid unison, Cambridge's crew of youngsters won a brilliant victory in the annual boat race on the Thames this afternoon over an Oxford shell filled with men more experienced and heavier, but bereft for a few priceless minutes of the capacity for finished team work.

Oxford, stroked by the American Oarsman W. P. Mellen, hero of last year's race, was a 3 to 1 favorite and was conceded the victory beforehand by every critic writing for the British press. What brought about their defeat and the dumfounding of the "experts" was another example of the triumph of teamwork over the ill-co-ordinated efforts of better men.

From the start of the race at Putney Bridge to the finish at Mortlake, 4¼ miles up the Thames, the eight bodies in the Cambridge boat moved with a smoothness that was finished in every detail, while Mellen's men never really got behind him. He seemed to tire himself after two miles and the lead that had been but half a boat length a mile and a half from the start, was extended to 4½ lengths as the crews approached the end of their exhausting struggle.

Water Conditions Ideal.

Weather and water conditions were ideal, the surface of the Thames was smooth, and bright sunshine, its heat tempered by a moderate breeze, gleamed upon the water and comforted hundreds of thousands of cheering Britons massed along both banks.

At the start Mellen hit up a furious stroke of 39 to the minute while Cambridge was content with 38 to get things going. At the half-mile they both stroked 31, but Cambridge was moving faster. The Light Blues seemed to get more length from each stroke and their unison was flawless, while there were obvious "breaks" in the Oxford rhythm. As a result Cambridge eased slightly ahead.

Mellen had increased his stroke but Cambridge met this first challenge and moved a few more yards away until daylight broke between their stern and Oxford's boat. This was before two miles had been covered.

After passing under Hammersmith Bridge, almost two miles from the start, Mellen seemed to show weariness. His head, always turned a little downward on the right side, seemed to sag even further than usual at each backward pull. The Cambridke stroke was still sitting as erect as he had been at the very first stroke.

Cambridge Increases Lead.

Those behind him were in the same condition. They kept to an even 31 and continued drawing away. Passing the three-mile mark the Cambridge coxswain steered to the left off the usual midstream course and Oxford gained a little, cutting the Cambridge lead to slightly over one and one-half lengths.

Then Mellen spurted again but the conquering Cantabrians would not be denied their victory. They just kept plugging smoothly at 31 and the desperate Oxonians wore themselves almost out. They lagged further behind on the last mile while the Light Blues, from their easy sweeping swing, seemed capable of going on for a mile or so further. They were fresh at the finish while Mellen and the men in his shell dropped over their oars from exhaustion as soon as the last stroke had been completed.

Cambridge's time was 18 minutes 41 seconds, the fastest ever rowed in an Oxford-Cambridge race with the exception of Oxford's victory in 1911, when the time was 18 minutes 29 seconds.

Victory Popular One.

The Cambridge victory was a most popular one with the vast element in the sport-loving population which has no personal connections with either university or for that matter, any institution of higher learning. To these people, thousands of whom mingled without colors among the other thousands with their light or dark blue ribbon souvenirs, Cambridge was "The All-British crew."

They never forgot that Oxford had a foreigner—a Yankee—stroking its shell.

The "experts" who have been writing pieces for the papers about the race daily for weeks will have an interesting task explaining why their predictions fell flat. In the meantime the theater and cabaret district of London is enjoying "Boat race night" festivities with unusual gaiety tonight.

Industrial League Banquet.

More than 100 employes of firms represented by basketball teams in the Industrial League attended a banquet at the Hotel Claridge Friday night. Dr. D. Todd spoke on the value of athletics to industrial men.

Municipal Teams In Opening Game Of Title Series

Schumachers Oppose St. Malachy Soccer Team at Fairground This Afternoon.

The St. Malachys, champions of the Forest Park Division, and the Schumachers, title winners at Carondelet Park, will play the first of a series of three games to decide the Municipal Athletic Association soccer championship at Fairground No. 2 this afternoon. The game is scheduled to start at 2:30 o'clock.

The St. Malachys went into the final by defeating the Henses of the Sherman Park group, 3 goals to 2 in the semifinal, while the Schumachers eliminated the St. Matthews, last season's champions, 3 to 2, in the other semifinal. These clashes were played two weeks ago, the park kickers remaining idle last Sunday owing to the national championship tilt at High School Field.

The St. Malachy team's place in the final was made certain last week, when Bill Yorger, superintendent of recreation, handed down a decision disallowing the protest of the Hense eleven.

The winner of the St. Louis championship will be sent to Kansas City for a series of two games, April 19 and 20, it has been announced.

An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged to today's game.

CHINESE DAVIS CUP TEAM WILL PLAY IN WIMBLEDON TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 5.—Plans of the first Chinese Davis Cup lawn tennis team were announced here today by W. Lock Wei, captain of the team, who has just arrived from Shanghai. Wei has played on varsity tennis teams at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Cambridge University.

He said that he would meet the other three members of the team in England early in May. They are Ng Sze Kwong, champion of Hong Kong S. C. Wu, and Hool Hye, champion of Singapore. Wu has resided for some years in England.

After playing in various tournaments, including the British championships at Wimbledon, the team will compete in the Olympics at Paris in July and will come to America for a match against Australia in the Davis Cup series.

U. S. Soccer Team's Entry Received by Olympic Committee

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 5.

OFFICIAL notice that the United States would take part in the association football competition in the Olympic games was received by cable by the French Olympic Committee today.

ST. LOUIS AND CENTURY CLUBS OPEN BIKE SEASON

The two oldest cycling clubs in St. Louis will open their run season tomorrow. They are the St. Louis and Century Cycling Clubs. The Blue and White riders are scheduled to go to the Baldwin, while the tangled "C" boys go to the St. Charles.

As both clubs have chosen short runs, with good roads, there will be a great deal of "hot footing" by the racing cyclists who aspire to make the Olympic team.

Both clubs have issued an invitation to all cyclists wishing to come with them on these runs. The St. Louis Cycling Club will meet at Blair's Monument, at 8:30 a. m., where pictures of the bunch will be taken before leaving. The Century Cycling Club will meet at the same hour at the club rooms, 1523 North Grand boulevard.

Richards Again Wins Net Title

Defeats Hunter in Four-Set Match to Capture Indoor Tourney Final.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Vincent Richards was compelled to play 108 games today to retain the national singles indoor tennis championship and a half interest with Francis T. Hunter in the doubles championship. The youthful star's triumph in the singles over Hunter, 8-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, was his third title victory and gave him permanent possession of the singles trophy. He won in 1919 and in 1923.

Richards and Hunter defeated S. Howard Voshell and Frank T. Anderson for the doubles title, 6-3, 17-15, 3-6, 3-6, 6-3. The second set established a game record for indoor doubles competition.

It was the second consecutive year that Richards defeated Hunter for the singles championship and that Richards and Hunter triumphed over Anderson and Voshell in the doubles.

ATTACK IN HOUSE MADE ON PENDING IMMIGRATION BILL

Passage in Upper Body by Next Saturday Indicated Despite Fight on Measure as Un-American.

CHAIRMAN DEFENDS ITS PROVISIONS

Says 600,000 Russians and 300,000 Italians Are Waiting to Come to America.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Denouncing it as unfair, unsound, discriminatory, unwise and un-American, Representative Pearlman (Rep.) and Dickstein (Dem.) of New York and Sabath (Dem.) of Illinois, today started a heavy bombardment on the pending immigration bill in the House.

"The bill," said Sabath, "seeks to limit the number of quota immigrants to a minimum of 100 from the various countries, and in addition thereto, 2 per cent of the number of foreign born individuals of a particular nationality resident in the United States as determined by the United States census of 1890. The changed factors in arriving at the number of admissible immigrants are first, that of substituting for the census of 1910 that of 1890, and, secondly, in changing the rate from 3 per cent to 2 per cent.

"The effect of this change," Sabath declared, "would be to reduce the number of immigrants to 161,983, against the annual quota under the present law of 357,803."

Vote by Saturday Expected.

Chairman Johnson of the House Committee on Immigration, announced, at the beginning of the debate in the House today, that it would take until Saturday night of next week to conclude the consideration and get a vote. He expects to put his restrictive measure through by a combination of Southern and Western votes without material change. The only hope of the opponents of the measure for escape from its provisions is the Senate. The machinery of the House is set to jam it through. It is being discussed under a special rule, allowing eight hours, four to a side, with a special arrangement, for three additional hours to be used up at night.

"Fully 80,000,000 citizens of the United States are bending a laboring oar with you today in this effort to really restrict immigration," said Johnson. "They want an immigration act written for the 105,000,000 people in the United States, and not for any other soul on the fact of the earth. They know of the present struggle to get out of Central, Eastern and Southern Europe.

"The reports that 600,000 persons in Russia have applied for passports that would let them come to the United States are true; 70,000 persons are stacked up in Warsaw waiting for a chance to get to the United States. Refugees are temporarily domiciled in all the countries of the western border of Russia waiting for an opportunity to come this way.

300,000 Italians on Books.

"The books of the Italian emigration officials contain the names of 300,000 would-be immigrants to the United States. It is true that Russian refugees are at Southampton and elsewhere by the thousands.

"It is the intention of the committee to follow this legislation with a bill for the deportation, after serving sentence, of aliens convicted in courts of record of violations of liquor and narcotic laws. Also, it is the intention of the committee to present a bill for the establishment of a border patrol of the committee to present a bill for the establishment of a border patrol with authority to enforce immigration, customs, health, liquor, narcotic and other laws, after which we will be in position to regulate immigration from Mexico and Canada, both of which countries are anxious that we should act. Without complete patrol, additional legislation will simply result in confusion.

"This bill preserves all of the treaties of the United States, including that with Japan. That country's face is not saved, as she is not given a quota, and, in my opinion, to give Japan a quota would result in a great deal more trouble than will the entire abrogation of the 'gentlemen's agreement' which becomes quite unnecessary if the bill becomes a law. I think that Japan's real trouble is that she sees that she must give up the hope of colonizing her surplus population in the United States."

"Race and Class Distinction."

Replying to Johnson, Representative Sabath declared that the measure is "not fair," "discriminatory" and "un-American."

"The opponents of this bill are not for an open door policy; I am for selective and restricted immigration," said he. "They tell us the people who have come here from certain parts of the world do not assimilate. But I say to you they have made good Americans, loyal citizens, law-abiding and patriotic. They volunteered for the world war and fought bravely."

"The original settlers of this country," asserted Representative Perlman, "came here to escape religious persecution. What do we now see? Here it is proposed to say that a certain race or certain class of people cannot come here. We are making racial and class distinction. This proposition is unfair, and tends to foster bolshevism. The place of a person's birth is accidental. Mental, moral and physical fitness should be our guide, rather than country or nativity. I am opposed to any quota law as a permament immigration policy.'

Representative Dickstein declared that the Johnson bill did not give the right to select immigrants. It is a quota proposition, and would let in Austrians and Germans and keep out many who were loyal to the United States during the World War.

Will of William C. Brown.

The will of William C. Brown, vice-president and treasurer of the Pioneer Cooperage Co., who died April 1, was filed yesterday. He bequeathed his property, the value of which was not stated, to his widow, Mrs. Mary Edna Brown, 5261 Westminster place, and three children, Dorothy, William C. and Warren E. Brown.

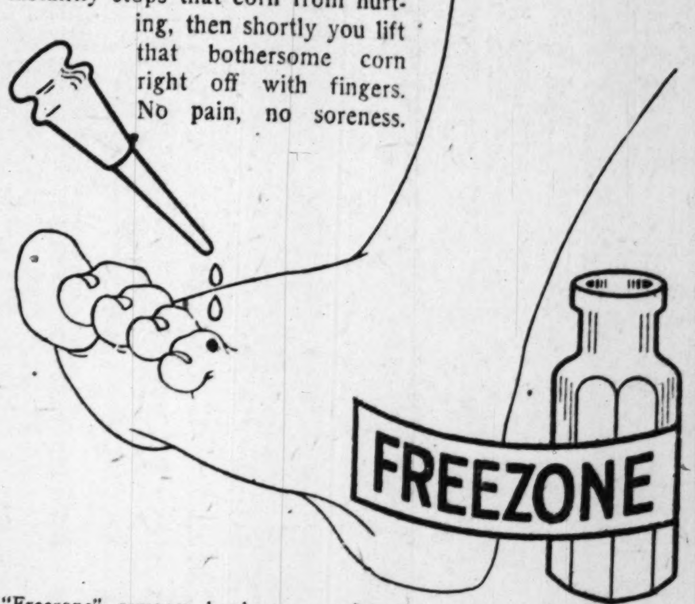
Stricken While Driving Auto.

By the Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 5.—Harry C. Pierce, prominent in the business and social life of Syracuse, was stricken while driving his automobile today and died as the machine crashed into a curb. Mrs. Pierce was in the car at the time.

Corns
Lift-Right Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! A drop of "Freezone" on a sore, touchy corn instantly stops that corn from hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn right off with fingers. No pain, no soreness.



"Freezone" removes hard corns, soft corns, corns between toes, and calluses without irritation. Tiny bottles cost few cents at any drug store.

KEWANEE
"STEEL plus rivets equals strength"

The big liners which plough the ocean are made of steel-riveted. The great locomotives which carry commerce across the continent, are built of steel-riveted. The big bridges which span the streams and gorges, are constructed of steel-riveted. Great buildings, intended to last for countless years, are built of steel-riveted.

Endurance and efficiency are represented by steel-riveted. There is no combination or method on top of this green earth which can even begin to equal steel-riveted. KEWANEE SMOKELESS BOILERS are built of steel-riveted, hence the sensible Kewanee Slogan that "STEEL plus RIVETS equals STRENGTH." The whole history of industry and progress confirms it.

Kewanee Smokeless Boilers will last as long as your building will, and the cost of the possible repairs is negligible, nominal and unworthy of comment. There are thirty-five years of engineering knowledge back of the KEWANEE BOILER, and thirty-five years of practical experience in building boilers of steel-riveted for the finest buildings in the country.

So, if you are going to build a building, think this over first. See the KEWANEE in operation, You can find one somewhere near you. Ask the owner of that building what his results have been, then have one of our representatives in your city give you the details of construction, and the list of buildings which have profited immeasurably by the use of KEWANEE BOILERS.

Write the Old Man Behind the Boiler and ask him why he builds steel boilers-riveted—and why he won't build them any other way.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Developments of the past week have demonstrated that the markets had become badly oversold. Attempts to cover short commitments have brought sharp rises. Cotton has jumped 4 cents in about 11 days, a recovery so emphatic as to suggest that the bears sold heavily in a thoroughly liquidated market. As was pointed out in this column a week ago, pessimism is greatest when technical positions are strongest. With values again moving upward confidence has grown. A great deal has been heard during the past week of the improved chances of a European settlement. Actually it is difficult to see how the prospects have improved. The outlook still is good, but no better than for several weeks. Similarly, a much more hopeful attitude has been taken with regard to the chances for tax reduction. It now is stated that the political muddling at Washington cannot last much longer. The truth of the matter is that the outlook really has changed little, but that it was impossible to get traders to see the bright side of the situation as long as prices were declining. That, however, is market psychology and must be accepted as such. That business men still are under the spell of what happened in 1919 and 1920 also must be admitted.

"Further rallies in foreign exchange have a double value. They place Europe in a better position to buy raw materials; they also diminish the strength of European competition in manufactured goods. Already foreign buying of cotton has improved. At the same time it is likely that our textile manufacturers will feel less competition from Europe. Looking at the foreign situation broadly, interest must center in the report of the Dawes Committee and in its reception. Considering the magnitude of the problem, it would be foolish to expect too much of the Dawes report. However, even if it does not secure final settlements, it should prove a great step in advance."

"Fresh buying and active trading rather than the usual dull week-end selling characterized the principal financial markets during the short session. The improved tone in stocks continued, with the railroad and oil shares still setting the pace. In the former department several new high levels were reached, strong features being gains of several points by Norfolk and Western and New Orleans, Texas and Mexico. Several of the low-priced rails also were in demand. Industrials meanwhile failed to move as a unit. Bearish traders searched about for weak spots and found a few, particularly in the fertilizer group. As trading drew to a close, there was evidence of profit-taking as well and the list bore an irregular appearance. Bonds enjoyed an active and firm market.

Rally in Sterling.

"Trading in the foreign exchanges was, temporarily at least, revitalized by a surprisingly good demand for sterling. Buying of this currency began in the closing hours yesterday but continued at an accelerated pace this morning and appeared to come from diverse quarters. While sterling has been holding firm during the recent sharp advances in French and Belgian francs it has made no spectacular progress, but the day's quotation of $4.34½ cents represented a gain of 3½ cents. Other foreign exchanges were strong, with French francs rising 3½ points and with advances general among the Europeans.

"The feature of the weekly statement of the Clearing House is a deficit of $11,000,000 in reserve. Loans and discounts fell $14,250,000 and demand deposits decreased $19,618,000. Reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve Bank meanwhile declined $39,477,000."

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Today's market showed Wall Street carefully discriminating between individual groups of stocks for the first hour and more. Oil shares were actively bought at the best prices of the current movement.

The strength in the oils and the rails had no influence, however, on the rest of the list. In the second and final hour selling broke out in the motor group, especially in Chandler, the Pierce Arrows and Willy-Overland preferred. As these stocks went down they drew along with them Baldwin Locomotive, General Electric, American Can and other trading favorites. The market closed irregular.

The Bond Market.

The week in the bond market has been characterized by steady investment absorption of high grade securities, particularly Liberty bonds, active speculation in low-priced railway securities and conspicuous weakness in certain industrials.

The buying in the investment grade may fairly be ascribed to conditions in the money market. Banks have apparently been accumulating United States Government loans as an employment for their surplus funds. Several exceptionally large transactions have been reported. Savings bank rails have all been firm but price changes have not been large. On the other hand the demand for short term obligations has outrun the supply.

In railroad bonds speculation has been most active in the St. Paul, the New Haven, the Erie and the Seaboard bonds. To these were added later in the week Chicago Great Western and Wheeling & Lake Erie, the consolidated 4s of the last named road making a new high for the year today. In all these instances improvement in earnings was back of the movement.

Industrials have not fared as well as the rails. Cerro de Pasco 8s have gone up with the stock, the net gain for the week being between 6 and 7 points. South Porto Rico Sugar 7s have been notably strong on investment buying. These, however, are exceptions. Weakness has been exhibited by American Agricultural Chemical 7½s.

Traction and public utility bonds generally have been strong. Public Service of New Jersey 5s have been bought in the expectation that the plan for an exchange of these bonds for a new 5½ per cent issue secured on the electric and power properties will go through. There was heavy trading in these bonds today at the high of the movement.

Along with the general strength in the market there has been a better sentiment toward foreign bonds. Both French 8s and 7½s made new higs for the year. Jugo-Slav 8s have also made a new high under heavy dealings. Outside the European group there was a sharp advance in Brazil 8s and a smaller one in Cuban 5½s. The only noticeable reaction in the entire foreign list was in the Swiss 8s.

New security offerings totaled around $88,000,000 against $112,000,000 in the previous week. The largest and most important offering was the Swiss 5½s to the amount of $30,000,000 priced to yield 5.7 per cent.

PUBLIC UTILITY ISSUES FEATURE WEEK ON CURB

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The most important feature of the market on the New York Curb during the past week was the suddenly developed activity and strength in a number of the public utility issues, Lehigh Valley Power securities being a special feature and advancing from 48½ to 60. American Power and Light rose 34 points to 236 and there was vigorous buying of a number of other issues in this group including American Light and Traction, and Commonwealth Power.

Glen Alden Coal also came into prominence, selling above 92, a gain of over 5 points for the week and a new high record. The directors meet in the first half of May for dividend action and the belief prevailed that the present buying is in anticipation of another increase, which has been made larger each dividend date, from the time the first distribution was made. Lehigh Valley Coal, when issued, showed a heavy tone during the early part of the week, declining over three points. There was a development of strength in British American Tobacco which rose about one point on local buying.

There was active trading in a number of the other industrials, among them Candy Products, buying of that stock being accompanied by statements that it is negotiating for the absorption of another interest in that industry.

The changed conditions in the petroleum industry met a belated response in activity and strength in that group. Heavy buying first appeared in the South American issues, International Petroleum being prominent, and there was also a sharp advance in Lago Oil. Prairie Oil advanced over 10 points prior to the publication of the balance sheet. Standard Oil of Nebraska made the greatest gain, advancing 14 points to above 240. Gains of about 5 points was made in Standard Oil of Kansas and 8 points in Swan and Finch.

Mining stocks also became active during the week, a feature being the admission of trading of the stock of the Kay Corporation which was traded in on an extremely large scale.

Boston Wool Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, April 5.—The wool market wound up a dull week today with the range of prices practically unchanged. The slowness with which mills are buying raw wool has led to some shading, but wool growers in the West are holding for extremely strong figures. Exports during the week have been heavy.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Further advances were reported in the local raw sugar market today with Cubans quoted at 6.65 duty paid. Sales were 23,700 bags of Cubans and 13,000 Porto Ricans for second half April shipment to a local refiner. Raw sugar futures were firmer, reflecting the advance in the spot market. Prices advanced 9 to 12 points on covering and commission house buying, but met increased liquidation at these levels and partial reactions followed, leaving final prices 5 to 10 points net higher: May closed 4.97, July, 5.12; September, 5.06; December, 5.12. Refined sugar was unchanged at 8.20 to 8.40 for fine granulated with a good inquiry reported at the inside figure. Refined futures were nominal.

Sugar futures closed steady; approximate sales, 25,000 tons; May, 4.97c; July, 5.12c; September, 5.06c; December, 4.57c.

COTTON HIGHER IN WEEK-END TRADE

NEW YORK, April 5.—A renewal of buying featured the opening of the cotton market today, owing to continued bullish reports from the spot market, reiterated reports of increasing demand for cotton goods, rains in the Atlantic states, where farm work is already delayed, and firmness of foreign exchange.

Prices made new highs for the movement, with the market opening firm, at an advance of five to 46 points and selling up to 30.75c for May and 25.45c for October in the early trading. This advance met realizing, but it was absorbed on reactions of 10 or 15 points from the best.

May advanced to 30.75c during the early trading and October to 25.85c or 30 to 40 points above Friday's closing quotations. These prices—which in the case of May represented a recovery of 430 points from the low level of March 27—attracted a good deal of realizing and later fluctuations were somewhat irregular. However, the undertone of the market reflected the spot news, the reported improvement in the demand for cotton goods, and unfavorable weather reports from the south.

Prices held steady during the forenoon on reports that exporters were in the southern spot market for additional supplies, but turned easier towards the close under realizing. May reacted to 30.33c, or about 42 points from the best, and October sold off to 25.54c. The market closed very steady, net 18 points higher to 6 points lower, late months being relatively firm.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange review, says:

"The feature of foreign exchange during the week was the violent upturn in French exchange, which was maintained until late on Wednesday, when the price of French francs again crossed 6 cents, sales being recorded as high as 6.07. It was the general assumption that the greater part of the business on that movement consisted of buying against matured March contracts, on which three days' grace had been allowed. After this covering was completed, the demand dwindled sharply, and on the following days offerings were sufficient to cause a decline to 5.73. Reference to increased note issue and the practical lack of broad inquiry had an influence on carrying along this reaction. Belgian exchange moved closely with French, Belgian francs selling as high as 6.22, a gain of nearly 1 cent from the low level of the week, the movement in those documents being based to a good extent on the current reports of a substantial credit soon being extended to that nation. Swiss was also strong, advancing to 17.54, the three exchanges named selling at new high levels for the year before the reaction set in. Sterling exchange moved in an orderly manner through the week, showing a gain of 1 cent at $4.30⅝ for demand. In the last two days a demand appeared for ordering on Holland, guilders being sought in large blocks by local bankers. Scandinavian exchange moved over a wide range, Norway advancing 20 points to 13.82. Denmark, after selling at 16.22, rose to 16.65; but both exchanges reacted toward the end of the week. Canadian exchange was also strong, advancing ⅛ to 98.12. Czecho-Slovakia, after showing strength in the preceding week, had a moderate reaction. Italian made a new high for the year on an advance to 4.49½, but lost nearly all its gain in later trading.

"Trading in the foreign exchanges was, temporarily at least, revitalized Saturday by a surprisingly good demand for sterling. Buying of this currency began in the closing hours Friday, but continued at an accelerated pace Saturday morning and appeared to come from diverse quarters. While sterling has been holding firm during the recent sharp advances in French and Belgian francs it has made no spectacular progress, but the day's quotation of $4.34½ cents represented a gain of 3½ cents. Other foreign exchanges were strong, with French francs rising 3½ points and with advances general among the Europeans.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange review, says:

"The feature of foreign exchange during the week was the violent upturn in French exchange, which was maintained until late on Wednesday, when the price of French francs again crossed 6 cents, sales being recorded as high as 6.07. It was the general assumption that the greater part of the business on that movement consisted of buying against matured March contracts, on which three days' grace had been allowed. After this covering was completed, the demand dwindled sharply, and on the following days offerings were sufficient to cause a decline to 5.73. Reference to increased note issue and the practical lack of broad inquiry had an influence on carrying along this reaction. Belgian exchange moved closely with French, Belgian francs selling as high as 6.22, a gain of nearly 1 cent from the low level of the week, the movement in those documents being based to a good extent on the current reports of a substantial credit soon being extended to that nation. Swiss was also strong, advancing to 17.54, the three exchanges named selling at new high levels for the year before the reaction set in. Sterling exchange moved in an orderly manner through the week, showing a gain of 1 cent at $4.30⅝ for demand. In the last two days a demand appeared for orders on Holland, guilders being sought in large blocks by local bankers. Scandinavian exchange moved over a wide range, Norway advancing 20 points to 13.82. Denmark, after selling at 16.22, rose to 16.65; but both exchanges reacted toward the end of the week. Canadian exchange was also strong, advancing ¼ to 98.12. Czecho-Slovakia, after showing strength in the preceding week, had a moderate reaction. Italian made a new high for the year on an advance to 4.49½, but lost nearly all its gain in later trading.

"Trading in the foreign exchanges was, temporarily at least, revitalized Saturday by a surprisingly good demand for sterling. Buying of this currency began in the closing hours Friday, but continued at an accelerated pace Saturday morning and appeared to come from diverse quarters. While sterling has been holding firm during the recent sharp advances in French and Belgian francs it has made no spectacular progress, but the day's quotation of $4.34⅛ cents represented a gain of 3½ cents. Other foreign exchanges were strong, with French francs rising 3½ points and with advances general among the Europeans."

BUOYANCY IN MARKETS DURING THE PAST WEEK

LONDON, April 5.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in review, says:

"Buoyancy prevailed in the markets this week. The cheapness of money and the Government's conversion offer are the chief factors drawing attention to long dated securities, while delays in the reparations settlement and the general outlook preclude the likelihood of any rapid and extensive improvement in trade. Nevertheless the feeling with regard to trade is more optimistic in certain directions, because the recoveries in the exchanges eliminate certain competition which has been felt.

"It is remarkable that the money and capital markets have not reflected to a greater extent the large amount of new issues, many of which have been for overseas authorities and interests and have been made with the idea of stimulating exports and internal trade."

GOOD BULGE IN WHEAT ON THE CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Wheat had a good bulge and the trade was of broader volume today. There was a shift in sentiment and the buying power indicated many of the active local traders now may be classed as longs. There was a change in the situation a few days ago when mills manifested their confidence in present values by anticipating future needs and purchasing cash wheat. There was a noticeable broadening in the export trade and sales of 1,000,000 bushels of Manitoba wheat were reported overnight to United Kingdom and France, while yesterday's business is said to have totaled 2,000,000 bushels. Some delay in spring wheat seeding was experienced in the Northwest and Canada by the unsettled weather. Private advices indicated a reduction of 30 per cent in wheat acreage in Manitoba and 10 per cent increase in Alberta and Saskatchewan, a net increase for Canada of nearly 1,000,000 acres. Local dealers bought 25,000 bushels wheat in Omaha to come here. Galveston mills are said to be buying Pacific Coast wheat at 5c under Kansas City market. Sales of 100,000 bushels of contract wheat were made to go to store. Market closed 1@1¼c higher, May, $1.03¼@1.03⅜; July, $1.04⅜@1.04½; September, $1.05¼; December, $1.07⅞. Shipping sales were 53,000 bushels.

Corn met with good buying after an early dip under local pressure. Commission houses forced shorts to cover. Buying power gave out later and this slowed up the advance. Cash corn basis was unchanged. Shipping demand was only moderate. Receipts were light. Shipping sales were 26,000 bushels. Market closed ¼c off to ⅛c up, May, 78⅝@78½c; July, 79⅝c; September, 79¼@79⅜.

Oats followed other markets. Premiums for cash oats were ¼@1c higher. Shipping sales were 76,000 bushels. Market ¼@¼c higher, May, 46¼c; July, 44½c; September, 40⅝c.

Provisions were firm. Commission houses bought and on the bulge there was hedging by cash interests. Lard closed unchanged to 2½c up, ribs unchanged to 5c higher and bellies unchanged.

BEST BEEF STEERS BRING YEAR'S HIGH

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	16,626	18,582	15,621
Hogs	89,809	105,426	87,362
Sheep	4,810	3,655	5,547
Horses and mules	652	735	1,655
Totals	111,897	128,398	100,185

Livestock markets at the St. Louis National Stockyards, compared with a week ago, show no great change. Receipts were normal, figuring 111,897 head all told, of which 16,626 were cattle and calves. Monday's cattle market was quite active at strong to 25c higher prices. The upward trend was checked the following day and remaining sessions of the week found values steady to weak. Beef steers, as against a week ago, average steady to 25c higher. Prices varied from around $6 and $7 per cwt. for the common end to $8 and $9 for better kinds and up to $11.10, the top, which was also the highest price for the year to date. The offering included 19 cars of Texas steers that varied from $5.64 to $8. Light steers and heifers were of slow sale a larger part of the session, and closed weak to 15c to 25c lower. Sales varied from around $5 and $6 or under for a plain kind to $7, $8 and $9.25 for best. Butcher cows developed strength and closed steady to 25c higher. A spread of $4.50 to $6 caught a considerable part of the offering. The practical low end was quotable at $4 and the top $7.50. Canner and cutter cows showed no marked change. Cutters were valued at $3 to $3.75 and canners at $2.25 to $3. A weak trend developed in the bull market. Bolognas late in the period were quotable at $4.25 to $5 and beef animals above the yearling stage at $5 to $6. Stocker and feeders steers, all beef animals, scored a stronger trend, while plain kinds cleared at $5 or $6; best made $6.75, $7.75 and $8. Veal calves started the week on a 50c lower level, but this loss was regained in subsequent trading and closing values were strong; whereas best lights weer available at $10 to $10.50. Monday, closing quotations were $10.50 to $11.50.

Hog Receipts Moderate.

Receipts in the swine department for the past week were moderate, the six-day total aggregating 89,809 head, compared with a generous offering of 105,426 for the previous week and 87,362 for the corresponding period a year ago. There has been a notable number of pigs included in the receipts during the past week, the latter part of the six-day period, however, witnessing the arrival of many good-weight, well-finished swine. The week's opening session featured a sharp upturn in price, this advance, however, being overcome later in the week. The closing market this week is strong to 5c higher than the previous week's close on best butcher hogs, sale today at $7.60 to $7.70 largely. For the lighter grades of swine prices are steady to strong, with the 160 to 180 pound offerings selling in a spread of $7.55 to $7.70, the latter figure the closing top. Pigs are uneven at the week's close, general market for this class looking about steady. The strong-weight pigs, from 130 to 150 pounds, are quotable at $7 to $7.50, fully steady, but the medium-weight kinds, from 110 to 130 pounds, almost unsalable on the closing session. These weights are quotable at $6.50 to $7, with the light pigs and peewees at $6 to $6.50 largely, depending on the weight and quality of the offerings. Packer sows for the week at closing were weak to 5c lower, with offerings today selling in a spread of $6.55 to $6.60 generally. For stags prices remain unchanged for the week, with offerings quotable at $4.50 to $5.50, according to the weight and quality displayed by the offerings. The week's close finds the different classes of swine selling in the following spread. Best butcher hogs from 190 to 250 pounds at $7.60 to $7.70; light hogs and shippers, from 160 to 180 pounds, at $7.55 to $7.70; strong-weight pigs, from 130 to 150 pounds, at $7 to $7.50; medium weight kinds, from 110 to 130 pounds, at $6.50 to $7, and light pigs and peewees, from 110 pounds down, at $6 to $6.50 mostly, according to weight and quality displayed by the offerings; sows at $6.55 to $6.60 and stags at $4.50 to $5.50.

Sheep Receipts Fair.

Receipts for the past week in sheep and lambs at this market were only fair, total receipts for the six-day period aggregating 4810 head compared with 3655 for the previous week and 5547 for the corresponding period a year ago. A considerable portion of this number during the past week were direct offerings with those on sale taken as a whole showing plain quality. Bulk of offerings were comprised of native lambs, some of the plainer grades selling little better than culls. Prices close steady for the week, good to choice wool lambs quotable at $16 to $16.50, medium to good kinds at $15.50 to $16 and plain to medium grades at $14.75 to $15.50. Clipped lambs also close steady, good to choice offerings quotable at $13.75 to $14.50, medium to good grades at $13.25 to $13.75 and the plain to medium kinds from $12.50 to $13.25. Culls at the week's close are quotable at $11 to $14, skips clearing at $5 to $10, according to the weight and quality of the offerings. Sheep at the week's finish were unevenly strong with some of the plainer grades of the aged classes somewhat higher. Good to choice mutton ewes are quotable at $10 to $11.50, looking about steady with a week ago. Medium to good grades are also steady at $9 to $10, plain to medium kinds at $7 to $9, showing practically no change. Choppers and bucks at $5 to $8 are steady with canners at $3 to $5 looking unevenly strong to 50c higher.

Horses and Mules.

The horse and mule market, influenced by small receipts and a fairly active demand, showed more life here the past week. Combined arrivals figured only 650 head, including about 125 horses and 250 mules on commission. Chunks and big horses encountered a reasonably good outlet and there was also some southern and farm trade. Values were strong and clearance good, most of the arrivals clearing through auction. Mules sold at auction and on the alleys. Good big work mules and miners were in request and the cotton trade absorbed some of the medium sized mare mules. In all, the market was on an improved basis.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Cotton goods markets maintained their firmness today. Activity in the gray goods division continued. A little better demand was reported for finished goods from jobbers and retailers. Cotton yarns were firm. Burlaps were steady. Raw silk was slightly easier. Spring silks sold more freely. Fur auctions this week were active, but prices showed sharp reductions. New lines of fall dress goods attracted considerable attention, but buying was still moderate. Linens were steady, but less keenness was shown in the demand for dressed linens.

Honey and Beeswax.

HONEY—Southern bright amber at 7c to 8c per lb., dark at 6c; nearby comb honey at $4 to $4.50 per case.

BEESWAX—Prime at 24c per lb.

What the motor car Owner has a right to expect from the FACTORY

DO NOT think of a factory as a group of buildings. Think, rather, of a place where something fine is to be made—built—created.

Good equipment naturally is essential; but more important than gigantic size is a dominant spirit, a clear determination, The Will to Build the Best.

Thus only do you have the ideal factory.

It must be large enough to attract good executives—but not so large that it binds these good men with inflexible "policy" . . .

. . . large enough to buy economically—but not so large that its purchases put it out of touch with changing conditions . . .

. . . large enough to pioneer in improving design and construction—but not so large that new ideas carry with them the bitter penalty of millions of dollars worth of existing equipment made obsolete . . .

. . . large enough to give employees steady work and good working conditions—but not so large that all human touch is lost between the men in the shops and the men at the top.

The Haynes ideal has always been to maintain such a factory. That is one reason why, to-day, motorists are saying, "It pays to own a Haynes."

The Haynes Automobile Company is associated with no other motor car manufacturer. It is limited to no price class and bound to no quality restriction. This company knows no obligation except to the public, its conscience, and to its founder, Elwood Haynes, the inventor of America's First Car. . . . See and judge the result for yourself by examining "The Par Car."

CONTROL

You never tire driving the Haynes. The steering wheel responds to the lightest touch; gear shift levers, clutch and instrument panel are ideally convenient to hand, foot and eye.

PERFORMANCE

From 2 to 60 miles an hour, the Haynes motor runs with a silken flow of power—flexible, responsive, and faithful always. Many, many Haynes motors have gone over 200,000 miles.

DEPENDABILITY

The experience of ownership will prove to you that the materials in the Haynes are the finest science can discover, and that the simplicity of bearings and design contribute to longer life.

REPUTATION

The Haynes is America's first car—a pioneer 31 years ago and still pioneering in the interest of owners. You are proud to own the Haynes: its reputation also assures higher re-sale value.

ECONOMY

The Haynes is economical in all consumption, gasoline and tire mileage, and general upkeep. Compare the price with what you get, and you know why it is the "par car."

M'CORMICK PROPOSES CONFERENCE ON TAXES

Wants Coolidge to Call Governors to Consider State and Local Situations.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Unable to complete the preparation of the tax reduction bill tonight, the Senate Finance Committee signalized its last efforts by first lessening and then increasing the tax on radio outfits.

In the face of opposition from President Coolidge, the committee increased the exemption in the bill to outfits costing $50 or less and then finally removed all exemptions. This leaves the tax 10 per cent on all radio outfits, regardless of the price, including the parts. This will raise, it is assumed, about $10,000,000. Senator Smoot says the manufacturers now charge all the traffic will bear, making as much as 100 per cent, so it will be impossible to add the extra tax to the sales price, thus compelling the manufacturers to absorb it. The 10 per cent tax on mah jong sets remains in the bill.

Storm of Amendments.

Failure to complete the bill was due to the storm of amendments which individual Senators introduced, and concerning which they desired to speak at length. It is assumed the bill will not be completed until Monday or Tuesday, resulting in practically another week of delay. Even then, it is probable the bonus bill will be put ahead of tax reduction, so final action on the measure is uncertain.

Senator McCormick (Rep.) of Illinois, the man of mystery in the tax situation, brought the situation of increasing local taxes to the fore today in a startling manner.

In a letter to President Coolidge, McCormick urges the President to call a conference of Governors and the principal fiscal officers of the states in Washington "to consider the appalling increase in local and state taxation."

McCormick's Letter.

These increases have been general, McCormick says, and cites his own State, where for every $10 paid the Federal Government the citizens pay $40 in local taxes. McCormick's letter says: "They (the Governors) ought earnestly to consider that during the last decade state taxes increased 183 per cent, county taxes 141 per cent and the taxes of cities of over 2500 inhabitants increased over 80 per cent. The cost of the government of the greater cities has increased during that period by 100 per cent or more. All this increased cost of local and state governments has taken place while none of them have borne any direct part of the cost of the great war. The state and local taxing bodies have added to the burden of taxation year after year, while the Federal Government, under a Republican Congress, has reduced taxation year after year. At this writing, for every $3 collected by the Federal Government, $4 is collected by the states and the local taxing bodies. In my own State of Illinois, according to the census report, the average citizen pays to the Federal Government a little over $10 annually by way of income tax, while he pays something over $40 annually in local and State taxation. In Illinois the Auditor reports that the State alone collected from the taxpayer five times what it did 10 years ago."

POLICE INVESTIGATING DEATH

Painter Was Found With Skull Fractured, Presumably Hit by Auto.

Following the death at City Hospital yesterday of William E. Lanham, 41 of 911B North Eighteenth street, the police started an investigation of the circumstances under which Lanham was found with a fracture of the skull near a curbing at Eighteenth and Carr streets, Tuesday night. Through cards in his pocket his identity and membership in the Painters' Union was established. Several persons told the police they had seen an automobile going East on Carr street a short time before the injured man was found.

POSTMAN FOR 33 YEARS RETIRES NEXT TUESDAY

When John M. Scott, Now 67, Started Delivering Mail, He Served Whole West End.

John M. Scott, 67 years old, a mail carrier for 33 years, will deliver his last letters next Tuesday. On that day the two years' extension granted him when he reached the retirement age, 65, will be up and he will put away his bicycle on which he rides every morning from the Field Station, 527 North Taylor avenue, to his route, and take up the raising of chickens on his farm at Chesterfield, Mo.

Last night there was a little party for Scott at the Field Station. His fellow carriers and the supervisors of the district presented him with a gold watch in appreciation of his faithfulness. For ten years has has risen early enough to travel the 20 miles from his home in the county and be ready to go out on his route by 6 o'clock. Before that time he served at various stations in the West End that have been abolished.

His first route, 33 years ago, took in all the territory from Walton avenue to Skinker road, and from Page boulevard to Forest Park. Twenty carriers now serve this district.

"In those days, though," said Scott, "things were different. I rode my whole route on my bicycle, except when the mud was bad, and the houses were all far apart. The only house north of the Suburban tracks 30 years ago was 5173 Vernon. It was the house of a fortune teller and she did a thriving business. Every day the people were lined up outside waiting to get their fortunes told. To the south it was about as thinly populated. I remember once a substitute, unaccustomed to the territory, became lost on the route."

Scott's route now is part of his original territory. It takes him the same time to deliver the letters to Lindell boulevard and Westmoreland place from Union boulevard to Kingshighway as his entire route of 33 years ago required.

Scott is married and has four children. One is in the railway mail service.

How this fantastic sequence of cause a effect has come about, and how ancient sa guards have become modern abuses, is sho in the compiled results of an investigation criminal procedure, made by Herbert S. H ley, Chancellor of Washington Universi former Attorney-General and Governor Missouri.

Chancellor Hadley has studied this subj since he was a public prosecutor in Kan City, and has made the study intensive in cent years, while teaching law in the Univ sity of Colorado. His last summer vacat spent on the Maine coast, was given to preparation of a report on this subject, tended for the American Law Institute, w named him as chairman of a committee three to make such a report.

The other members of the committee, were John G. Milburn of New York and D William E. Mikell of the University of Pe sylvania, did not concur with Chance Hadley in all points, and the revision of report was not completed in time to be a upon at the February meeting of the Institute in Washington. INSOLENT CRIMINALS PERMITTED TO LAUGH AT JUSTICE IN AMERICA BECAUSE PRISONERS WERE TORTURED IN SEVENTEENTH CENTURY IN ENGLAND

How Ancient Safeguards Have Become Modern Abuses Is Shown by Inquiry Conducted by Chancellor Hadley of Washington University.

Practices Started as Protection to Innocent Have Been Turned Into Means of Easy Escape for Guilty — Technicalities Glorified.

26 Obstacles in Way of Conviction Built Up by American Criminal Law

ADVANTAGES which the defendant possesses over the prosecution, in present-day American criminal procedure, are listed by Chancellor Hadley as follows:

(1) Defendant may insist on speedy trial; state may not.

(2) Defendant must be advised as to charge; state not advised as to defense.

(3) Defendant may change his defense; state may not amend indictment.

(4) Defendant must see names of state's witnesses; state may not see names of defendant's witnesses.

(5) Defendant has right to hear state's case in preliminary hearing; state may not require defense to be shown.

(6) Defendant has right to disqualify examining magistrate; state has not.

(7) Defendant may challenge grand jury members; state may not.

(8) Defendant may ask change of venue to another county on ground of public prejudice; state may not.

(9) Defendant may disqualify trial judge; state may not.

(10) Defendant has two peremptory challenges of trial jury to state's one.

(11) Defendant may have as many lawyers as he can hire; state (in some states) may not have special counsel.

(12) Defendant's counsel may comment on failure of any state witness to testify; state may not comment on defendant's failure to testify.

(13) Defendant may be cross-examined only as to matter of his direct testimony; state's witnesses may be cross-examined on any ground, and impeached.

(14) Defendant may take depositions of witnesses; state (in most states) may not.

(15) Defendant may use record of preliminary hearing or Coroner's inquest testimony; state may not.

(16) Defendant is presumed to be innocent, and may be acquitted on reasonable doubt as to criminal intent, even when act is proved; state must prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

(17) Defendant pleading insanity is required to show it not beyond reasonable doubt, but only by preponderance of testimony.

(18) Defendant has right to appeal as to testimony and rulings; state has not.

(19) Defendant may plead jeopardy if state's case has once failed through absence of a witness; state may not show previous crimes of defendant unless he testifies.

(20) Defendant may appeal conviction, but state may not appeal from acquittal, even if acquittal has been obtained by bribery or perjury.

(21) Defendant may make state pay costs of his appeal; state cannot collect costs of prosecution from defendant even when convicted.

(22) Juries are final arbiters of both law and fact in several states, and in only 15 states may the judge comment or advise jury on evidence.

(23) Defendant may obtain reversal of conviction on various grounds, but state may not ask that punishment be increased.

(24) Appellate courts usually construe any error by trial court as prejudicial to defendant's rights.

(25) Defendant whose conviction is confirmed on appeal may plead that he has become insane since conviction, necessitating new hearing on this issue; state cannot ask reopening of a case on ground that defendant has regained his sanity.

(26) Defendant, if all other resources fail, may ask Governor or pardoning board for release or reduction of sentence.

BECAUSE wailing and cringing wretches were subjected to torture in Seventeenth Century England, sleek and insolent criminals are permitted to laugh at justice in Twentieth Century America.

How this fantastic sequence of cause and effect has come about, and how ancient safeguards have become modern abuses, is shown in the compiled results of an investigation of criminal procedure, made by Herbert S. Hadley, Chancellor of Washington University, former Attorney-General and Governor of Missouri.

Chancellor Hadley has studied this subject since he was a public prosecutor in Kansas City, and has made the study intensive in recent years, while teaching law in the University of Colorado. His last summer vacation, spent on the Maine coast, was given to the preparation of a report on this subject, intended for the American Law Institute, which named him as chairman of a committee of three to make such a report.

The other members of the committee, who were John G. Milburn of New York and Dean William E. Mikell of the University of Pennsylvania, did not concur with Chancellor Hadley in all points, and the revision of the report was not completed in time to be acted upon at the February meeting of the Law Institute in Washington. His own conclusions, most of which are embodied in the committee's revised report, are presented here.

Impatient of Restraints

As an official, Hadley had been impatient of the restraints of usage and the obstacles of technicality, in dealing with crime and criminals. He was familiar with the assertion, which someone always makes when these matters are discussed, that every technicality has its origin in some ancient safeguard against oppression. This usually runs on into an argument that, if the technicality were removed, the oppression might be resumed.

The more he looked into the matter historically, the more Hadley became convinced that any such defense of technicality was an absurdity. He found that rules had been retained long after the occasion for them, or any possibility of its recurrence, had disappeared. He found that practices started as protection to the innocent had been turned into means of easy escape for the guilty.

One rule, which lawyers and Judges now take as a matter of course, is that, when a man on trial for a crime does not testify in his own behalf, the prosecution may make no reference to his silence, in arguing the case before the jury.

Defendants who thus refuse to testify are frequently those with past criminal records, which cross-examination might bring out. Against such men, the argument, "He doesn't deny it," would often be an effective and a just one, but the prosecutor may not make it—if he does, a reversal on appeal is certain. Of this rule, in the light of the historical survey he has made, Chancellor Hadley says:

"Up to the latter part of the seventeenth century, a defendant in England was required to submit to an examination, and torture was frequently resorted to. But in the revolution of 1688, this was changed, and the defendant was denied the right to testify at all; and being denied the right to testify, it was as a matter of fairness provided that his failure to do so should not be commented upon in the trial.

Effective Protection for Guilty

"Now, we no longer deny the accused the right to testify, but we keep the other provision, which went with that denial, and which, though it was in its inception a protest against torture, and for the defense of the innocent, has now become one of the most effective methods for protection of the guilty.

"What could be more logical and sensible than to ask the defendant, who knows more of the facts than any other, what he has to say about them? The alternative of giving to the State the right to comment on his failure to testify would seem to be clearly dictated by every consideration of fairness and common sense."

The presumption of innocence is another thing that is taken for granted. Probably the thing most familiar to the public in court procedure, and most often cited in nonlegal arguments of all sorts, is the assertion that every man is presumed to be innocent until he is proven to be guilty.

"The presumption of innocence, as generally interpreted by our courts," Chancellor Hadley says, "is another inheritance of a rule established during a period of oppression.

"At a time when the principal criminal prosecutions were political, no presumption of guilt was warranted by them. But today, in the ordinary criminal case, after the police, a Coroner's jury (if it is a homicide case), the examining Magistrate, the prosecuting officer and a grand jury have declared on their oaths after investigation that a crime has been committed and that they think the defendant is guilty—in such a case it is a contradiction in terms, it is almost an insult to intelligence, to assert, with the force and reiteration usual in a criminal trial, that the law presumes the defendant innocent.

No Presumption in France.

"If the law presumes him innocent, why do its representatives prosecute him? In a system founded on logic, no presumptions should be indulged either way. This is the rule in France, and was the rule of the Roman law."

With the presumption of innocence, the requirement that the defendant must be proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt is linked as an ancient inheritance. Of this, Chancellor Hadley says:

"That the prosecution should prove guilt, and prove it clearly and satisfactorily, is a logical and sensible rule. But the assertion that it is better that 99 guilty men escape than that one innocent man be punished is a sentimental enlargement of the saying of the Emperor Hadrian, that it was better that two guilty escape than that one innocent be punished."

Trial by jury is popularly considered a fundamental right, and Chancellor Hadley does not argue against this belief, but he does show how the composition of juries has changed, and he contends that verdicts in criminal cases should be determined, as verdicts in civil cases in this State may be, by less than the entire membership of the jury.

"The jury system, in its origin," he says, "was devised to secure on the jury those who had knowledge of the crime, or who could secure it by personal investigation. For this reason, the jury was selected from the body of the county where the crime was committed, and unanimity of decision was regarded as necessary, since they decided as witnesses on their own knowledge of the facts, rather than as judges.

"Now, this original qualification of the jury has become a disqualification, and the territorial limitation within which a jury must be chosen frequently becomes a means for the guilty to escape successful prosecution.

"The jury system furnishes the means by which the people have a part in the enforcement of their law. It should and unquestionably will continue. But for the trial of minor offenses, the question of a proportionate verdict is receiving deserved attention. Under the Roman law, a majority vote acquitted or convicted, and this is the rule in France and Scotland, where the rules of the Roman law generally obtain."

Verbiage in Indictments.

Verbiage in indictments is deemed by Hadley a conspicuous weakness of American criminal procedure, and one that is particularly likely to subject it to ridicule of those familiar with procedure in England.

"The appellate courts," he says, "have been enmeshed in a confusion of refinements, contradictions and technicalities in passing on the validity of indictments. In the old common law form of indictment for murder, it is necessary that the defendant should be charged, as an essential part of the offense, with an assault. But when the killing has been effected with a pistol, it has greatly bothered some appellate courts, including the Supreme Court of Missouri, whether the assault should be charged to have been committed with the pistol or with the bullets fired from the pistol, and on such hair-splitting technicalities guilty men have gone free. All such questions would be removed if the simple form of indictment which prevails in England were established in every State.

"In cases where convictions are reversed for mere literal defects in the record, such as leaving out the letter 'l' in the world 'malice,' or omitting the word 'the' in the closing clause of the indictment, thus leaving the phrase 'against the peace and dignity of state,' (201 Mo. 202), or because West Virginia was written 'W. Virginia,' we reach

The Political Revolt in the Northwest Is a Reality

CONCLUSION OF POST-DISPATCH OBSERVER AFTER TOUR

Whether the Wisconsin Senator Will Choose to Head a Third-Party Ticket in the Presidential Race or Not Will Depend on His Health and the Quality of the Regular Parties' Nominees—Unlike Roosevelt's Rebellion, This One Seethed Up From the Bottom.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,

Chief Washington correspondent, who has just completed a tour of the Northwestern States to ascertain whether there is a radical revolt against the Republican and Democratic parties and how the Presidential election may be affected this fall by this situation.

Political Trend in the Northwest as It Appeared to Post-Dispatch Observer

WISCONSIN—The La Follette slate of delegates to the Republican National Convention was elected by an overwhelming majority in the April 1 primary. They will present La Follette's progressive platform to the convention. Milwaukee re-elected its Socialist Mayor.

MINNESOTA—The Farmer-Labor party, which sent Magnus Johnson and Shipstead to the Senate, will have a full State ticket in the fall election and expects to win. The Farmer-Labor Federation, which cements the union of farmers and industrial workers in the State, has been organized under the chairmanship of William Mahoney, St. Paul labor leader. The Farmer-Labor party is the political weapon of this federation.

NORTH DAKOTA—Though his name, by his own request, was not on the ballot, La Follette ran second to Coolidge and defeated Johnson in the Republican presidential preference primary in March. Johnson and La Follette together polled more votes than Coolidge. Either one, running alone, would probably have defeated him.

SOUTH DAKOTA—Johnson defeated Coolidge in the contest for the State delegation to the Republican National Convention. Gov. McMaster, radical Republican, defeated Senator Sterling, Conservative, for the senatorial nomination.

NEBRASKA—Norris, radical, is opposed for the Republican senatorial nomination, but probably will win.

IOWA—Chances greatly favor the re-election of Brookhart, radical Republican of the La Follette bloc, to the Senate.

MONTANA — Walsh, oil-lease investigator, faces a fight by the Ku Klux Klan, but with the aid of Wheeler, his radical colleague, probably will be re-elected to the Senate over his Republican opponent.

LA FOLLETTE as a third presidential candidate, against Conservative nominees on the other tickets, would carry Wisconsin and Minnesota, would have better than an even chance in North and South Dakota, Nebraska and Montana, and would run strongly in Iowa. His supporters claim he would carry all these seven states and, in addition, Idaho, Washington and Wyoming.

THE political revolt in the Northwest is in one respect similar to, and in others quite different from, the progressive crusade that Roosevelt led in 1912. The similarity lies in the fact that the third-party movement which has grown out of the Northwestern economic disturbance is centered about the personality of one man—Senator La Follette—just as the Progressive party was built up around Roosevelt.

There the parallel ends. The Bull Moose breakaway from the regular Republican ranks was a revolt starting at the top, among political leaders, and working downward. The revolution of 1924 wells up from the bottom.

There is also this fundamental difference between the two movements: that of 1912 represented merely a cleavage on political issues; the present is founded on the economic issue. Defeat at the polls shot the Progressive party to pieces and sent its members back into their old alignments. The election proved that there was no room in our governmental system for a third purely political party. Roosevelt, if anybody, could have got one going; he made a gallant effort, failed and went back to the regular Republican fold. Had he lived, he would have been the party's nominee for the presidency in 1920.

The current revolt goes deeper. It expresses itself, of course, in political action, but it is economic in origin and purpose. As candidly explained by William Mahoney, the chairman of the Farmer-Labor Federation of Minnesota, it is based on the self-interest—the enlightened self-interest—of the farmers and industrial wage-earners. It is not an "uplift" movement, not a reform drive in the usual sense, but an effort, organized in various ways and under various names, to improve the economic status of the masses. It springs out of the feeling that the country is being managed by the privileged interests to the detriment of the average man. There's nothing new or novel in this line of thought, but it has been intensified and made more vocal by the agricultural chaos in the Northwest and by the revelations in the oil and Daugherty inquiries.

La Follette Makes His Point

La Follette has preached for a long time that the one big issue in this country, the issue transcending everything else, is that of the people against predatory wealth. Years ago he convinced his own State of Wisconson that his analysis was correct, with the result that his opponents have never been able to wean away his following by setting up some other issue. La Follette's strength in Wisconsin, and in the other states to which his influence has extended, consists largely in the fact that he has never for an instant wavered in his fight. He is called by his enemies insincere and a demagogue, but nobody can dispute his perfect consistency. To every measure he applies the same test: Is it in the best interest of the people? So, at any rate, do his supporters believe. He "sold" himself to Wisconsin and then to the farmers of North Dakota, whom he aided in their fights against the Minneapolis milling interests and the railroad machine that once dominated the State.

Gradually, through 30 years of fighting, he gained strength throughout the Northwest, and here and there in other parts of the country. He is not only an idealist, but a hard-headed practical politician. He does not go tilting at windmills when there is nothing to be gained from it: that is why his close friends say that he will not put himself at the head of a third-party movement this year unless he sees a chance to make a real dent in the armor of the old parties.

La Follette has been remarkably successful in choosing his own weapons and making his opponents meet him on his own ground. Both wets and drys are in his following. He tells them that prohibition is only a sumptuary issue after all, not to be compared in importance with the great economic question before the country. Believing in him as they do, they make common cause behind him with a zeal and loyalty that are commanded by few, if any, other men in our public life.

In the tour I have just made of seven of the Northwestern states, I heard little, either from La Follette's friends or his enemies, to indicate that he had been under a cloud during the war. The Northwest, at least, judges him today, favorably or unfavorably, according to the individual point of view, almost wholly by his long record of fighting—as he says—for the people against privilege.

It is not altogether accurate to say that the crusade behind La Follette is a third-party movement. One reason for this I have already suggested: namely, that the movement is grounded wholly on an economic issue—La Follette's issue—and therefore cannot properly be described in the ordinary political terms. It is really, in the eyes of its adherents, a second-party movement; for to them the two old parties are as one. They see the effort as a massing of the liberal forces of the country against the reactionaries, through whose control of the old-party organizations the "invisible government" is enabled to rule the country. Indeed, it is reasonable to believe that the present revolt—which is, after all, but a vivid dramatization of an age-long struggle—will pave the way for an ultimate complete party realignment, the liberals or radicals against the conservatives. Virtually, this is the alignment in effect in several Northwestern states today.

Chances of La Follette Quitting Race

A second reason why "third party" is a misnomer when applied to the forces back of La Follette is that no effort is being made to form a separate political organization, operating as a complete, independent entity, like the Progressive party in 1912. That would be impracticable. The cohesion of the groups supporting La Follette, if he runs, will be only at the top; below that, each group will be free to pursue its independent way. It is believed by many of his supporters that he will prefer to be designated as an Independent Republican candidate.

The matter of title is of small consequence. He has the support of the Farmer-Labor party of Minnesota, of Non-Partisan Leaguers, of Socialists, who will probably indorse him at the national party convention in Cleveland on July 6, of various non-conformist groups who cannot ally themselves with the old parties. Voters of many shades of political thought, hopelessly divided among themselves on ordinary political issues, can get together around La Follette—and will, if he runs—on the broad issue that he lays down as fundamental.

If La Follette elects to stay out of the race, as he may do for any one of three reasons—a breakdown in health, the nomination of a liberal by the Democrats, or the adoption, under his compulsion, of a progressive platform by the Republicans—then the movement which has developed in prospect of his candidacy will fall into its component parts. There is no other man in the country who could hope to win for himself all the diverse elements back of La Follette.

But the breakup of the La Follette boom would not kill the revolt in the Northwest. That is a phenomenon which, while making a La Follette candidacy formidable, is quite independent of it. The revolt, as preceding articles have shown, has manifested itself in the election of radical Senators like Brookhart, on the Republican ticket, and Wheeler, on the Democratic ticket, and the rise of the Farmer-Labor party in Minnesota. An earlier outbreak was seen in the capture of the Republican party machinery in North Dakota by the Non-Partisan League. The disaffection in the Northwest was apparent before the war. Since then it has been heightened by the passage of the Esch-Cummins act which the farmers blame for high freight rates; by the effort of the Harding administration to pass a ship subsidy bill, by the seating of Newberry, by the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill, by general dissatisfaction, in fact, with the policies of the Harding administration. All these grievances have combined with the collapse of farm prices—a collapse reflected in Sheriff's sales and bank failures all over the Northwest—to make that section what it is today, a hotbed of unrest. The farmers want men in Congress and in the executive offices who will be the servants of their material interests. They feel they have been buncoed by the professional politicians.

The failure of the present Congress to pass any relief measure, out of many that have been offered, has increased the farmers' moroseness and correspondingly decreased the chances of the Republican party in the next election. Prevalent throughout the section is a feeling that the Northwest has been "forgotten" by Congress, Coolidge, and, indeed, by all the rest of the country.

Cases of Kellogg and Kenyon

The appointment of Kellogg as Ambassador to Great Britain, after he had been repudiated by the voters of Minnesota, was interpreted as meaning that the President didn't care what the Northwest thought—that this section was wholly beyond the range of his vision. Then the Northwest saw the Norbeck-Burtness bill, providing a fund for the diversification of crops, slaughtered in the Senate, with Lodge and other administration Senators voting against it. Whether this bill would have done any practical good is doubtful, but the farmers in any event would have welcomed its passage as tangible evidence that the administration was taking some thought of their welfare.

Just recently, the progressives of the Northwest received, as they think, another slight at the hands of the President, in his failure to name Judge Kenyon as Attorney-General. In Iowa, especially, there was confident expectation that the President would take this means of recognizing liberal sentiment. Now

History of State Prohibition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE following is a short history of the first half century of prohibition in America, which may not be generally known:

Maine adopted prohibition in 1851, but it has never been enforced.

Vermont voted prohibition in 1852, but in 1903 repealed it when the 87 towns in the State voted for license.

New Hampshire adopted it in 1855, but repudiated it in 1855 when only two counties in the entire State voted for it.

Massachusetts tried it in 1855, but, at an election held in 1889, voted it out by a license majority of 44,552.

Rhode Island tried the experiment in 1853 for 10 years; at another election in 1889, out of a total vote of 38,000, defeated it by a majority of 18,597.

Connecticut went dry in 1854, but gave it up in 1872. In October, 1889, this State again defeated it by a vote of nearly three to one.

New York tried the water cure for two years, from 1854 to 1856.

Pennsylvania defeated the drys in 1889 by a majority of 194,556.

Maryland and Delaware went into the dry ranks for a few years only from 1855 to 1857.

Ohio adopted prohibition in 1855, but repealed the law in the same year.

Michigan had prohibition from 1853 to 1875, when it was abandoned.

Indiana passed a dry law in 1855, which was never enforced; in 1882 it was repudiated by the largest majority cast on any subject in 20 years.

Nebraska tried it in 1855, but shortly thereafter repealed it. In 1880 prohibition was defeated in that State by a majority of 45,000.

Illinois in 1855 adopted and repealed its dry law.

Wisconsin's Legislature tried to impose it upon her people on several occasions in 1855, but the people prevailed upon their Governor to veto it.

Iowa enacted her dry law in 1884, but changed the system 25 years later.

Kansas adopted it in 1882.

In 1887 Texas defeated a proposed prohibition law by a majority of 92,661.

In the same year Tennessee rolled up a majority of 27,693 against the drys.

In 1887 fully two-thirds of the voters of Oregon voted against prohibition.

In November, 1888, West Virginia rolled up a wet majority of 35,574.

North Dakota voted dry in 1889 by a 1159 majority only.

South Dakota voted dry in 1889, but returned to license in 1896 by an overwhelming majority.

The foregoing historical recital proves that, having tried it on a small scale and having failed, we thereupon reasoned that we ought to adopt prohibition upon a large scale and succeed. Wonderful logic to reason thus.

HENRY A. KERSTING.

A Chairman on the Job.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THAT was a very interesting letter in the Post-Dispatch the other day on road building funds. If the people are to vote the proposed tax on gasoline they will want to know that the money goes into the roads. They emphatically do not want this money to go into more political jobs, or into the pockets of unscrupulous gasoline dealers. If the experience of the New England States with the gasoline tax is as unsatisfactory as the letter asserts, it will be well for the people of Missouri to hesitate before voting more taxes on themselves.

There is another point to which I think public attention should be directed. Chairman Gary of the Highway Commission is now in Europe. This is his second trip to Europe since he was placed in charge of Missouri's road enterprise. Now, it is unquestionably Mr. Gary's right to go to Europe as often as he wants to and stay as long as he pleases. But does Chairman Gary of the State Highway Commission enjoy such a right? I question it.

The road project is the biggest job the State has undertaken. Mr. Gary was put in charge of it because of his extraordinary business ability. But no matter how able a man is, he cannot handle a job of this size if he does not stay on the job. It seems to me, Mr. Gary should postpone his European travels until he finishes the road project, or else he should step aside and let somebody take the chairmanship of the Highway Commission who will stay on the job.

National Music Week.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IS St. Louis going to observe this week—May 4-10? We should, as it will stimulate the many musical activities. In reading the daily papers, I notice statements to the effect that many crimes are committed by youths. Now if these youths would have music or a musical education, they would have a reason for staying at home, or, at least, with better companions. The victrola or player-piano would be used for their dances or parties instead of the dance hall. Not only that, it will create a demand in all musical lines. The teacher, music dealer, piano and talking machine salesman, to say nothing of the player rolls and records.

Don't you think this is a good idea?

ERWIN J. RUNG.

THE FARMER'S FRIENDS.

The refrain of an old song must come hauntingly back to the middle-aged farmer as he listens to the rhetoric of importunate politicians. Well may he exclaim, "They're all my friends." Indeed, they are his anxious friends. They grieve with him in his misfortune. They pay him shopworn compliments. They are burning to help him, to prove, in a substantial way, what good friends of his they are.

Those tearfully earnest friends, however, do not seem willing to wrestle with facts. Shutting their eyes to realities they propound vague, impracticable, impossible relief measures. They hope to transmute the farmer's distress into affluence by the magic wand of governmental subsidy. They count at least on winning the farmer's good will by reducing freight rates on farm products.

Those learned friends of the farmer ought to know that neither plan would solve the farmer's problem, or even greatly ameliorate the farmer's difficulties.

The American farmer is suffering from a basic malady. His economic disease is organic. It cannot be treated successfully by legislative fads or phylacteries. If the American farmer is going to sell his goods profitably he must have a market for his goods. If his home market cannot absorb his production he must have a market abroad. In lieu of that his alternative is to curtail production—a policy economically unsound, difficult of execution and by no means certain of yielding the desired results.

Though the entire industry of agriculture fared badly through post-war reconstruction policies the wheat farmer was hit hardest. He is still the victim of those policies, or, more accurately, the failure of our statesmanship to comprehend world conditions and formulate adequate reconstruction policies. There is nothing mysterious about the wheat farmer's plight. The explanation may be found in the dwindling export statistics. The 300,000,000 bushels which the American wheat farmer sold abroad in 1920 shrank to 185,000,000 bushels the next year, was still less the following year and in the current fiscal year will possibly fall below 100,000,000 bushels.

That's what's the matter with our wheat farmer—an inadequate market for his surplus. Until that market is restored the wheat farmer is bound to have a bad time of it, regardless of what bounty may be given him and regardless of what reduction in freight rates may be awarded. This foreign market will be revived only when Europe goes back to work. That is not all. A Europe at work must have a market for her surplus production. So long as we exclude European goods from our market and pile up enormous profits for our tariff barons just so long shall we be burdened with the present oppressive costs of living and so long will the American wheat farmer's present plight continue.

Those are the facts and the inescapable inferences. The solution, manifestly, can be had only by a courageous face-about in our attitude towards Europe and the adoption of a broad foreign policy that will square with facts instead of pandering to prejudice.

That is the job which the political friends of the farmer must tackle.

CAPITAL LEVY DEFEATED.

As the more radical political group in the United States favors a so-called capital levy, the defeat of the bill for such a measure in the British House of Commons, by a vote of 325 to 160, should assure the minds of American capitalists that this generation at least is safe from confiscation of its accumulations.

The capital levy proposal has been a bugaboo of British capitalists ever since the Labor party grew from a total of about 100,000 votes and nine members of Parliament in 1900 to over 4,000,000 votes, with a membership of 192 in Parliament, in 1923. It was one of the cardinal aims of the Labor party, whose leaders claimed that it would be a panacea for the financial troubles of the country. Of course, the Liberals and Conservatives were violently opposed to such a measure. Sidney Webb, one of the ablest spokesmen of the Labor party, now president of the Board of Trade, considered a capital levy "an indispensable step to any stable, economic order" in Great Britain.

Briefly, the capital levy plan provided for the seizure of a percentage of all privately held wealth over and above an individual exemption of 5000 pounds sterling. It was estimated that this levy would raise 3,400,000,000 pounds sterling, or approximately $17,000,000,000. The proceeds were to be applied to the retirement of the public debt. The total public debt of the United Kingdom, excluding the colonies and India, is now $39,314,994,000. The Laborites claim that the payment of interest on this debt bears most heavily on the working class, the rate of interest being stationary while prices have fallen, so that more goods must be produced to pay than when the money was borrowed. Also, that the bulk of the bonds are held by the wealthy class.

Had this project succeeded, it would have amounted to confiscation of not less than one-seventh of the accumulated wealth. It would have been a long step in the direction the bolshevists took after the fall of Kerensky in Russia.

THE CASE OF ILLINOIS.

Illinois will hold a primary election next Tuesday. The canvass is an ugly affair. Gov. Small is a candidate for renomination. He is charged with grave offenses. He was State Treasurer before he was Governor. While Treasurer he is charged with lending money, through a bank contrived for the function, at high interest rates, only a part of which earnings he turned back to the State. He was tried on that charge and acquitted, but the verdict is frankly repudiated by the comment, with its obvious implication, that a number of the jurors were subsequently rewarded with State jobs.

Small is charged with abusing the pardoning power and saving from prison terms operatives in the Chicago underworld who had been tried and found guilty of shocking crimes. There are many other charges against him. The charges are responsibly made. They are made by citizens of such standing as former Gov. Lowden, Attorney-General Brundage and State Senator Essington, who is contesting the nomination with Small. They have been recited in detail and with extraordinary force by the Chicago Tribune.

If guilty as charged, Small's address should be Joliet. If the people of Illinois cannot send Small to the penitentiary they surely can keep him out of Springfield. Suppose they don't. Suppose that Small, with his political machine and the multitudinous resources of his office, plus the apathy of good citizenship characteristic of our primaries, should win the nomination. What then?

In that event Len Small will not be the only person on trial. The State of Illinois will be on trial. Particularly such eminent citizens as Mr. Lowden and Mr. Essington will be on trial. The Chicago Tribune will be on trial. For if the charges against Small are true, or if they are sincerely made, it will be impossible for his accusers honorably to support him. Party regularity is a fetich, to be sure, but can Mr. Lowden, Mr. Essington and the Tribune justify supporting Small on that plea? They can do so only by subordinating self-respect to the party label.

BIRTH-CONTROL HEARINGS.

The friends and foes of birth control are to be given hearings before a joint subcommittee of the judiciary committees of both houses of Congress, on the Cummins-Vaile birth-control bill, starting April 8.

Missouri is one of 24 states in which, under an old Federal law, information on birth control is classed as obscene matter and therefore prohibited. Sponsors for the bill, acting for the Voluntary Parenthood League and a large number of women's organizations, contend that such information, furnished under medical sanction, is not only proper but necessary, if children are to be well born and mothers protected from the evils of excessive child-bearing.

There is no valid argument for withholding scientific knowledge on this subject. The United States is the only nation where the furnishing of such knowledge is illegal. Holland and New Zealand, where such knowledge is general, have the lowest infant death rates of any civilized countries. Ignorance is the real evil, bringing all kinds of suffering, too often unmerited, in its train.

MISSOURI'S FRUIT TREES.

What has become of the fruit-growing enthusiasm which once gave Missouri a reputation as the State of "the big red apple"? A decrease in the number of fruit trees in the State from 23,000,000 in 1910 to 8,000,000 in 1920, according to Federal statistics, is truly discouraging. Something must be done to reverse this process.

States in the Far West, such as Oregon, Washington and California, have snatched the fruit-growing banner from Missouri. Why are their products displacing ours? We can grow as fine apples as any. And all other fruits adapted to this region can be grown to perfection, with the proper treatment.

The secret appears to be in the fact that the Far Western fruits are better cared for in growing, better packed, better advertised, and better marketed than those of Missouri. Wake up, Missouri fruit growers, and show that you can do as well as, or better than, any.

THE "WALRUS" AND THE "OYSTERS."

(From "All Is in Blunderland," After Lewis Carroll, by George O. Jager.)

CAST OF CHARACTERS.

The "Walrus" (Senator Walsh from mustache.)

The "Carpenter" (Senator Wheeler, "hammers away!").

The "Eldest Oyster" (ex-Secretary Fall who refuses to testify).

"Young Oysters" (other witnesses).

Time, NOW! Place, Washington, D. C. (Senate committee room).

The "Walrus" and the "oyster"
Were working hand in hand;
They wept like anything to see
Such quantities of "sand;"
"Could this be only cleared away,"
Said they: "It would be grand!"

"If seven maids with seven mops,
Swept it for half a year,
Do you suppose," the "Walrus" asked,
"That they could get it clear?"
"I doubt it," sighed the "Carpenter,"
And shed a bitter tear!

"O, 'Oysters,' come and talk with us!"
The "Walrus" did beseech;
"Now, Brother Fall, pray tell us all,
Upon the witness bench!
We cannot fail, with less than four
To give a hand to each!"

The "Eldest Oyster" looked at him
But never a word he said!
The "Eldest Oyster" winked his eye
And shook his heavy head,
Meaning to say he did not choose
To leave his "oyster bed!"

But four "Young Oysters" hurried up,
Eager to "talk," and four
More followed them—and more,
And more, and more, and more!
All hopping through the Senate halls
To the committee's door!

The "Walrus" and the "Carpenter"
Talked on for months or so!
And rested in betimes, for both
Caught colds severe, you know
While all the "Little Oysters" stood
And waited, in a row!

"The time has come!" the "Walrus" said,
"To talk of many things!
Of oil and stocks and ships and—er—
Of cabbages and kings;
And why the "pot" is boiling hot
And whether news has wings!"

"But wait a bit!" the "Oysters" cried,
"Before we start our chat!
For most of us are out of breath,
And all of us are fat!"
"No hurry!" quoth the "Carpenter,"
They thanked him much for that!

"They have the 'bread,'" the "Walrus" said,
Now what we chiefly need
Is pepper—vinegar besides,
Is very good, indeed!
So if you're ready 'Oysters' dear,
We will proceed to 'feed.'"

"But not on us!" the "Oysters" cried,
Turning a little blue;
"After such kindness that would be
A dismal thing to do!"
"The fire is fine!" the "Walrus" said,
"So be prepared to 'stew.'"

"It was so kind of you to come!
And you are very nice!"
The "Carpenter" said nothing but
"Cut us another slice!"
And Press and Public said the same.
The "stew" was very nice.

"It seems a shame!" the "Walrus" cried,
"To play them such a trick
After we brought 'em out so far,
And made 'em "talk so slick!"
The "Carpenter" said nothing. Press
And Public said: 'We're sick!"

"I fell for you," the "Walrus" said,
"I deeply sympathize!"
(He had a cold)—while sorting out
The ones of largest size,
Holding his handkerchief before
His red and watery eyes!

"O, "Oyster," quoth the "Carpenter,"
"You've had a pleasant run!
Shall you be trotting home again?"
But answer there was none!
And this was scarcely odd, because They'd "shelled" 'em, every one!

It is thought that in naming a successor to Mr. Daugherty the President reserved Judge Kenyon to be his running mate. Keeping Judge Kenyon out of the way is one of the respects in which the best minds have truly functioned. Mr. Harding, who did not want to see him nominated for the presidency this fall, put him on the Federal bench; and now Mr. Coolidge, who does not want to see him nominated for the presidency any more than Mr. Harding did, reserve for him the honor of running with him. It would be interesting to know what Judge Kenyon has in mind as to all this beyond the usual accommodation.

Mr. Bryan, like Mr. Roosevelt, thinks the Government should pay the expenses of candidates for public office, leaving the oil companies and other interests out of it. Considering that our impression has always been that the expenses alone keep most of us from running, we may be said to be curious for details.

There is nothing funny about the way working people live in Glasgow, and we are indebted to that revelation for a little less relish for Scotch tightness than we have been enjoying. If they are that tight, it is a different thing.

CARONDELET PARK.

O LOVELY spot! All decked in raiment fair,
Where wild birds warble in untutored song;
O haunted glade! With fragrance on the air,
Thy beauty in my heart will linger long.

Thy winding walk, enchantment ever lend,
And carry me in sweetest dreams away;
Thy hills and trees in wondrous magic bend,
Where fairies in their midst, must dance all day.

Afar the city sits upon its hills,
A panorama stretched against the sky;
But here, a reverent hush—thy bower fills,
While my reluctant steps leave thee to sigh.

Adieu, beloved vale, so sweet to me,
Whose memory I keep in brightest dream;
Again thy haunts, in visions dear I'll see,
Like some reflected glory from God's gleam.

Insolent Criminals Permitted To Laugh at Justice in the U. S.

glorification of technicality that difficult either to understand or excuse.

Non-Technical Terms.

"English indictments are in -technical terms, charging the ndants with the offenses comted, in about the same language would be used by a capable spaper reporter in describing crime. Possible errors and rersals of conviction, as well as controversies over alleged defects in the indictment, are thus done away.

"On questions of procedure alone, there are more reversals in American courts than there are for all causes in the courts of England, and in England there are no reversals on questions of procedure which do not affect the merits of the case. This is another way of saying that in England there are no reversals at all on questions of procedure."

(One of the proposed amendments to the Constitution of Missouri, which was defeated in the recent special election, provided that in indictments, it should suffice to "state in plain and concise language the facts constituting the alleged offense.")

Lessening of the powers of the Judge is another American development which, in Hadley's view, represents a backward step from the English standards. This, also, is traced to "distrust of authority and fear of oppression," which in some states was carried to the point of denying trial judges the right to instruct the jury on the facts of a case, or to comment thereon. In some states, the jury has been made judge of the law as well as of the facts, "the judge being relegated to the position of presiding officer of a tribunal, as to whose deliberations he could advise, but could not direct.

An American Innovation.

"In England," Hadley says, "the judge has always been the dominant influence in the trial of a criminal case, and the limitation of his authority by denying him the right to comment or advise the jury as to the facts, is distinctly an American innovation." He quotes Prof. Thayer, in his treatise on evidence, as saying:

"Trial by jury, in a form which would withhold from the jury the assistance of the court in dealing with the facts, is not trial by jury in any historic sense of the term."

The right of appeal is also an American device, Hadley says, and the practice of reversing a criminal conviction and remanding a case for a new trial is peculiar to this country. He does not believe there will be substantial changes in the defendant's right of appeal, but he favors an increased right of appeal for the State, in cases where trial Judges are held to have erred in deciding points of law in the defandant's favor.

"The right of a defendant not to be twice placed in jeopardy is a safeguard peculiar to English and American law," he continues. "Under the Roman law, one could be twice or thrice tried for the same offense, and tradition asserts that it was on a second trial, after acquittal, that the Apostle Paul was convicted.

"While, as an abstract proposition, the question whether one should be twice tried for the same offense might be open to argument, the principle is so thoroughly established in our Constitutions, and is so much a part, not only of our jurisprudence but also of our civilization, that any discussion looking to its modification would be a waste of time. But the question as to when one has been in jeopardy, so as to prevent another trial, is one on which there is much difference of opinion."

Differences in Practices.

Differences in the practices of states are cited. In Missouri, Ohio and Georgia, a defendant indicted on a murder charge and convicted only of manslaughter, if he appeals and gets a second trial, may then be found guilty of murder; while in Illinois, California and Pennsylvania, he may be convicted only of manslaughter on the second trial, on the theory that the first verdict acquitted him of the murder charge.

In preparing these matters for his report to the American Law Institute, Chancellor Hadley made them the basis for a recommendation that the institute undertake a "restatement" of laws relating to criminal procedure, as a basis for reforms on the part of the states. He will continue to press such a recommendation on the institute. As to the bearing of the conditions shown on the people of this city and State, the Chancellor said:

"The most important influence in the enforcement of the law is public opinion. To enforce the law properly requires the co-operation of the police, the prosecutor, the judges and the public who constitute the juries. A strong public opinion can make all these do their duty; and a strong, courageous prosecutor or judge can arouse the right sort of public opinion just as a strong, courageous newspaper can also do. Even under our present archaic system the effective co-operation of all these agencies can get good results.

"I succeeded Senator Reed as prosecutor in Kansas City in 1901, and during the four years we were in office I don't believe there were a half dozen acquittals in felony cases. The judge was capable, the police were efficient, and public opinion was interested in and demanded vigorous prosecutions and courageous juries. A few years ago Cleveland had about the worst administration of criminal justice in the United States, but they now have, with the exception of New York City, probably the best of any large city. Under competent leadership and with the support of the press the people got together, found out the reasons why things were going wrong and corrected them. Detroit and Baltimore have made or are making similar corrections. It can be done in St. Louis.

"Here in Missouri we have about the most archaic and inefficient criminal procedure of any state, and this fact has its influence in producing acquittals, and acquittals produce crimes and criminal organizations. But the people of Missouri can have just as good enforcement of the law as they really want. It may take an exposure of a condition of public corruption such as Gov. Folk made or continued acquittals or immunity for ordinary criminals, to arouse people to a realization of its importance. But if they are really aroused, they can get the results they want."

NEW 'DRY' NAVY OF 300 VESSELS READY SOON

Coast Guard to Have 20 Destroyers and 5000 Additional Men to Chase Rum Runners.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The first units of the Coast Guards' new prohibition navy probably will be ready to put to sea within a few weeks. With an additional $18,000,000 available under a recent congressional appropriation, coast guard officials have drawn up detailed plans for the acquisition of some 300 large and small vessels equipped to chase rum runners away from American shores and for an enlarged personnel to man them.

The nucleus of the force will be 20 destroyers, which Congress authorized the Coast Guard to purchase from the navy. The present intention is to select 20 ships from the destroyer squadron now lying out of commission at Philadelphia. Coast Guard officials have inspected these ships and are drawing up specifications for their reconditioning.

A date for receiving bids for construction of patrol boats probably will be fixed within a few days. It is the hope of those in charge of the work that many of the 250 or more vessels of this type can be purchased, made serviceable and put into use after minor alterations. Exact specifications are yet to be announced.

The plan to provide a sufficient personnel contemplates an active recruiting campaign and graduation this fall of next year's class of officers at the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn. In all nearly 5000 additional officers and men will be required to man the fleet.

OKLAHOMAN ACCUSED OF OIL FRAUD FIGHT EXTRADITION

T. F. Green Under Arrest at Chillicothe, Mo., Accused by Woman Buyer of Stock.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5.—An application ofr extradition to Sayre, Ok., of T. F. Green, now under arrest in Chillicothe, Mo., on a charge of obtaining money under fradulent pretenses, was presented to the Governor's office today and a hearing set for Monday morning. Green is fighting extradition and has employed counsel.

The information against Green, which accompanied the requisition papers, charged Green sold stock in an oil refinery, which never was built, to Dr. Agnes Freye, of Sayre, and failed to deliver the stock. It is alleged Green represented the refinery was to be built at Sayre. The information states she turned ove rto Green an automobile valued at $750 and $241 in cash to pay for the stock she was to receive.

25,000 DIE FROM PLAGUE IN INDIA IN ONE MONTH

Epidemic in the Punjab Expected to Continue for Another Six Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

LAHORE, India, April 5.—Approximately 25,000 deaths from plague occurred in the Punjab during March and the epidemic is expected to continue for another six weeks. The virulence is so great that Punjab University has postponed its annual examinations for one month. The Government has made a large grant for medical assistance.

POLITICAL REVOLT IN THE NORTHWEST BECOMES REALITY

it is being widely said in the Northwest that the President, by offering Kenyon the Navy secretaryship, where his talents would have been lost, and rejecting him for the Attorney-Generalship, in which he could have accomplished much good, convicted himself of insincerity and showed that he had made up his mind to "play ball" with the East rather than the progressive West.

The economic insurgency in the Northwest is not merely agrarian, but has a substantial labor element. This is particularly true in Minnesota, where labor and the farmers have come together in a political party which is now the dominant party of the State.

The name Farmer-Labor was deliberately chosen to show the economic basis on which the party rests. Conservatives say that the union of the farmers and organized labor is unnatural and cannot last. According to William Mahoney, the presiding genius of the party, there is a vital community of interest between the two; he sees both the agricultural worker and the city wage-worker as victims of the same system of exploitation. When hard times strike the farms, Mahoney argues, farmers drift into the cities and become competitors of the industrial workers; a surplus of city labor results, and wages are beaten down. The Farmer-Labor party, he says, today is stronger than ever.

This party is the nearest thing in this country to the British Labor party. It represents a radical departure from the Gompers policy, under which the American Federation of Labor makes up a "non-partisan" slate for its support, from the candidates named by the Democrats and Republicans. Mahoney says he wants [illegible] are definitely committed to the welfare of the masses of the people—and that, in a nutshell, is the object of the whole insurgent movement of the Northwest. This is the key to the demand for Congressional Medal Man Dies.

By the Associated Press.

HAVERHILL, Mass., April 5.—Captain Benjamin H. Jellison, a holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor, died today. During the battle of Gettysburg, when the bearer of the Union colors was shot, Jellison picked up the colors and charged on. Later in the same battle, he captured a Confederate flag and for this he was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Didn't Waste Money on Food

"The recent campaign against wastefulness in eating did not affect me much, as I haven't been able to eat anything but toast and tea for the past five years. Even that would create gas and cause me distress. My weight was down to 84 pounds and my complexion muddy. I had frequent pains in the region of my appendix. I am glad I did not listen to an operation, as Mayr's Wonderful Remedy has made a new woman of me." DUE TO GO TO JAIL, BROKER GOES ON TRIP

T. H. Forrester, Held in Contempt of Court, Expected Back in Week, However.

People adjudged in contempt of court usually go to jail, but T. H. Forrester, stock broker, is an exception. He has gone traveling and he didn't ask the court's permission to do so. A Deputy Sheriff may head the reception committee when he returns.

Circuit Judge Frey on Friday adjudged Forrester, who has offices in the Central National Bank Building, to have been in contempt for failing to obey a decree which commanded him to deliver 225 shares of International Life Insurance Co. stock to Dr. L. A. T. Meyer of Jefferson City. The Sheriff's office delayed arresting Forrester to await papers from the court committing Forrester to jail.

In the meantime, that night, Forrester left St. Louis for the South, according to Mrs. Forrester, who is still at their home, 5861 Julian avenue. She said the contempt proceedings had nothing to do with the trip, as Forrester had been planning it for some time. She expects him back in a week.

Forrester's present difficulty had its origin in a suit by Dr. Meyer to recover stock which he had purchased from the broker, but which the broker had not delivered, holding it as security for indebtedness to him of $7660.44. Judge Frey, after hearing both sides ordered Dr. Meyer to pay the debt and Forrester to deliver the stock. Forrester failed to comply with the order, although Dr. Meyer said he waited to hand the broker $7660.44. The contempt order followed.

Forrester, sentenced to jail until he complied with the order, said he could not deliver the stock because he had none and furthermore the stock would cost him $14,000 at prevailing market prices. Forrester's attorney spoke of habeas corpus proceedings in case his client was jailed.

JUSTICE SPEEDS UP IN CASE OF ROBBER OF ALBERT B. LAMBERT

Thief Who Held Up Pharmacal Company Head March 11, Sentenced to Serve Five Years.

Municipal Courts Buildings attaches commented yesterday on an instance of speedy justice, in strong contrast with many criminal cases that are dragged out in the courts. The case in point was that of Joseph Kieferle, 22 years old, a chemist, of Milwaukee, who robbed Albert Bond Lambert, chairman of the board of the Lambert Pharmacal Co. and aviation leader, of $110 and a watch, near Kingshighway and Pershing avenue, March 11, less than a month ago.

Yesterday Kieferle pleaded guilty before Circuit Judge Hamilton and was sentenced to five years' imprisonment. He had waived a preliminary hearing. Soon he will be taken to the penitentiary.

Detectives noticed a stolen license on a car in front of 4129 Washington boulevard the night of March 17 and arrested Kieferle, who was rooming there and who said he bought the car and license. Under his bed they found papers taken from Lambert, who afterward identified him as the robber and caused him to confess the robbery and the stripping of an automobile.

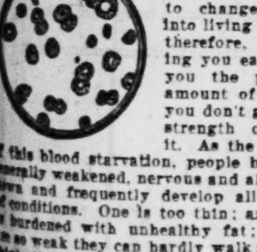
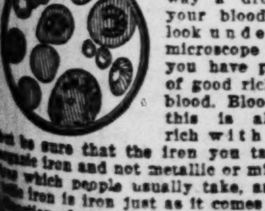
Nuxated Iron Will Make You Well and Strong

THIS little picture shows you what the Doctor sees through his microscope when he looks at a drop of your blood when you are tired and run-down.

This is thin, pale, watery blood which keeps you weak, nervous and run-down. If you tire easily; if you look pale, haggard and worn, it would probably astonish you to look at a drop of your own blood under the Doctor's powerful microscope and compare it with a drop of pure, healthy blood, rich in iron. Actual blood tests show that a tremendously large number of people who are weak and ill, lack iron in their blood, are ill for no other reason than for lack of iron.



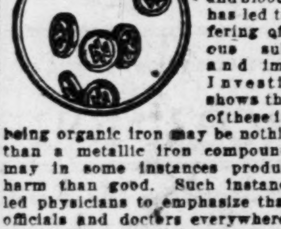
Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue, therefore, nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good, you don't get the strength out of it. As the result of this blood starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run-down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance.



HERE is a picture of the way a drop of your blood will look under the microscope when you have plenty of good rich red blood. Blood like this is always rich with iron, but be sure that the iron you take is organic iron and not metallic or mineral iron which people usually take, as metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings.

Organic iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. It may be had from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such highly condensed form that one dose of it is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

THIS picture shows you the Nuxated Iron tablets with the letters N. I. on every tablet. This is your guarantee that you are getting genuine Nuxated Iron.



The tremendous success of Nuxated Iron as a tonic, strength and blood-builder has led to the offering of numerous substitutes and imitations. Investigation shows that many of these instead of being organic iron may be nothing more than a metallic iron compound which may in some instances produce more harm than good. Such instances have led physicians to emphasize that health officials and doctors everywhere should caution the public against accepting substitutes for Nuxated Iron.

OVER 4,000,000 PEOPLE annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood, help revitalize your wornout exhausted nerves and give you new strength and energy. It costs about eighteen times as much to make organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, as it does to make metallic iron, though it costs you but little more. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. If you are not feeling quite up to the mark, start taking Nuxated Iron today. In tablet form only; look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. Nuxated Iron for the blood and nerves is sold by all druggists.

NEUN EXPLAINS DELAY OF COURTHOUSE BILL

Plenty of Time to Allow All Interested Persons Chance to Be Heard, He Says.

President Neun of the Board of Aldermen yesterday issued a statement concerning the vote of the board on Friday to recommit the bill to locate the new bond issue Courthouse on the projected Memorial Plaza site, in which he asserted the action would give all persons concerned a chance to be heard. He said:

"The board did not pass on the merits of the bill and no alderman has, to my knowledge, changed his mind on the bill, but the board thought that in view of the fact the Courthouse will not be built for five or six years there was no immediate hurry in the matter and for the good of the public every one who was interested should be given the opportunity to be heard.

"The aldermen are a very conscientious group of men and they will not be swayed from their purpose by influence or anything else. A question concerning the legality of placing the Courthouse on the Plaze site was raised and Alderman Udell, chairman of the committee,. stated that he had taken that matter up with the legal department, and this was also one of the reasons why the matter was deferred.

"Instead of placing the members of the board in a false light the newspapers should praise our fair and unbiased stand in giving every person interested a fair and full chance to be heard before final action is taken on the bill by the board."

It will be recalled that recently the board was almost unanimously in favor of the Courthouse site. The vote to recommit, taken Friday, was 19 to 9. The night before some aldermen, the Mayor and other city officials were guests at a dinner of bankers and other business interests favoring retention of the Courthouse on Broadway.

President Neun declared that presence of Aldermen at the dinner had nothing to do with their vote, though, "unfortunately, the sequence of events is there." Asked if it had been suggested that perhaps Aldermen ought not to have attended, he answered that they had been assured they would not be asked to commit themselves at the time.

"We felt it would be our duty as public servants," said Neun, "to listen to what they had to say, the same as we would to anyone else."

He said he had favored the plaza site and that nothing had arisen to change his opinion. He added facetiously that a dinner wouldn't change an Alderman's opinion.

Monday--Comfort Day
Brings Special Values

Here are four styles that combine attractiveness and ease in a most pleasing way. And each is carried in such a broad range of sizes and widths that accurate fit is certain. Comfortably low priced, too.

Ladies' 2-Strap Pumps $3
Sizes...3 to 9
Widths, A to EE
A graceful style, made of soft, "easy" black kid. Cushion insoles and steel arch supports are a further assurance of comfort. Hand-turned soles. Rubber heels. A wonderful value at $3.00

Nurses' Oxfords $3
Sizes..........3 to 9
Widths........B to EE
Comfortable, but neat-looking black kid Oxfords, made with tip or plain toe, turned soles, cushion insoles, steel arch supports and rubber heels. Extra value at....$3.00

Home-Wear Slippers $2
Sizes..........3 to 8
Restful as can be are these black kid one-strap Slippers, with their extra-flexible soles and springy rubber heels. Attractive in appearance, too.

Semi-Dress Oxfords $3.50
Sizes..3 to 9
Widths, A to EE
Here's an Oxford that combines ease and style in a most acceptable way. Short-vamp model made of black kid. Hand-turned soles, Cuban rubber heels, cushion insole and steel arch support. Special at $3.50

Girls' Strap Pumps
Sizes 2½ to 7
Special value at $4.00
A clever new style for growing girls. Choice of brown, gray suede, gray elkskin and patent leather. Medium round toes and low rubber heels make them easy to walk in.

Sally Sandals
Sizes 8½ to 11 $2.25 | Sizes 4 to 8 $2.00
Dainty looking, with plenty of room for five toes, this is the ideal dress Shoe for youngsters; made on foot-shaping lasts, hand-turned soles, spring heels; choice of patent leather, all-white or red kid.

Women's Strap Pumps
The most popular new styles
$5.00
The dainty short-vamp models that Fashion has approved for Spring, 1924. Choose them here in patent leather, black kid or black satin. They're made with flexible soles and Cuban, Spanish or Louis heels.

"B Y O B"—BRING YOUR OWN BOOZE OR YOUR OLD BUDDIES?

Commotion in Dry Circles in Washington Over Former Army Officers' Invitations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The mysterious legend "B. Y. O. B.," inscribed on invitations to a dinner to be held in New York Monday night under the auspices of former army officers, stirred up something of a commotion today in prohibition circles here.

The Anti-Saloon League interpreted the inscription to mean "Bring your own boose," and Wayne B. Wheeler issued a formal statement calling on Congress to "oust" army officers who violate the liquor laws.

Secretary Weeks did not share the suspicions of the dry leaders. He indicated that he regarded the four cabalistic letters as a jest, or perhaps as meaning "Bring your old buddies." He declined an invitation to the dinner, but solely because of a previous engagement.

The dinner, arranged by reserve officers, is to be attended by those who served during the World War, in the purchase, storage and traffic section of the general staff, now obsolete.

Would Abandon Branch Lines.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5. — The Detroit & Mackinaw Railway asked the Interstate Commerce Commission today for authority to abandon two branch lines, one between Lincoln and Lincoln Junction, Mich., and the other between Tower and Legrande, Mich.

DETECTIVE SUCCUMBS TO BULLET WOUNDS

East St. Louis Officer Was Shot 3 Times Attempting to Arrest Suspect.

Henry Bodendieck, East St. Louis detective, died in St. Mary's Hospital at noon yesterday from bullet wounds suffered Thursday night, when he attempted to arrest a burglary suspect in a candy kitchen at Fortieth and Waverly avenue. One bullet pierced both lungs and the other penetrated the right shoulder.

Bodendieck was 45 years old and resided at 919 South Eleventh street. He was reappointed to the police force February 11, last, having resigned in 1920 after many years' service as a patrolman.

The suspect, Floyd Williams, 24, of 9 South Fourth street, East St. Louis, was disarmed by other detectives after shooting Bodendieck and is being held at headquarters. He admits the shooting but will make no other statement.

Wreck Near Jefferson City.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 5.—Nine freight cars were demolished today on the Missouri Pacific Railroad in a wreck near McKinney, about nine miles west of here on the River Route, according to railroad officials. Two freight trains, numbers 61 and 66, "sideswiped" each other. No. 61 had taken a siding switch and had not quite cleared when No. 66 hit it, derailing a number of freight cars and demolishing nine of them. No one was reported injured. It was stated that the wreck will probably delay traffic on the route throughout the day.

Increase for Mechanical Employes.

CHICAGO, April 5.—An increase estimated at approximately $76,000 a year in rates of mechanical employes of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railroad today was reported to the Railroad Labor Board by the company. The increase, 1 cent an hour, applies to lead men, mechanics, carmen and their helpers and apprentices, and to laborers in the mechanical department, including stationary firemen.

LIST OF SPEAKERS FOR Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN

Pastors for Many Cities to Take Part in Effort to Get $3,000,000 for Buildings.

At the headquarters of the campaign to raise $3,000,000 for new Y. M. C. A. buildings and extensions in St. Louis, there was made known yesterday the personnel of the speakers who will be active in the drive, beginning Sunday, May 4. The announcement was made by L. C. Haworth, executive secretary of the St. Louis Y. M. C. A., and A. G. Knebel of Chicago, secretary of the central region of the International Committee, covering 10 states, who has been "loaned" to the St. Louis campaign organization. The speakers, who will appear in St. Louis pulpits on the opening Sunday date, are as follows:

Col. John T. Axton, chief chaplain of the U. S. Army, Washington; Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, President Coolidge's pastor, First Congregational Church, Washington; Houston Thompson, Chairman Federal Trade Commission, Washington; James A. Spears, president of McCutcheon & Co., and chairman of the International Committee, New York; Dr. Edwin Broome, Superintendent of Schools, Philadelphia; Congressman W. D. Upshaw, vice president Southern Baptist Convention, Atlanta; Dr. Ralph D. Sockman, pastor of the Madison Avenue M. E. Church, New York; Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, pastor Bethel Evangelical Church, Detroit; Dr. Miles Krumbine, pastor of the First Lutheran Church, Dayton, O.; Dean Plato Durham, Emery University, Atlanta, Ga.; Dr. Gaius Glenn Atkins, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Detroit; Dean Warren L. Rogers, St. Paul's Cathedral, Detroit; Dr. Edwin Keigwin, pastor West End Presbyterian Church, New York; Dr. Edgar de Witt Jones, Central Christian Church, Detroit; Dr. Holmes Whitemore, rector St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Milwaukee; Capt. E. W. Scott, chief chaplain U. S. Army, Washington; Bishop Charles Wesley Burns, Bishop of Montana of the M. E. Church.

PAPERS LAWYER VALUES AT $10,000 TAKEN ON TRAIN

Related to $200,000 Suit, He Tells Railroad Officials—Men Who Left Train Sought.

A. M. Frumberg, an attorney, was robbed of legal papers valued by him at $10,000 while returning from Chicago to St. Louis last Wednesday, it was learned yesterday. Frumberg said the documents related to a suit involving $200,000 and consisted of affidavits, certificates, depositions and United States Government departmental letters.

Frumberg boarded a Wabash train in Chicago at 10:30 p. m., Wednesday, and placed his grip in his berth. When he arrived at St. Louis, Thursday morning, it was gone. Two soldiers, who left the train at Taylorville, Ill., are sought for questioning. Frumberg said the papers might prove of considerable value to the parties who took them and that it would take three months to duplicate them.

Allen V. Burr, local manager for the Pullman company, said an investigation of the theft was under way.

HIGH SCHOOL TEACHERS SEEK SALARY INCREASES

Letter to Board of Education Reiterates Plea for 25 Per Cent Advance.

The High School Teachers' Association, which comprises about 90 per cent of the high school teachers of St. Louis, has again petitioned the members of the Board of Education and Superintendent of Instruction Maddox to consider the question of increased compensation.

"We urge you to review the facts and arguments submitted to you some months ago in support of our petition for a 25 per cent increase in salary," their letter states. "We wish to remind you again of the pressing need for the increase. We believe you cannot fail to understand the financial difficulties which the high school teachers experience trying to support themselves and their families in a respectable manner on the salaries they receive, and that delay in providing relief only serves to increase the gravity of the situation."

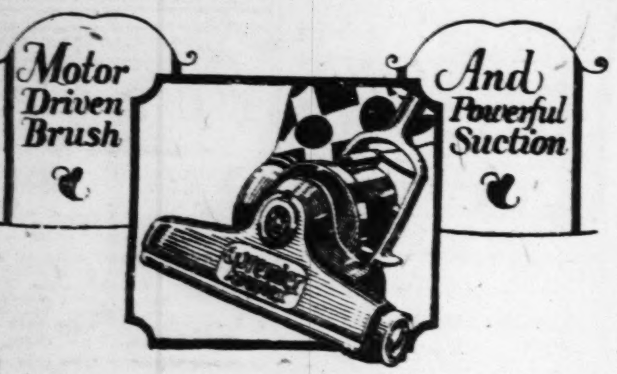
Hugh H. Barr of Central High is president of the association.

DOG TAX REFUND COMING

St. Clair County Owners of Pets Benefit by New Law.

County Auditor George Eckert of Belleville reports that there will be a refund of $9,884.66 to the various townships of St. Clair County out of the accumulated dog tax fund as a result of the passage of a new law by the Illinois Legislature.

The money paid in by dog owners in the rural district goes toward payment of indemnity to farmers who have sheep killed by dogs or who lose cattle as a result of contagious diseases when the animals are ordered killed by the State. The fund has been growing for four years. Under the new law everything above $2000 and expenses for cattle payments is to be refunded each year. The refund will be pro-rated among the townships and can be used for township purposes.



Smooth Running —with NO OIL

Most important in a vacuum cleaner is smoothness and ease of operation. Does it need constant oiling? Does it balk when it's dry? Does it cry for oil to keep its motor working? Not in the Premier Duplex—with its ball-bearing motor, packed in lubricant. Always smooth running—but never needs oil!

Premier Duplex

There's many a vacuum cleaner problem solved in the new cleaner. Suction alone can't pick up threads. A brush with weak suction can't get all the dirt from a rug's depth. So the Premier Duplex combines a motor-driven brush with powerful suction. Double action—to clean cleaner.

A Suite You Will Always Cherish

Six Pieces, Beautifully Executed in Walnut, Gum and Maple

Very Special at $290.00

Consisting of Dresser, Chifforobe, Vanity, Full-Size Bed, Rocker and Bench

INVEST your money in this suite with the assurance that you are procuring value-plus on every dollar you spend. From the illustration you can gain an impression of the design and a suggestion of the exquisite finish. But to fully appreciate its superior workmanship and splendid construction, you must see and examine it personally.

The style is not faddish, yet it is attractive and you will never tire of it. It may not interest those who have a flare for the extreme but it will be correct when others more unusual will be out of date. Pre-eminence in expert cabinetry is exemplified in every detail. Inside construction is dustproof throughout with solid mahogany interiors varnished in its natural coloring.

The Woods Are Exquisitely Finished

Native American woods are used exclusively with walnut predominating particularly in the veneering. American red gum of the best quality is used as a base and beautifully figured curly maple is employed to relieve and accentuate, by contrast, the color of the walnut. Fine skill and painstaking care are exercised in the finishing to bring out the full warm hues and natural graining of the woods. Ebonized scroll designs adorn the fronts.

THE DRESSER is 50 inches wide with plate glass mirror 29 x 37 inches.

THE CHIFFOROBE is 52 inches high and 38 inches wide. Large compartment on one side provides hanging space for clothes and is fitted with full set of tuxedo curved wood hangers and patented nickel-plated pull-out rod. The other side is equipped with five spacious drawers.

THE VANITY is 47 inches wide and 67 inches high to the top of the center mirror. Triple mirrors and four drawers add to its desirability.

THE FULL SIZE BED is 4 feet 6 inches wide with bow-foot as shown.

ROCKER and BENCH are fitted with genuine cane seats.

This suite carries our comprehensive guarantee.

Fancied Invalid Turns Terror of the Plains In 'The Nervous Wreck'

Farce by Owen Davis Will Be Seen Tonight at American—"Just Married" Returns to Shubert-Jefferson.

A FARCE innocent of a shred of lingerie, and using the great open spaces instead of a boudoir, is "The Nervous Wreck," by Owen Davis, which will be shown tonight at the American Theater. Davis won the Pulitzer prize with a serious play, "Icebound," but in this later work he is declared to have created an absolutely first-rate comedy, without the aid of a single shock line. Its theme is that of a hypochondriacal tenderfoot in Arizona who, when he is once moved to action, strikes terror into the most ferocious cowboys.

The Shubert-Jefferson counters with another farce, a jolly, clever piece, "Just Married," in which Lyon Overman demonstrated the fine art of inebriety at the same theater during October, 1922. On the return visit, beginning this evening, his role is taken by Donald Brian, who created the part of Prince Danilo in the American production of "The Merry Widow." The Woodward Players, at the Empress, are undertaking another mystery melodrama, "The Seventh Guest." The Orpheum announces a four-feature bill, fed by Ray Dooley and Lou Holtz.

"The Nervous Wreck" was produced at the Sam H. Harris Theater, New York, in October of last year, and is still running, with Otto Kruger and June Walker in the leads. A second company, headed by Taylor Holmes and Vivian Tobin, played for some time in Chicago, and is the one to be seen here. Others in the cast are James Marlowe, Paul Harvey, Eula Guy, Edward Hannery, James Bradbury Jr., Billy Collins, William Foran, Charles Henderson and Lawrence Eddinger.

Pranks and Psychology.

CREDITABLE to the playwright is the fact that he has extracted fun from such supposedly forbidding matters as neurasthenia, the association of ideas and the subconscious. One of the most amusing scenes is based directly on a laboratory test first conducted by the late Prof. Muensterberg. The hero is one Henry Williams, who goes West in quest of a cure for his imaginary ills, and finds health and happiness, to say nothing of adventure in lavish proportions. The action is said to be unflaggingly comical.

"Just Married," by Adelaide Matthews and Anne Nichols, has its scenes on board a liner bound from Bordeaux to New York. The characters include an elderly pair, consisting of a vixenish wife and a flirtatious old husband; another couple, just married and enjoying the first brawls of the honeymoon; a villian fleeing from a stowaway vampire; and the heroine, into whose stateroom the hero blunders, in the exhilaration of his cups. Vivian Martin, once of the movies, who played here with Overman, is still cast as the heroine. In the company are Dorothy Mortimer, Lois Brun, Edward Garvie, Therese Quadri, George Sweet, Jack Marvin, Mabel Lynest and others.

Coming Attractions.

EARL CARROLL'S "Vanities," with Peggy Joyce and Joe Cook, will arrive at the American a week from tomorrow night, and will be followed by Irene Bordoni, in "Little Miss Bluebeard." For the first time, a show designed for the Winter Garden will be presented here prior to its opening in New York. It is "Innocent Eyes," featuring the Parisian star, Mistinguet, and it will be seen at the Shubert-Jefferson. Other announcements for this playhouse are Louis Mann and George Sidney in "Give and Take," on April 20; and Ethel Barrymore in Sutro's "The Laughing Lady," on April 28.

Another of those dramatic conundrums like "The Bat" is "The Seventh Guest," at the Empress; and it is still another of those entertainments spectators of which are requested not to reveal the story. Crimes, thrills, romance and comedy are promised. The action occurs during a single evening at a house on the west bank of the Hudson River.

Miss Dooley, a former star of the Ziegfeld "Follies," appears at the Orpheum with Florenz Ames in a comedy skit called "Nonsensicalities." Holtz presents his popular blackface turn. Charles Cherry has a satirical playlet, "The Bachelor," by Edwin Burke. Other acts are those of Jimmy Carr and his band of syncopaters; Edith Clifford, comedy singer; Ray Raymond and Dorothy Mackaye, in "A Chance Acquaintance"; Marie Cavanaugh and Bud Cooper in "Visions," and the Wilson Aubrey Trio of gymnasts.

Rialto, Columbia, Grand.

THE Rialto's offerings for the first half of the week will include Douglas Leavitt and Ruth Mary Lockwood, in "Ourselves"; Danny Graham, with a troupe of dancing girls; Dennie O'Neil and "Cy" Plunkett, and Jack Cook and George L. Coan. The feature of the bill opening Thursday is called "A Carnival of Venice." Evelyn Phillips, Eddie Simms and Joe Dejany will have a dance act.

Harry Walman, violinist, with orchestra of seven girls, leads Columbia's program, which also offers Nick Basil and Bert Keller, vocal comedians; Edmond Mulcahy, Irish baritone; Oscar Martin, Elsie Harvey and George Stone, and "O. K. Legal & Co." The film is "The Marriage Market," with Jack Mulhall, Pauline Garon and Alice Lake.

The Grand Opera House promises "Musicland," with a group of seven girls; Carlton Emmy and his "Mad Wags;" Frank DeWitt's "The Awakening of the Toys;" Frank Walmsley and Mae Keating, Al Abbott, the Valentinos and Bottomleys, George Yeoman and Joe Wilbur and Fay Adams. The Gayety's burlesque show will be "Town Scandals," with Harry Hickey le Van, Lettie Boles, Lillian Beason and others.

What They Are DOING IN Movie Studios

Frank Jonnason recently attained perfection of make-up. He was put out of a hotel in Natchez, Miss., while trying to enter the dining room to join fellow members of James Cruze's company there to make "The Fighting Coward" as a Paramount picture. He was playing a negro role.

Charles Ogle, who has gone from success in "The Covered Wagon" and "The Ten Commandments" to Cecil B. de Mille's new Paramount picture, "Triumph," started his public career as a tenor soloist in a church choir in Hammond, Ind.

Capt. Nungesser, world famous French ace, who arrived in New York recently, was a visitor the other day at the Long Island Studio of Famous Players. He was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Valentino, whom he met during their recent European trip.

"The Covered Wagon" ended its first year on Broadway, New York, Monday night, March 10, with a special observance arranged by the Critterion Theater management. Inasmuch as it was the first time any picture had ever had a year's run theatrical producers and a number of motion picture stars were among the guests.

Stoessel's Latest Work Lauded in New York

AT last Sunday's concert of the New York Symphony Orchestra, at Aeolian Hall—the organization's final regular appearance of the season—there was performed a new work by Albert Stoessel, native St. Louisan, who is now director of the Oratorio Society of New York. It is entitled "Suite Antique," and is written for two violins, piano and small orchestra. Stoessel himself conducted. On the same program were two new works—the ballet music from an opera called "The Perfect Fool" and a "Fugal Concerto"—both by Gustav Holst, a British composer, known best for his suite, "The Planets."

"Much better than either of these," wrote Deems Taylor in the New York World, "was Albert Stoessel's 'Suite Antique,' heard yesterday for the first time with a full complement of strings. Mr. Stoessel is only an American, and an oratorio conductor to boot, but he knows several things about writing music that our British cousin has not learned. He knows, for one thing, that you need not be solemn to be serious, and that the intrinsic worth of music has little to do with its pretentiousness.

Charming to Hear.

"HIS suite, modeled on the 'French Suite' style of Bach, offers the traditional sequence of dance forms—Bourree, Sarabande, Rigaudon, Aria and Gigue. It is charming stuff to hear, for while archaic in mood, it has melodic individuality and a piquant harmonic scheme of its own, and is aptly and delicately scored in the bargain.

Harvard Prize Play by Girl Has Effectiveness

"Nancy Ann" Is "Terrible" Stuff Mated With Theatrical Material Ranging From Excellent to Good Enough.

By HEYWOOD BROUN,
Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, April 5.

WHENEVER the Harvard Prize play turns out something less than the glittering gold of pure genius, the cry goes up that Prof. Baker's workshop in Cambridge is of no account. There is scant justice in this. Obviously, Prof. Baker cannot create ideas for his pupils, furnish them with a ready-made knowledge of life, and endow each and every one with gleaming wit and humor.

The best he can do, and all he pretends to do, is to point out certain practical problems of the theater. It is possible for him to say to one of his young playwrights: "Certain fashions persist in the theater. They are not eternal, but it is well to consider their nature before you commit yourself to heresy."

"Nancy Ann" Written by Girl.

NOBODY can possibly lay down any set rules about what must be done in the theater. One can point out things which never have been done successfully and, of course, each of these taboos merely awaits the coming of a genius to fall before him. It is conceivable that a man might write a great play which required 10 hours for performance or another designed to be played in three and a half minutes. Still, it will be difficult.

"Nancy Ann," the play which has received the current Harvard prize, and which was produced Monday night at the Forty-Ninth Street Theater, is less than a fine comedy, but for all that it contains much which is skillful. The new play, like the work of many another young author, presents a problem in miscegenation. It is a mating of theatrical material, which is terrible to other material which ranges from excellent to good enough.

The first act pictures life within the home of one of the first families of New York. This much of the play is incredible and dull as well. But in the second act the story wanders into a theatrical office, and here there is shrewd observation and first rate humor. We have no knowledge of the career of Dorothy Heyward, who wrote "Nancy Ann," but on internal evidence alone we surmise that the acts in the manager's office are from life and that the drawing room of the Van Cuylers' isn't.

This is just a guess. We are not well equipped to pass on the strict accuracy of either atmosphere, but at least we may take competent exception to the society reporter in the first act who says, in all seriousness, that the newspaper business is great fun "because you meet so many interesting people."

Star Not the Best Actress.

NOR does it seem to us that the air of quiet and annoying breeding which the first act would convey is much enhanced by casting Francine Larrimore as the debutante daughter. We find many admirable qualities in Miss Larrimore, but she is less than the precise person who suggests a Miss Spence youth. But quite obviously, Miss Larrimore has not allowed herself to be particularly burdened with the playwright's intent. She has decided to play a young gamine whose name in Kiki rather than Nancy Angeline Van Cuyler Farr, as the program would have us believe. And it is a pretty good Kiki.

Here and there points are stressed too hard, the diction is abominable throughout, at times the 18-year-old heroine is made to seem a somewhat backward child of 8. Yet there is much compulsion to laughter. It is a performance neither subtle nor accurate, but it has a curious quality for which we have no name except theatrical effectiveness.

Nevertheless, from our point of view, the play comes out of its preliminary doldrums not so much through the efforts of Miss Larrimore as on account of a beautiful performance in a minor role. The best work in the play, we think,

"The Extra Girl" And "Montmartre" On Film Bills

Mabel Normand Scheduled to Appear in Person—Other Attractions Are "My Man," "Don't Doubt Your Husband" and "Tipped Off."

MABEL NORMAND in person is billed to appear at the Grand Central Theater this week and her latest production, "The Extra Girl," is the feature at that theater and the Capitol. St. Louis is the third city to be visited by Miss Normand in her tour of the country. She already has appeared in Chicago and New York with "The Extra Girl."

In the picture the star has the role of a sort of feminine "Merton of the Movies." She is a small-town girl who is sure she can act. She sends her photograph in to a film company. A "vamp" who is in love with the girl's sweetheart exchanges the photograph for that of a noted beauty and the miracle happens.

The girl is called at once to come to the studio. Upon her arrival the exchange of photographs is discovered, but she is too proud to return home and gets a job in the wardrobe department of the film company. Both her folks and her sweetheart follow her and she assists her father, quite innocently, in falling into the hands of a swindler who almost wrecks the family, but in a succession of thrills the villain's plans are thwarted.

Both theaters also present "Barnum Jr.," a juvenile comedy featuring child actors and actresses. Caesar Nesi, the tenor, continues at the Grand Central, while Billy Kitts' orchestra will provide musical specialties at the Capitol.

AT THE Missouri Theater this week the photoplay feature is Pola Negri in "Montmartre," a story of the Parisian underworld. In this picture Miss Negri again works under the direction of Ernest Lubitsch who directed her in "Passion" and other pictures. The story concerns a young composer who falls in love with Yvette, a dancer. At first she treats his love lightly and extorts money from him for finery. They are secretly married but later his mother's influence persuades him to leave her. On the stage the Terrace Garden Orchestra of Chicago will play a return engagement. Harry Langdon in "Shanghaied Lovers," late Mack Sennett super-comedy, is also on the bill.

Patsy Ruth Miller, former St. Louis girl, is at the Kings this week in "My Man," a picturization of George Randolph Chester's "A Tale of Red Roses." This is a tale of high finance, love and political intrigue. The leading masculine role is in the hands of Dustin Farnum, who portrays Ben Sledge, political boss of the city. Sledge meets Molly, motherless daughter of Frank Marley, traction head. He falls in love with Molly and after hearing that she is "just wild about roses"—sends them to her by the wagon load. Sledge is the dominant figure in his state, a forceful politician, who brooks no interference. He follows up his flowers with a proposal of marriage and is rejected. Sledge learns that Bert Glider, society man, is the leading suitor for Molly's hand. Bert announces his engagement to Molly and Sledge proceeds in an attempt to break him financially and does it. Frank Marley, angered by the high-handedness of Sledge, sides with Bert and lends him his private fortune. Sledge warns Marley that he will break him, too. While the battle of wits for control of the local railroad goes on, Sledge keeps up an endless attempt to win Molly, and he does.

Yale University has produced "The Chronicles of America," a series of motion pictures depicting the founding of this country. The first of these stories, "The Frontier Woman," is on this week's program at the Kings.

Viola Dana, in "Don't Doubt Your Husband," furnishes the feature attraction at the Delmonte Theater this week where a Will Rogers comedy and Lawrence's Revue, with girls and a jazz band also are on the program. The picture tells a story of the first year of married life of a young couple living in a fashionable suburb. Miss Dana is the smart young wife and Alan Forest is the husband. Both suffer with jealous temperament and the marriage is threatened with a smash-up many times before the young couple really settle down to what promises to be a happy and contented life. Winifred Bryson plays the "vamp" who almost runs the wedding on the rocks, and others in the cast are John Patrick, Willard Lewis and Adele Watson.

The Liberty's feature is "Tipped Off," a crook story, with Noah Beery, Stuart Holmes, Tom Santschi and Arline Pretty in leading roles.

It is a succession of big thrills. The plot centers about the ambitions of a girl to play leading lady in a play written by her sweetheart. She is denied the opportunity because of her ignorance of life. To demonstrate her fitness the girl masquerades as a man and sets out to rob the playwright's home. On the same night a band of professional crooks also attem[illegible] to rob the same house, and wi[illegible] all the intruders, following [illegible] is done by Clare Weldon in the role of an experienced and unsuccessful actress who meets up with Nancy in a managerial anteroom. Here for the first time the play takes on enough contact with life to become credible and therefore interesting. It is probably true that Miss Weldon's role is the best-written part in the play, but for all of that we think that this is a striking and unusual performance.

Excellent Second Act.

THE comedy concerns the adventures of Nancy Ann, who runs away from her coming-out reception to seek a place in the theater. In the second act we find her waiting with all the ragtail crowd of unsuccessful applicants outside the manager's office. Into the play come many of the amusing things which enter into the lives of those who wait, and other true things which are not funny at all. Accordingly, the second act is first-rate throughout.

At the end the play becomes pretty broadly farcical and some of the farce is good, though there lurks the suspicion that the author hardly aimed at effects quite as broad as those which have been introduced by the director. If you are at all interested we might reassure you by saying that in the end Nancy Ann marries, or seems about to marry, the matinee idol who is the hero of the play.

Revolution Not Yet Here.

"VOGUES," at the Shubert Theater, is the first revue which I have seen in several months and it is reassuring to find that this is a form of entertainment which clings to the eternal verities. The American revue remains a fixed point in a mad and reckless civilization. Against the assaults of the radicals there stand those three—Calvin Coolidge the church and musical comedy. Shortly after the curtain went up I observed the Swanson sisters sharing two lines between them and I knew that all was well with the world. The revolution is not yet with us.

Nor is this said in any captious spirit. There is much to be urged for manners and customs which have become traditional. The musical revue may be highly standardized, but it provides an agreeable evening's entertainment. "Vogues" has color, pace and some humor. This last named quality is not in the book but is provided by several talented specialists from the vaudeville field, where the fun seems to be just a little fresher than in musical comedy. The team of Fred Allen and Jimmy Savo accounts ingeniously for many moments of merriment.

The Sensational Pasqualis.

AT least one number in "Vogues" is sensational. I have seen no better acrobats than the Pasqualis. Here are tumblers who have mastered the knack of adding ease to achievement. They seem neither to puff nor strain as they accomplish the most prodigious feats. Such athletic prowess is comforting to an audience which walks only from door to taxicab. One is deluded into the belief that the merry pastime is open to all comers. After watching the Pasqualis I felt entirely capable of turning a few cartwheels and doing some of the simpler sort of somersaults whenever I felt so inclined. However, I am not moved to try just now.

The music is mostly reminiscent, but it follows excellent models and all the ensemble numbers are done with spirit. Indeed, the chorus sings rather better than the principals, although the hero and heroine are by no means below musical comedy average. The settings are attractive and, as far as I know, the costumes are wholly adequate. A good deal more than that should be said for the Pasqualis. They have hit precisely upon what the well-dressed acrobat should wear. Jimmy Salvo does some beautiful dancing.

Fourth Winter of Unemployment in England Passes, With 1,000,000 Out of Work.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 5. — England's fourth winter of unemployment has merged into spring, bringing bodily comfort and sunshine if not more prospect of work to the million men and women who have been existing on the Government dole since the great trade slump of 1919.

Individually these enforced idlers get only one pound sterling or so weekly ($4.30) but the aggregate expense for out-of-work pay has amounted to £00,000,000 annually and has cost the country more than the interest on the Britsh war debt to America—that colossal sum which is ever in the minds of the British taxpayer.

What is to be done about unemployment nobody seems to know. The economic experts place their hopes in a revival of international trade, for emigration alone cannot possibly relieve all the country's troubles.

This "nation of shopkeepers" has hoped that the world would get on with its shopping, so English ships could put to sea and her factory machines could hum again, but world trade still slumbers.

shooting of the butler, rush out the real crooks believing the girl to be one of the band, bundle her into their car and take her to the headquarters of the master mind. Then the real adventures begin. Alburtus, a vaudeville "mind reader," also is on the bill.

"The Courtship of Myles Standish," the fine picturization of the immortal poem by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, is on view at the West End Lyric the first four days of the week. Charles Ray and Enid Bennett head the all-star cast. The picture was given its original first run in St. Louis at advanced prices, but the present engagement is at the usual admissions.

Beginning Wednesday for three days the West End Lyric will present "Thundergate," a spectacular melodrama with Owen Moore, Virginia Brown Faire, Tully Marshall, Sylvia Breamer and Robert McKim.

"The marriage Market," with a cast headed by Jack Mulhall and Pauline Garon, is the feature photoplay at the Columbia.

STOESSEL'S LATEST WORK WINS PRAISE FROM NEW YORK

"Mr. Tinlot and Mr. Burstin played the violin solos, Mr. Damrosch performed prodigies of valor at the piano, and Mr. Stoessel conducted with a most uncomposerlike skill and authority. The audience took to the work at once, applauded every movement, and gave Mr. Stoessel a delighted ovation at the end."

Liederkranz Club Program.

AT the Liederkranz Club's concert, to be given Wednesday night at Alhambra Grotto under the direction of Hugo Anschuetz, the following St. Louisans will assist: Mrs. Delbert H. Clelland, soprano; Rosalind Anschuetz and Adelaide Blase, violinists; Clarence F. Bloemker, tenor; and Jacob Kremer, accompanist.

The program will include the following numbers: "Hymn to the Madonna," Kremser, for mixed chorus, solo soprano and piano; "Schoen's" Rohtraut," Veit, for male chorus, unaccompanied; aria, "De miei bollenti," from "La Traviata," tenor solo; "The Snow," by Elgar, for women's chorus, two violins and piano; "Fruehlingsnacht," Filke, for male chorus, solo tenor and piano; and "Fantasie on a Russian Folksong," Gaines, for mixed chorus, two violins and piano. There will also be groups of solos for violin and soprano.

Bedrich Smetana's Centennial.

AN orchestra, soloists and a chorus of 40 voices will commemorate the centennial of the birth of the famous Czecho-Slovak composer, Bedrich Smetana, with a musical program at 8:30 o'clock this evening at National Hall, Dolman street and Allen avenue. Selections will be given from the operas "The Bartered Bride," "The Kiss" and "The Secret;" and from the tone poem, "Vlasta."

The Nocturne from one of Smetana's string quartets will be played, as well as "The Slavic Overture" and "Alla Polka." Anton Vosyka will speak on the composer's life and works, and among those taking part in the musical program will be E. Svoboda, F. Zaloudek, J. J. Vrana, J. Palecek, Mrs. Hermine Sadlo, Mrs. M. Novak, Mrs. M. Polepil, Miss M. Mazanec, Gus Vogel, Mrs. A. Drozda and Mrs. O. Kral.

Miscellaneous Concerts.

A CANTATA, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace," by J. H. Maunder, will be sung at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University. Admission is free to the public. Charles Galloway will preside at the organ, and the soloists will be Miss Marie Becker and Merritt F. Williams. The choral sections will be sung by the Washington University Choir.

Mrs. Fannye Louise Block, contralto, and Hunter Jones, pianist, will give a joint recital tomorrow evening at the Wednesday Club Auditorium. Dr. H. J. King's setting of "Daughters of Jerusalem" will be sung at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, with Gwylm Miles as soloist. William Theodore Diebels organist, and George E. Muskens, tenor, will give a free recital at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the New Cathedral.

The morning Choral Club announces that Jose Mojica, Spanish tenor, will make his St. Louis debut at its concert on April 29, at the Odeon. Karl E. Miller, for nearly 20 years connected with the management of the Symphony Orchestra and the Odeon, is soon to remove with his family to Los Angeles, Cal.

JUNIOR PLAYERS' PRODUCTION

"Taming of the Shrew" to Be Given Friday and Saturday.

The fifth and last Junior Players production this season will be "The Taming of the Shrew," which will be given Friday night and Saturday afternoon at the Artists' Guild, under the direction of Alice Martin.

Pauline Parker will play Katherine, and Victor Woerheide, Petruccio. Others in the cast will be Robert Wallar, Leo Elliot, Florence Betz, Gladys Willson, Marvee Cochrum, Sarah Katz, Bill Rabenbern, Avis Chapman, Adelaide Bonniwell, Karl Krummenacher, Virginia Ascher, Adele Prendergast, Gertrude O'Neil, Javita Bonniwell and Helen McDermott.

MEXICANS WOULD ABOLISH 'ARMADA' IN DUCK HUNTING

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, March 22.—Native and foreign sportsmen have combined to protect wild fowl from the slaughter of Mexican pot hunters. The lakes and marshes of the central plateau are among the most wonderful duck regions in the world, and here the natives depend largely on pot hunting for a livelihood.

It is not unusual for 1000 or more ducks to be killed by a single volley from an "armada," contrivance similar to the "battery" formerly in use in the United States, but now prohibited by law. Dozens of muzzle-loading guns are lashed in tiers and discharged by a powder fuse with frightful effect among the nestling fowl.

Efforts to obtain legislation against the use of the "armada" having failed, foreign and Mexican sportsmen are attempting to procure international co-operation in their efforts to launch a new anti-armada campaign.

One of the worst features of the pot hunting, according to these sportsmen, is that the hunters seldom devote their earning to anything but a grand carouse.

Rugged enough for hiking
Light enough for tennis

Dig your toes into the hillside or scramble down the rocks, Ralph Jones Sport Shoes were made for rough wear.

And you can't slip. The moulded suction sole is slightly concave (not the ordinary rocker-type). This means that all the 16 suction cups, from the scuffer toe back to the heel, get a sure grip on the ground.

Long hikes won't tire you. The leather bound uppers fit snugly around your ankles. The scientifically designed lasts give the instep bones and muscles extra support and keep your toes from sliding forward and jamming into the end of the shoe. HOW A GOVERNOR ON TRIAL CARRIES ON McCray of Indiana Divides 15-Hour Day Between Criminal Court and Statehouse.

(Copyright, 1924.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 5.—Spending one-half of a 15-hour working day in the criminal court and the other half in the chief executive offices of the State Capitol, Gov. Warren T. McCray is endeavoring to carry on the affairs of Indiana.

The Governor has spurned all the suggestions that he resign because of the many indictments against him. He has a fgihting face like that of Harry Daugherty, and, like the former Attorney-General of the United States, he does not see why facing a trial by a jury or by committee should interfere in any way with the performance of his official duties.

Gov. McCray has not agreed to resign, even in the event of his conviction on either State or Federal indictments. He is certain to appeal any adverse verdict in either court and the chances are that when his term expires in January next the cases against him will not have reached a final issue.

The Constitution of the State of Indiana provides that no person who has been convicted of a felony shall be eligible to public office, but there is no provision in Constitution or statutes dealing with the case of a person convicted after election to office.

Leaders Unable to Move Him.

Feeling the political effect of his continuance in office after a revelation of the various financial irregularities with which he is charged State Republican leaders have endeavored to bring pressure upon the Governor to step down. They have utterly failed to impress their views upon him, and, although these same leaders by diligent work raised a pool of $350,000 to repay some of the funds used by the Governor, they have testified at his trial that at no time has McCray admitted he was guilty of even any moral wrongdoing.

Gov. McCray is so convinced of his own innocence that some of his friends say he would not hesitate to pardon himself in the event of a conviction in the county or State coutr trials. Of course, he would have no jurisdiction over a Federal Court conviction. The Governor recently stated his case so strongly at a meeting of Republicans gathered to ask for his resignation that they contented themselves with adopting a resolution saying that if convicted McCray should immediately retire.

Gov. McCray reaches his office at the State Capitol every morning by 7 o'clock. More often he is there at 6:30. He works diligently at his desk until 9 or 9:30, then hurrie[illegible] limestone courthouse on Washington street for the convening of the criminal court, where he is prisoner at the bar. After court adjourns in the evening and after he has had a bite or two, the Governor once more proceeds to the Capitol, where he is often busy until 9 or 9:30 at night. The long hours do not worry him at all [illegible] says he is a farmer and is accustomed to getting up with the sun. He did that long before his trial and his habits of early rising and long hours have made it easier for him to "carry on" in [illegible] ent difficult circumstances than it would have been for the ordinary business or city [illegible]

Unwise Buying of Land.

The Governor is a placid, genial sort of fellow. He is inclined to meditate these days upon the unkindness of fate. A few short months ago the greatest breeder of Hereford cattle in the country and rated as a millionaire, he is today stone broke. All is gone, he says, gone through the unwise buying of acres upon acres of farm lands when farm land values were high. Just what the Governor intended to do with all the farms he bought and was unable to pay for, no one seems to know.

Gov. McCray has been extremely popular in the State with the farmers and the politicians, and even those who find no excuse for his present predicament are inclined to give him their sympathy. Nor is all the sympathy an emanation from the Republican party.

Tom Taggart, Democratic leader of the State, subscribed $20,000 to the fund which was raised in an attempt to save McCray. Assets pledged for this fund are said to be melting fast away and the chances are now that the subscribers may not get much if any of their money back.

In the present trial, which has conitnued for several weeks, there is almost general agreement outside the courtroom that the jury will not be able to agree upon a verdict. Such an issue of the case would be regarded by Gov. McCray as a personal vindication.

ONE of the largest and most perfect collections of fine pottery, glass and bronze treasures from ancient Persian, Syrian, Arabic and Greek civilizations comprises the special exhibition during April at the City Art Museum. Objects of such rarity as these, with such beauty and in this splendid state of preservation are not often exhibited publicly and certainly not in any such number.

Persian, Syrian and Arabic glass and pottery form highly interesting and extremely fine portions of the luxurious exhibit. Sassanian glassware, or that having belonged to the family of the rulers of Persia between the Third and Seventh Centuries, A. D., is exemplified by three extraordinarily beautiful blown glass [illegible] of fine design and splendid workmanship.

[illegible] of these bottles, neither of [illegible] is more than four inches [illegible] of violet glass with white glass designs in dragged [illegible]. The effect is that of a [illegible] loose braid or weave accomplished by interlacing strands of the colored glasses, or dragging one color through another, as the name implies. The shape of these little bottles is similar, spherical at the base and with tapering stem necks, although their ornamental designs differ. The delicacy of the workmanship and finish mark these objects as unusually excellent.

The third bottle, of inverted cone shape, is larger and more intricately decorated than the others. This also, is of violet glass, although its generous use of white opaque glass in the decorative pattern would lead one to believe the white glass the foundation and the violet the design. Time and the acids of the earth have added an iridescent luster to this bottle that enhances its original beauty and probably makes it the finest and most perfect example of Sassanian glass extant. The three Sassanian bottles were found in Syria and have been attributed o the fourth century, A. D.

A peacock ewer which surpasses all other known specimens of similar Arabic glass is included in this collection. The style is Oriental Arabic, showing Persian influence. The ewer, which is like a stem-necked pitcher mounted upon a four-inch base, stands about 16 inches in complete height. The glass is deep blue, beautiful in itself and doubly effective with its polychromed decorations of gold in peacock feather pattern. Around the neck of the ewer is a decorated ring which resembles Arabic bracelets of the twelfth century, and nt is to this that the top of the handle is fastened. Aside from its color charm and the pleasure of its texture, this object possesses a bizarre, Oriental fascination by reason of its contour.

Three Arabic water glasses very much like those used by the world today, belonging back in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, were among the findings of Syrian excavations and hence enter this collection. The glass in each case is uncolored, while the decorations are lacy bands of minute gold enamel work. Ware as fragile as this seldom remains unbroken, the pressure of the earth in its burial usually crushing the thin glass or, in the excavation, no matter how careful the process, the removal of the object causing it to shatter.

ER RAKKA ware, or the pottery of the ancient Syrian village by that name, has, within the past 15 years, come into highest importance among connoisseurs of such treasures. Spectacular in historical interest and dramatic as to recent reappearance, Er Rakka objects stand in a class uniquely singular.

From the splendid account of this ware by Fahim Kouchakji of the Kouchakji Freres, by whom this exhibit is lent, we find that the small village of Er Rakka on the banks of the Euphrates was founded by Alexander the Great, passed among many hands and renamed during various conquests, named Er Rakka by the Arabs in the seventh century and in the ninth century ruled by Harun al-Rashid who built his palace on a site in the western portion of the town. At the latter part of the ninth century, the village was destroyed and from the fourteenth to nineteenth centuries the remains were entirely deserted. Within the past 15 years excavations have been made by the Turkish Government and two great sources of Er Rakka ware, 30 feet underground, have been uncovered: "The Great Find," containing 60 unbroken objects, and the palace of Harun al-Rashid.

World famous examples of this ancient ware constitute the major portion of the exhibit now at the City Art Museum. Foremost among the objects are four large water jars in wonderfully perfect preservation and finely characteristic of the highest quality in that ware. One of these, very similar to that from the palace of Harun al-Rashid which was illustrated last year in the International Studio, is of the characteristic pear shape, with heavy, somewhat obscure decoration and covered with thick, yellow-green glaze. In some of the Er Rakka ware, color was applied directly to the pottery. It was then dried, the turquoise glaze applied and then fired. Since the design of this water jar was effected in relief rather than in flat pattern, a general glaze was applied. In much of the Rakka ware can be found the use of green, the sacred color of the sun-scorched countries. In this piece, it is blended with yellow and gray in the glaze.

A RECTANGULAR tabouret is another index to the domestic life of the ancient Syrians. These tabourets, of which there apparently were a number in use throughout a household, were designed to be ornamental as well as to serve their purpose as miniature stoves. One of the tabourets in the Kouchakji collection is of decided prominence. Its shape is rectangular and is mounted on four short legs, like a stone box. On the two broad sides appear decorations of mythological animals, curved vines and scrolls, while at the two ends are small perpendicular slits like windows in a mosque. The top of the tabouret, unlike the small tables which we are more accustomed to calling by the same name, contains two round holes in which cups apparently were placed in order that their contents might be kept warm by the glowing coals undoubtedly kept below. The entire object previously was covered by a turquoise glaze which now can be detected only in part by reason of the iridescent patina so beautifully accumulated. This tabouret, with its companion, also colored by time, is attributed to the ninth century.

Another important object of Er Rakka ware is a large vase from the ninth century. It is smaller than the water jars and of more angular contour. Due either to the quality of its material or to the different acids in the soil, the iridescence on this vase is more copper than silver, although the tiny gleams of pink, blue and crystal remain the same as on other similar objects. Two small handles in the forms of frogs are placed snugly o nthe abruptly sloping sides of the vase and the result is the appearance of the frogs struggling to climb up the side of the jar and peep at the contents over the rim.

Fahim Kouchakji, of the firm owning the collection, will be in St. Louis sometime during the month of April and will give a short talk at the City Art Museum on "The Chalice of Antioch." The date will be announced later.

CAROLINE RISQUE, Nancy Coonsman Hahn, Robert Bringhurst and Victor Holm, sculptor members of the Artists' Guild, and Sheila Burlingame, Adele Schulenburg and Joseph Horchert who work in batik, are displaying a collection of their works at the Guild during April. Their exhibition opens April 6 and remains until the 30th.

Laura Gilpin's photographs of Colorado scenery are now on display at the City Art Museum. Several figure studies are interspersed among the landscapes, giving variety to the exhibit. Miss Gilpin has achieved many unusual results in the use of shadows to form the main points of interest in composition. The rugged and spectacular grandeur of "The Garden of the Gods" provides opportunity for strange effects in light and reflected light. Miss Gilpin's photographic work is well known as that of one of the most prominent portrayers of Colorado beauty.

OIL MARKETERS TO MEET

Four-Day Convention to Open Here Tomorrow.

The National Petroleum Marketers' Association annual four-day convention convenes tomorrow morning at Hotel Statler. Officers of the St. Louis Petroleum Club, co-operating with the Conventions and Publicity Bureau in arrangements, expect 1500 delegates. Jobbers, machinery producers and dealers in petroleum products are members.

The entertainment program included a banquet Tuesday night at Hotel Jefferson and a theater party the same night for ladies.

Piles Can Be Cured Without Surgery
An instructive book has been published by Dr. A. S. McCleary, the noted rectal specialist of Kansas City. This book tells how sufferers from Piles can be quickly and easily cured without the use of knife, scissors, "hot" iron, electricity or any other cutting or burning method, without confinement to bed and no hospital bills to pay. The method has been a success for 25 years and in more than 9000 cases. The book is sent postpaid free to persons afflicted with piles or other rectal troubles who clip this item and mail it with name and address to Dr. McCleary, 566 Parkview Sanitarium, Kansas City, Mo.

IZAAK WALTON LEAGUE TO DISCUSS 'OUTDOOR' AMERICA

Restoration and Conservation Will Be Theme of Speakers at Chicago Convention.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 5.—A movement for the restoration and conservation of outdoor America, broader in its scope than any previously attempted, will be started here April 10, when hundreds of delegates to the Izaak Walton League meet in convention. Sessions will continue through April 12. The league held its first convention here last year.

League members and guests who will attend include many prominent writers, business men, clergymen and Government officials. More than 1500 ministers have been personally invited to the league's closing banquet by Dr. Halford J. Morgan, president of the Illinois chapter. Dr. Morlan is providing the banquet at his own expense.

"We want the clergymen to be the league missionaries to the conscience of America," Dr. Morlan said.

Writers who are expected to attend include Gene Stratton Porter, Zane Grey, James Oliver Curwood, Irvin S. Cobb and George Ade. Kenesaw Mountain Landis and Herbert Hoover also are on the program.

April 10 has been desginated "Pollution day." Dr. James Henshall, 88-year-old author and honorary president of the organization, will be the first speaker. Dr. Henry Baldwin and H. B. Ward of the Department of Zoology, University of Illinois, will describe the effect which indiscriminate emptying of waste in lakes and rivers has had on fish. Herbert Hoover also is announced to speak. Reforestation and Forest Fire Prevention day, April 11, will have W. B. Greeley, chief of the Forestry Bureau of the Department of Agriculture as speaker. "Indiscriminate Drainage Projects day" comes on April 12.

PRINCE HENRY TO REPRESENT ENGLAND AT OLYMPIC GAMES

Third Son of King George Will Lead British Athletes in Grand March.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 5.—Prince Henry, third son of King George, will do the honors for England at the opening of the Olympic games in the Coluombes Stadium near Paris, Aug. 5, leading the British athletes in the grand march past the reviewing stand.

This ceremony over, he will retire to the grandstand, turning over the grilling work of winning points to the sturdy teams, the members of which are now training in two big camps near London.

The British have high hopes of making a good showing in the Olympic finals, particularly since the wearers of the Union Jack took third place among the 17 countries competing in the winter sports at Chamonix. The British are spending £30,000 to equip and maintain their Olympic teams, of which only £200 remains to be raised.

MISS CHRISTABEL PANKHURST TO SPEAK HERE THIS MONTH

Former Militant Suffragette Now Preaching a Doctrine of Moral Improvement.

Miss Christabel Pankhurst, daughter and assistant of Mrs. Emmaline Pankhurst, leader of the militant wing of the English suffrage movement, will be in St. Louis April 13 and 14 as a guest of the Y. W. C. A. She will deliver several addresses, details of which have not been announced.

She comes here from a series of meetings at Toronto, Cleveland and Buffalo and will depart for Los Angeles April 16. Miss Pankhurst was one of the chief lieutenants of her mother during the militant days of violence prior to the war. Suffrage was granted women of England during the war.

Miss Pankhurst now is preaching a doctrine of mental improvement. She believes that the only real reforms can come from within the individual and is speaking along those lines in her present tour.

MUNICIPAL OPERA SEASON RESERVATIONS SHOW INCREASE

Total to Date $75,000, Including Many for Lower Priced Sections.

It is stated by the management of the Municipal Theater Association that season reservations up to date total 1200, representing $75,000, or an increase of $20,000 over the analagous sum for last year. Eighty per cent of the reservations are said to have been filed by last summer's subscribers. A quantity of advance orders for seats in the cheaper sections is ascribed to the installation of amplifying apparatus.

There will be four tiers of boxes instead of three in the open-air theater in Forest Park, and the entire first section has been equipped with permanent chairs, which will be extended to include the first half of the second section. A new electrical switchboard will be ready for the first performance on May 26, and also a new system of footlights.

Man Missing From His Home.

Isaac Weiner, 54 years old, has been missing from his home at 1722 South Broadway since March 17, on which day he left his home, saying he would return shortly. Weiner is about 5 feet 2 inches in height.

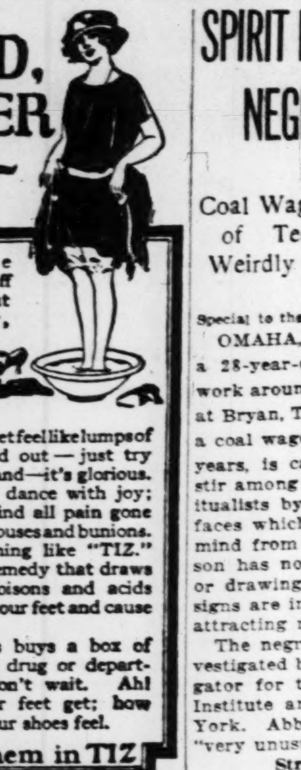
TIRED, TENDER FEET~



JUST take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning feet of yours in a "TIZ" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead — all tired out — just try "TIZ." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisons and acids which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

A few cents buys a box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

SPIRIT PAINTINGS BY NEGRO STIR ARTISTS

Coal Wagon Driver, Ignorant of Technique, Produces Weirdly Harmonious Effects.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb.—Charles Watson, a 28-year-old negro, who used to work around the electric light plant at Bryan, Tex., but has been driving a coal wagon in Omaha for several years, is causing something of a stir among Omaha artists and spiritualists by his paintings of weird faces which he says come into his mind from the spirit world. Watson has no knowledge of painting or drawing technique, but his designs are in a color scheme that is attracting much attention.

The negro has been partially investigated by David Abbott, investigator for the American Psychical Institute and Laboratories of New York. Abbott has pronounced it a "very unusual case."

Striking Harmony.

Dr. Robert F. Gilder, a Nebraska painter, after seeing some of Watson's work and talking to him, says:

"The designs painted by Watson, although unique, show a striking harmony of color which appeals with force to the cultivated eye of an artist—a most singular fact when it is known that their originator has had absolutely no instruction in designing, painting or color combination."

Watson came to Omaha five or six years ago. He worked in a garage until a couple of years ago. Then something seemed to go wrong with him and he lost his knowledge of automobile machinery and had to give up work of that kind, but the images began appearing to him. Also, he went to work driving a coal truck.

"Two years ago I felt the urge to create objects of art," Watson told Dr. Gilder. "I seemed to be guided by a spirit force and in my mind I saw wonderful things. I cannot describe in words. Night after night I saw them. They worried me so I tried to paint them.

"I got some paints and went to work. I painted three months without any idea. Then designs and color combination began to come."

Draws Face of His "Spirit."

Watson has a painting of the head and features of what he says is his ruling spirt. The drawing of the head is not good, artists say. But the face, once seen, will not be soon forgotten. Watson says this spirit controls his actions and guides his hands in the mixing of his colors.

The negro's drawings are crude and run to fanciful faces, and his colorings are ruled by the colors of flame.

Abbott, the investigator, is known as Omaha's "Ghost Hunter." For years he has spent most of his time investigating stories of the unreal. He has developed so-called "spirit" tricks for stage magicians of the last 25 years, and probably believes less in "spirits" than any man in the country.

But Abbott is a bit puzzled by this Bryan negro. "It's a very unusual case," he says.

Dog Leaps in Well After Boy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill.—Faithful efforts of "Buddie," a pet fox terrier, failed to save the life of 4-year-old Hartzell Kellenzerger of Peoria, and the boy was drowned in a well. The dog plunged into the well after the boy had fallen and strove desperately to save him. The dog was pulled out and revived by artificial respiration. He had broken a leg.

Feared Lest Dime Cost Her Heaven.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMSBURG, Pa.—Fear that a dime she found 15 years ago and kept, when she knew who lost it, would keep her out of heaven prompted a Pittsburg woman to return it to Lee Edwards, of this place.

WOMAN, 112, OLDEST PERSON IN NEBRASKA

Three of Four Sons Keep Vow to Remain Single and Care for Her.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALBION, Neb.—Mrs. Rose Garvey has just celebrated her 112th birthday at her home near this town. She is the oldest person in Nebraska.

Her family is just as it was when it left Ierland 60 years ago, except that one child has married and her husband has died. When they left Ireland there were Mr. and Mrs. Garvey and four sons, Patrick, Anthony, Michael and John. John married a number of years ago and lives on an adjoining farm.

In the home there are four people. The "baby" is Anthony. He is only 68 years old. Patrick is 80. Michael is 72.

The "boys" do all the housework. Patrick is cook. Mike is housemaid. Tony superintends the farm and, together with the other two "boys," does all the work. All three of them look after their mother.

Years and years ago, after the death of their father, the "boys" vowed never to marry, but to remain at home and care for their mother. John was already married, so he was absolved from the care of the mother.

When the Garveys came from Ireland, they first settled in Schuylkill County, Pa. The old folks were middle-aged people at that time, although the Civil War was just getting well under headway. Mr. Garvey was 56 years old and Mrs. Garvey was 50 at that time. They remained in Pennsylvania 20 years. Then they came West.

The Garvey family was established 90 years ago, when the Garveys were married in County Mayo, Ireland. In those years there has been just one death in the family—that of Mr. Garvey. Likewise there has been but one marriage—that of John Garvey.

Both the death and the marriage took place after the family came to Nebraska.

When the Garveys moved to Nebraska, there were 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 acres of public land in this State ready for the settler. Each person over 21 years of age could take up a homestead of 160 acres. There were four boys in the Garvey family all over 21 years—and the old folks, too. That made five of the Garvey family who were entitled to homesteads.

The Garveys had no trouble finding five homesteads all in a block and they soon had a body of 800 acres of land, the very best in the county.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad for Washing Hair

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is all that is required. Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Kills Catarrh Germs In Three Minutes

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Lavex kills the germ in three minutes, yet is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.

To prove it and to introduce Lavex to a million sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid, to any one who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it cures you, you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and prove that you can be rid of catarrh.

Napoleon vainly awaiting the belated Grouchy at Waterloo.

When TIME means Everything

Nobody knew better than Napoleon at Waterloo how much time counts. Had Grouchy, his general, been on time, everything might have been different.

Time counts always for more than we imagine. When the intestines are inactive, and constipation's poisons are flooding the system, quick relief is needed—time counts.

PLUTO WATER acts positively and thoroughly in 30 minutes to two hours. Slow over-night cathartics are not the thing when you need a physic. Use PLUTO.

A water physic, PLUTO washes and flushes the entire intestinal tract, promptly, gently and completely without any unpleasant after effects.

It is bottled at French Lick Springs, in Indiana, prescribed by physicians and sold by druggists.

NAMES ON LABELS SOLVE LADY ASTOR'S GUEST PROBLEMS

Timid Ones Are Made to Feel at Home and No Longer Forget New Acquaintances.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 5.—Lady Astor may be unable to get all the legislation she wants through the House of Commons, or see eye to eye with the various shades of political belief, but she has undoubtedly earned the gratitude of Liberal, Conservative and Labor hostesses, as well as guests, by the institution of a novel scheme.

At two of her recent "at homes," the guests were provided with labels bearing their names and principal business interests or professions. Timid guests were immediately at home with the unusual but illuminating device and were no longer haunted by the fear that they might forget after an introduction whether it was Miss Smith, the councillor, who wore the green dress, or Miss Brown, the poetess, the yellow one.

Just a glance at the other person's label obviated the necessity of formal introduction and immediately started a conversation which might otherwsie have been strained and difficult. It is believed other hostesses will copy the versatile Virginian's simple but effective plan.

WOMEN TO ATTEND CONVENTION

The chairman of the St. Louis committee is Mrs. T. G.

Easter special

Only $3.98 On Approval

Here is something new in millinery designing. Our artists have used a new art principle in building this charming hat as a background for the face, therefore no trying on is necessary. Any woman will find it adds to her attractiveness; all that is necessary is the selection of the color most becoming to you.

Note the exquisite beauty of design, the charming piquancy of the new vogue, turn-down brim and the daintiness of trimmings.

Made by hand of Milan straw by fashion's most expert milliners, its beauty is further enhanced by lifelike silken flowers, of gorgeous natural coloring.

Brim and lining are of highest quality silk.

New York and Chicago society women are accustomed to paying five times what we ask you for your Easter hat.

You will be amazed at the wonderful value offered in this new spring creation. Remember its design is such that any woman can wear it and that it offers a tremendous value for the small sum asked.

Dull Spotted Teeth Bleached White Quick—Safe Way

To whiten dull, yellowish, stained teeth all you need now do is brush teeth with a few drops of a mild, harmless liquid—then use a special paste—and watch stains disappear. This new method is called Bleachodent Combination. The liquid softens the stains—the paste not only gently removes them, but prevents formation of new stains. Fine for removing green stains from children's teeth. No effect on enamel—its mild ingredients are intended to act only on surface stains. Bleachodent Combination is the formula of a group of prominent dentists who used Bleachodent on their own teeth for four years with highly beneficial results before offering it to the public. Millions of teeth have been whitened this new safe way.

Describes "Participation Certificates," Asserting They Would Fully Protect the Producer.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1924.)

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Administration officials are at sixes and sevens over the McNary-Haugen bill which provides machinery for the purchase of the export wheat crop. The critics are numerous, the attack on the bill extending all the way from cries of unsoundness to the statement that it will take an army greater than the prohibition force to police its operation.

Charles J. Brand, consulting specialist at the Department of Agriculture, who probably is more familiar with the proposal than anyoneelse in Washington, today consented to explain some of the provisions of the measure.

"If people will only read the bill and examine it carefully," he said, "they will not find in it on reflection the imaginary dangers they think they see. For instance, it has been said the bill would put the grain exchanges and traders out of business. It will not. The United States Agricultural Export Corporation will act through existing trade bodies and organizations. The corporation is to be actuarial and not a trade body itself. One thing it may do, I admit. It may reduce the amount of fluctuation in grain prices due to world rumors, but the exchanges will always be influenced by domestic factors and rumors.

Like Farmers' Co-Operatives.

"What is proposed in the McNary-Haugen bill is nothing more nor less than what the agricultural co-operatives now are doing. We simply would buy the exportable surplus of wheat from the farmer, not out of Government funds, but out of funds provided by the farmer himself and, when the time for settlement comes at the end of the year, the farmer would get his 'patronage dividend,' as the farm co-operatives call it, in the form of 'participation certificates' of legal tender value. They will be commercial paper pure and simple, I have heard statements that the farmers wouldn't accept these certificates. But let us take an actual illustration of how the bill would work.

"Suppose a farmer has 2000 bushels of wheat to sell. The domestic price is $1. The ratio price of wheat to other commodities would call for a price of $1.50 a bushel, if things were normal. But instead of paying the farmer that amount in cash, or $3000, he would be paid, for illustration, about $2700. The remaining $300 would be withheld and in its place he would be given a 'participation certificate.' Now how would we determine the value of that certificate at the end of the season? We are producing about 750,000,000 bushels of wheat, of which 150,000,000 bushels would be the estimated amount needed for export, based on the previous year's figures. But in the export market we would have to sell at a loss, say at $1 a bushel. This would mean a total loss of about $75,000,000. Add to that an approximate cost of $15,000,000 as the expense of the corporation, though I believe it would be lower than that, and you have a total cost of $90,000,000. But if out of a total production of 750,000,000 bushels you withhold 15 cents a bushel from the farmer for the equalization fund, you will have on hand about $112,500,000. Subtracting the $90,000,000 of expense, it leaves $22,500,000, and

A National Event!

68th ANNIVERSARY SALE

Nation Wide in Scope—Epoch-marking in Values.

IN CELEBRATION of its 68th anniversary the house of Wurlitzer determined on an offering of special values in every department that in straightforward, out-and-out value giving will surpass anything ever attempted by any music house. This, briefly, is the explanation of the 68th anniversary sale. The reason for the sale is to further advertise in a nation-wide way the facts that Wurlitzer can give the best values in everything musical; that Wurlitzer does give the best values at all times, and that Wurlitzer can do this because of its enormous volume of sales through the many Wurlitzer stores in the leading cities of the country. These are the facts and the reason for this great nation-wide sales event. The values below speak for themselves. They tell a story of value-giving that has never been equalled in the annals of the music business. These are specimen values only; there are many more equally attractive to be seen in all departments.

If you have any thought whatsoever of purchasing anything musical either now or in the future you owe it to yourself to see these special values at your earliest possible convenience.

Beauty

A Gleamy Mass of Hair

35c "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of delightful, refreshing "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair becomes.

Pretty, Wavy, Curling Hair Without Hot Iron

Here's a simple method which is a favorite of the belles of a certain exclusive social set. It will give your hair such a beautiful wave and lustre, and permit you to do away with the ruinous waving iron forever. Just get from any druggist a few ounces of pure liquid silmerine, and apply a little with a clean tooth brush just before doing up the hair. This will give you a real surprise. The fascinatingly pretty, wavy effect will appear so natural and there will be no greasy, gummy, streaky or other unpleasant trace of this harmless liquid. You can exercise for hours in the gymnasium, dance all evening in a heated ball room or take a long motor trip—without fear of your hair losing its curl—indeed, you won't need to again use silmerine for a considerable time.

Health Questions Answered

By Dr. Lewis Baker

An Advertisement Telling How and When To Use Trustworthy Products and Reproducing Extracts of Patrons' Letters Relating to Cadomene, Balmwort, Sulpherb, Arbolone, Su-thol, Mentho-Laxene, Minyol, Hypo-Nuclane, Vilane, Etc.

Many disasters come through neglecting a simple cold, or in failure to quickly check it. A "cold" is in reality, acute catarrh — an inflammation and congestion of blood of the mucus membrane of the nasal passages and throat.

Observation leads me to say that I know of no better treatment to check an incipient cold than the following: Obtain a tube of triple strength Mentho-Laxene Salve. Squeeze about ½ inch of the salve into a teacup; pour boiling water over it and then inhale the fumes for several minutes. Then apply a small amount of the salve in each nostril. Repeat every hour or two, and the cold is generally conquered before it gets "seated."

If the cold has several hours of a start, this treatment should lessen its ravages.

To relieve and overcome the cough due to colds, obtain Essence Mentho-Laxene and use for laxative cough syrup as per directions with bottle. Gratifying reports from all parts of the country indicate the very satisfactory character of this good cough medicine.

P. M. R. writes: "For quite a long time I have been in poor health. Nothing organic or malignant the doctors say, but just a general weak, nervous, bloodless, run-down condition. Am pale, lips are colorless, have headaches and am 25 pounds underweight and have no ambition, tire easily and don't sleep good as a rule. Will any tonic help me?"

Answer: See that the bowels and kidneys function properly and begin the use of Cadomene tablets to aid the production of rich red blood and strengthen the nervous system; so that sleep, strength and good health should be restored as it has for so many others.

C. K. P. asks: "Please tell me what will stop the pains of neuralgia and headache and is safe to use?"

Answer: I advise you to keep on hand a supply of 5-grain Su-thol tablets. They are quickly effective for pain in general.

L. R. writes: "I have indigestion just about as regular as my meals. A heavy bloated feeling with gas and belching followed by headache and a sort of dizzy sensation. Please recommend something to stop this before it becomes chronic."

Answer: Most persons eat entirely too much or too often. As a prompt effective aid for indigestion and weakened stomach take Triopeptine tablets regularly with meals for several weeks.

C. P. M. asks: "I am afraid to take secret remedies to reduce my weight. Can you recommend anything?"

Answer: The ingredients of Arbolone tablets are printed on the label of each tube. To reduce abnormal weight, I know of nothing better. Most leading druggists have them.

A. P. B. writes: "My daughter has a bad blood condition which causes her to have indigestion, or billious stomach and constipation. Small pimples appear on her face and on her back and often after eating she is nearly driven wild by itching skin."

Answer: For such a condition, due to poor elimination, I strongly advise the regular use of Sulpherb tablets as a tonic-laxative blood medicine of greatest merit.

Miss L. C. asks: "Can you advise a lotion for reducing enlarged skin pores?"

Answer: Have druggist mix Rose water 2 ozs.; Elder Flower water 1 oz.; Tannic Acid 5 grains; Tincture Benzoin 4 drams; Glycerin enough to make four ounces. Apply 3 times daily after thorough cleansing.

• • •

G. B. L. asks: "Please give me a recipe for dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair."

Answer: Obtain plain yellow Minyol and use as per directions on 4-oz. jars.

C. R. C. asks: "What do you recommend for treatment of nasal and throat catarrh, which causes me to clear my throat every few minutes?"

Answer: Wash out the nasal passages and gargle throat twice daily with Vilane powder and warm water. Directions on each 2-oz. package. Also apply triple strength Mentho-Laxene salve in nostrils twice or more daily. If constipated take Sulpherb tablets. This combined treatment has no equal, in my opinion.

Mrs. O. R. asks: "My children often have to stay home from school because of colds and severe coughing. Please advise a medicine free from opiates and chloroform that I can safely use."

Answer: Obtain a 2½-oz. bottle of essence Mentho-Laxene. Use as directed on bottle. Mix sugar syrup with it and make a pint. This is the purest, most effective cough and cold syrup that it is possible to obtain. Mothers are enthusiastic about it once they learn of its quick, thorough action for both children and adults.

R. P. C. writes: "I have had functional kidney and bladder trouble for over a year and fail to get relief from several different treatments. Have backache, headache and feel stiff and sluggish when I get out of bed. Have to arise five or six times during night because of bladder irritation."

Answer: For the quick relief of such disorders of the kidneys and bladder I advise the use of Balmwort tablets which promote normal activity, heal and soothe the irritated, congested membranes and often influence the dangerous high blood pressure due to inactive kidneys.

Miss G. B. asks: "Is it possible for a very thin, nervous person to take something to help increase weight and make arms, cheeks and neck fill out? General health seems good."

Answer: Yes, it has been proven possible to do this by taking regularly with meals for several months a nutritional tonic. I find Hypo-Nuclane tablets the best of these.

NOTE: For many years Dr. Lewis Baker, Medical Director The Blackburn Products Co., 312 College Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, has been recommending trustworthy medicines to millions of people through the medium of the newspapers, and doubtless has helped in relieving the ailments and minor infirmities of the public more than any single individual in the world's history; and by an inexpensive method.

The medicines mentioned by him are pure and free from habit-forming drugs. They represent the combined wisdom and experience of physician and chemist.

Progressive druggists can supply them.

Thousands have written him expressions of gratitude and confidence similar to the following:

LETTERS TO DR. BAKER

Ellen Head, 104 Pleasant St., Cambridge, Mass., writes: "For years I suffered and did not realize it was kidney and bladder trouble, until I read the symptoms in your little book. I was so short of breath when I walked upstairs, and I had backaches so often. After faithfully taking Balmwort tablets for a period of six months I am quite a new woman. I can run up two flights of stairs just as well as when I was younger, being now in my 62nd year. It is a pleasure to recommend Balmwort tablets to other sufferers."

Mr. Urban Wickford, Route 2, Mansfield, Ohio, writes: "My wife has used Balmwort tablets for several years and always found great relief. In my own case, my blood pressure went to 186. After taking Balmwort tablets, it came down to 140. I also wish to say that I have used Mentho-Laxene for coughs and colds and that it is the best I ever used."

• • •

James J. McConville, 117 Marshall St., Patterson, N. J., writes: "I am 45 and a silk spinner. Have always been troubled with pimples, headache, coated tongue and constipated bowels, but now my face is clear and I think Sulpherb tablets is the greatest thing for these troubles I have ever known. Whenever I feel out of sorts I take a treatment of six tubes and then I feel like a new man. Publish my letter if you wish, as this is the truth I write, etc."

• • •

Mr. D. G. George, 5227 26th Av., S. W., Seattle, Wash., writes: "Just a few words to say how much good your Cadomene tablets have done for me. For over a year I have been in a general run down condition; nothing helped me until a friend told me of Cadomene. I thought I'd give them a trial, and now, after taking only 3 boxes, I feel like a different man. I cannot praise Cadomene enough."

• • •

Mr. Lester Cook, 2728 W. Vermont St., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "I had the worst cough, I could not sleep nor rest at night. I tried many remedies and got no results. Mentho-Laxene gave me wonderful results. In one week I was sound and well. This medicine is a Godsend to suffering humanity."

Louise Roberts, 18 Worsted St., Franklin, Mass., writes: "For two months I coughed so it weakened me and I tried many cough syrups, but none helped. Seeing the advertisement of Mentho-Laxene I thought I would try it, and am more than thankful. I had only taken it two days when I felt relieved. It is now three weeks that I have taken it, and my cough is gone. It also cleared me of a slight catarrh. It is very pleasant to take and very inexpensive."

• • •

Mrs. A. C. Galser, 484 Mineral St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin, writes: "I have been troubled with migraine headache for the last ten years. Usually had them twice a week and many times just had to go to bed. I was so very weak. About six months ago I learned of your wonderful Hypo-Nuclane tablets. I began taking them and ever since the headaches have been gradually leaving me. I and my friends have also used Su-thol tablets and all think they are wonderful for pain relief. I really had to write to express my appreciation, etc."

• • •

Mrs. Lulu R. Thomas, 602 Parkway South, Memphis, Tenn., writes: "I would not exchange Sulpherb tablets and Cadomene tablets for all the medicines I have known. About seven years ago I used both for a run-down condition, dizziness, wakefulness and other ailments and they not only relieved me for a short time, but completely restored me. No cough remedy of any kind helped my husband's colds, coughs due to asthma, until I began giving him essence Mentho-Laxene—he has not had asthma cough since. Plain Yellow Minyol has done wonders for my hair and scalp. Am now taking Hypo-Nuclane and I have gained in flesh after taking only one box. I wish more people knew of these good medicines, etc."

WORK ON NEW POLICE GARAGE TO BEGIN SOON

Site for Structure to Cost $150,000 Bought on Laclede West of Vandeventer.

Construction of a garage and machine repair shop for the Police Department, to cost approximately $150,000, on the north side of Laclede avenue, about 100 feet west of Vandeventer avenue, will begin in two weeks from now. The site, having a frontage of 143 feet on Laclede avenue and a depth of 220 feet, recently was purchased by the Police Department for $150 a foot, or $21,450.

The building, the architect of which is H. G. Clymer, will have two floors and a basement and will occupy the entire width of the lot and extend back 150 feet in length. It will have a capacity for 150 automobiles and 40 motor cycles, the entire vehicular equipment of the department, exclusive of motor patrols.

Lockers for the policemen of the motorcycle squad and police mechanics, together with shower baths and an engine room will occupy the basement. The first floor will be used as a storage place for automobiles and motorcycles, a double wash-rack at which two machines may be washed at the same time with air and water, a gasoline reservoir and the office of the superintendent.

A ramp, or slanting driveway, will connect the first and second floors, and the upper floor will be occupied by the work shop, stockroom and air-lines discharging air on both the lower and upper floors.

The back yard, which will have a depth of 70 feet, will be surfaced with granitoid and will be skirted on the alley line with a concrete wall of sufficient strength to serve as a supporting wall if it is found necessary in the future to extend the garage back to the alley.

The present garage of the department is in the old Mounted District stable, near the Laclede Avenue Police Station at Leffingwell and Laclede avenues. It is a ramshackle building, inadequate for the needs of the department. Cars must be driven in on one street and out on another. It will be used as a carpenter shop when the new building is ready for occupancy. The property to be converted into the new police garage is part of the grounds used by circuses on their annual visits to St. Louis.

34 Church Workers to Graduate.

Thirty-four students will be graduated from St. Louis Community Training School for Church Workers at the eleventh annual commencement tomorrow night at Third Baptist Church. The Rev. Russell Henry Stafford, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, will talk on "The Viewpoint of Modern Religious Education." The school has an enrollment this year of 573, representing 115 churches and 13 denominations.

EXPERT EXPLAINS BENEFITS IN FARM RELIEF MEASURE

dividing that sum by the number of participation certificates gives the value of each which would be 3 cents a bushel as the final value of each certificate. That would mean for 2000 bushels a total of $60 in addition to the original $2700 or $2760 in all. Now compare that with the present conditions when this farmer gets, at present prices, approximately $2000 for the crop. Wouldn't he accept a scheme that assures him of more than he is getting? I am sure he will."

Minimum Price for Export.

Brand denied that the plan interferes with the prerogatives of Congress in fixing tariffs and said that just as Congress had delegated authority in the case of the present flexible provisions of the tariff act it could give the proposed corporation authority to raise the tariff within a certain measurable proportion.

The whole purpose of the bill, Brand claims, is not to guarantee or fix a price but to establish a minimum price level for export. He insisted that there would be no substantial increase in production, arguing that during the war, with wheat above $2 a bushel, the total was 908,000,000 bushels, and that the limit of easily usable wheat lands had been reached. He declared that the bill would help other products, of course, besides wheat and would be especially helpful to the hog raiser, since a ratio would be established based on the prices of other commodities. He did not see how there could be any material increase in hog production because the price of corn would regulate that. In fact, his theory is that a stabilized relation would obtain between all farm products.

Brand has against him some of the influential advisers of the administration on agricultural economies. President Coolidge is endeavoring to maintain an open mind. The bill has been reported favorably to the Senate by the Agricultural Committee and has the support of the Secretary of Agriculture. It is being considered in executive session by the House Committee on Agriculture and already there is evidence that the bill will be the center of attraction in the agricultural world, as well as in the grain business, for many weeks to come.

Blood will tell

IN PLANTS, as in people and finely bred cattle, "blood will tell." What the plant will be depends upon what the parent was.

The reason that Ferry's purebred Seeds can be depended upon to produce true to name and type is because they are from ancestors known to be sound and true. At our stock seed farm we have been watching parent and grandparent plants for many generations. Every plant that did not grow true to type was weeded out.

Let this watchfulness on our part be the foundation for your faith in Ferry's purebred Seeds. And what a satisfaction there is to have faith in the seeds you plant—and to have that faith justified by results.

Ferry's purebred Seeds are on sale at "the store around the corner." Make your selections to-day from the familiar Ferry Box.

Write for Ferry's Seed Annual. It is full of garden facts. Get it now before you plant.

OFFERS HENS TO PAY FINE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES.—Because his wife keeps chickens and wields a persuasive pen, A. W. Seefeldt escaped a heavy fine for speeding.

Justice W. S. Baird couldn't resist the appeal of Mrs. Seefeldt's letter asking leniency. It told about the chickens she kept to "help pay our debts that piled on us," and concluded with the suggestion.

"Judge, if you have to fine him, could you make it out in hens? I raised them myself and they're good layers. You would not regret having them."

TOKIO REAL ESTATE SOARING IN VALUE

Zoning Law and Three-Year Ban on Permanent Building May Ruin Speculators.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HONOLULU, T. H.—Real estate values in Tokio, Japan, have been affected in a way entirely different from that which was to be expected as a result of the earthquake disaster, according to George Ikeda, president of the Japanese Investment Co. of Honolulu, who recently made a personal survey of business conditions in the stricken city.

"One would expect that real estate in Tokio would be low priced, and that there might be an opportunity for good investments in view of the plans for the future city," said Ikeda. "But speculators have bought all the land available at prices sometimes two and three times the value of the land before the disaster.

"Most of the available real estate has been bought by companies which formerly had offices in Yokohama, and before the earthquake and fire were unable to locate in Tokio. Those which owned land there mostly held onto it. Others bought with the single purpose of speculation.

"It will be several years before permanent buildings can be constructed in Tokio and thus three years before there can be any returns from the heavy investments.

Plans for Model City.

"The Japanese Government has laid a definite three-year restriction on the city of Tokio, during which time only temporary structures may be erected. The purpose of the limitation is to give time for laying out streets, digging sewers, placing water mains, electric and power lines and telephone wires and doing all underground work before any buildings are erected.

"Tokio is to be a model city. Its streets are to be widened and planned to eliminate traffic troubles. All things which harm in any way the beauty of a city are to be put underground. Parks are to be laid out, and every thing planned in advance.

"The city is to be zoned, and the residence, business and factory sections to be definitely laid out and limited. It is in this connection that speculators may go wrong on buying property, for the sections may be changed from what they were before the disaster and the value of land shift with the zone which it is in."

The restriction on construction of permanent buildings, which is for three years, may be lifted before that time in the residential sections if plans are completed in time, Ikeda believes.

Real estate in the residential section also is high in price. Many of the Japanese live on upper floors or in back parts of business buildings.

May Not Rebuild Yokohama.

"The best investment in Japanese real estate today is in the country lying between Kobe and Osaki," said Ikeda. "Many persons went into those two cities after the earthquake, and consequently they have increased in population and business. There are four railways, both electric and steam, running through the section, making it easily available.

"Contrary to conditions existing in Tokio, Yokohama real estate has declined in value."

Yokohama probably will not be rebuilt, Ikeda says. He gives as his reason for this opinion the fact that its big business has been moving to Tokio for the last 20 years. Yokohama, where formerly most of the big foreign offices were located, had gradually lost them before the earthquake. Business has been transferred from Yokohama to Tokio regularly until Tokio got fully 70 per cent where it formerly had only 30 per cent of the big business.

Tokio was the home of the large wholesale houses, and it was necessary for Yokohama merchants to maintain offices in the capital city. Rather than do that, many of them prefer to move there now that the opportunity offers.

LAST 5-CENT FARE LINE IN NEW ENGLAND BOOSTS PRICE

Bristol & Plainville Traction Co. to Charge 6 Cents for Ride.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BRISTOL, Conn.—The last of the New England trolley roads to operate on a 5-cent fare has passed. Unwilling to continue operations at a loss, the Bristol & Plainville Traction Co. will charge 6 cents for a ride after April 1, and by so doing expects to gain $15,000 a year and be profitable. All through the war the trolley system here was able to operate at 5 cents a ride, but lately found its receipts slumping. An effort to run one-man cars was fought by the public, which is now willing to pay an extra cent if the company will continue to use two operatives on each car.

PLAN TO ATTEMPT TOWING LOG RAFT ACROSS PACIFIC

Japanese Studying Transportation of Lumber From U. S. by This Method.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KELSO, Wash.—Two log rafts, the largest in size ever constructed in the Northwest, are ready for towing to San Diego. Altogether six of the huge rafts are in preparation for the long ocean trip, starting about June 1. Each raft is 900 feet long and contains 300,000,000 feet of lumber. On deck of each raft several million shingles and about two million feet of cedar poles will be carried. Japanese mills are surveying the rafts here with a view of attempting the towing of one across the Pacific.

Who Drove the Sedan With Flowered Upholstery That Carried Mrs. Bauer to Death?

Strange Story of Woman, Found Murdered 2000 Feet From Spot Where She Accepted "Lift" in a Ford

Walking in Search of Assistance After Her Own Car Became Mired, She Was Seen to Converse With Man Who Overtook Her and Then to Enter His Machine—Around a Wooded Bend She Was Found Dying a Few Minutes Later With a Bullet Wound in the Body and a Cut on Her Neck—Police Believe Slayer Was a Maniac or Possibly an Aquaintance, Who Killed Her to Keep Her From Telling After She Had Resisted His Advances.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.

IT was a bright day, that Tuesday, March 25, and Mrs. Maude Bauer of Port Richmond, Staten Island, said to her mother and little girls: "We will go riding today." They were pleased, for Mrs. Bauer was a good driver and although Port Richmond and the region roundabout are within the limits of Greater New York there are miles of country roads which invite driving on a bright day.

But on that bright day, just a little way from a closely-settled section, Mrs. Bauer was brutally and unaccountably murdered, almost in sight of her mother and children, when she accepted a "lift" from a passing motorist to go for assistance, after her car had become mired. Unaccountable, that is, in that it is an unsolved mystery, one of the strangest that New York police ever had to deal with, and, while conjectured motives are not lacking in plausibility, they but accentuate the suddenness and boldness of the crime.

It seems clear that Mrs. Bauer died fighting for her honor. The belief is that her assailant either was a maniac who turned to murder when balked in the other design, or an acquaintance who, meeting unexpected resistance and knowing himself recognized, killed her to keep her from telling.

Mrs. Bauer was a comely and neat and modest young woman, 31 years old, the wife of Walter Bauer, an automobile mechanic. They lived happily in a pretty home at 115 Decker avenue in Port Richmond, Bauer and his wife and their two children, Maude, aged 7, and Helen, aged 6, and Mrs. Bauer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Piero.

Started in Midafternoon

Bauer went away to his work at an automobile factory in Manhattan that morning and it was mid-afternoon when, with household tasks finished, and the brightness of outdoors luring, Mrs. Bauer proposed a ride and the others assented, Mrs. Piero placidly and the little girls eagerly.

Mrs. Bauer brought out the Ford sedan and her mother and the girls climbed in and Mrs. Bauer drove leisurely through the streets and out into the Chelsea region, near New Dorp, where country roads are called avenues, but are country roads still. The air was keen but the sun, shining through the glass, made cosy the interior of the car, and the children chattered happily as they rolled along.

On Merrill avenue a truck came meeting them and, true to truck form, crowded Mrs. Bauer off of the road, and the right rear wheel of her machine slid into a sand drift at the side of the road and mired. The truck driver, unaware of the mishap, continued on his way.

Mrs. Bauer tried to pull out, but the wheel spun in the sand and sank deeper. She climbed out and examined the situation and concluded that she could not get out without assistance.

Three small boys, playing near, came up. They were sympathetic and wanted to help, but their small strength was of no avail and Mrs. Bauer told her mother and the children to sit quietly in the machine and she would go for help.

She started toward South avenue, which leads to Linoleumville, more than a mile away, or to find a telephone along the way to call for road service.

Came then another Ford sedan, from the same direction that the Bauer machine had come, and stopped opposite the mired machine and took in the situation.

"Have you got a rope?" asked the man at the wheel.

Mrs. Piero said no, but her daughter had gone for help. The man looked toward Mrs. Bauer, walking briskly toward South avenue, and nodded and drove on.

Apparently Recognized Him

He overtook her and stopped. She smiled brightly, as though she recognized him. They conversed for a moment. Evidently he offered to take her to Linoleumville, for Mrs. Bauer turned and called to her mother: "I am going with this man to get a rope," and climbed in and the man drove on and Mrs. Piero and the children watched the machine disappear around a wooded bend.

Presently another machine came by and stopped and the driver of that had a rope. Mrs. Piero told him her daughter had gone for help, but he looped the rope around the front axle of the sedan and pulled it out and waved aside Mrs. Piero's thanks and went on his way.

But Mrs. Piero doesn't drive and there was nothing to do anyway but sit and wait.

It was not more than 15 minutes after Mrs. Bauer went away that Ernest Van Clief and George Carson, Port Richmond boys, came trundling down South avenue on their bicycles and near Travis avenue they came upon Mrs. Bauer lying by the side of the road, dying, with blood flowing from wounds in neck and abdomen.

They pedaled frantically away and found George Cullen, a motorist, and told him what they had seen, and he quickly found Policeman Jerry Cosgrove of the New Dorp force and they raced toward the scene of the accident.

They saw the Bauer sedan standing by the side of the road and, conjecturing that there might be some connection between the machine and the injured woman, Cosgrove stopped and made inquiries, and Mrs. Piero told him about miring in the sand and about her daughter going away for help.

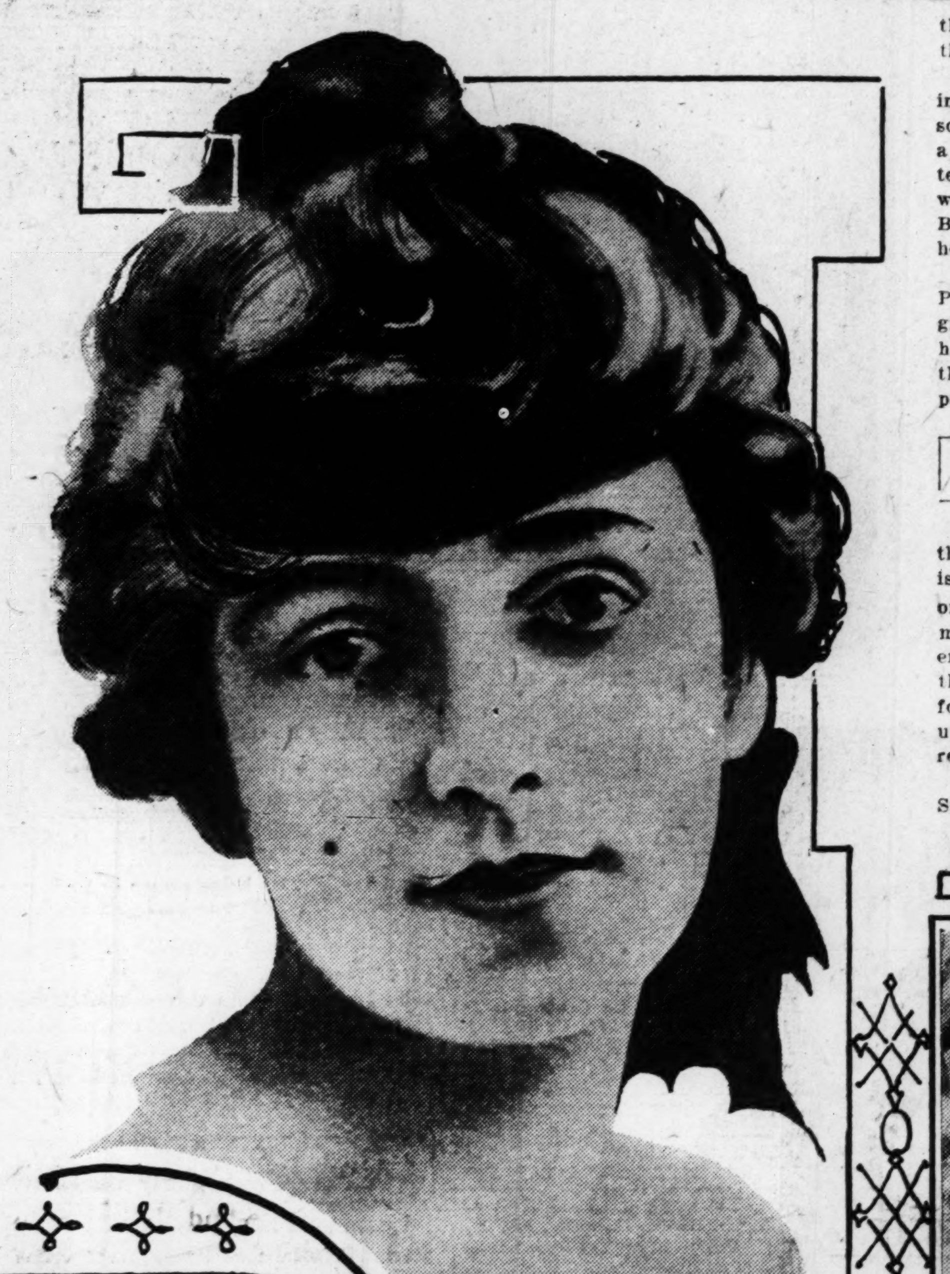
"There's a young woman lying injured down the road," said Cosgrove, "maybe you'd better come along and see if you know her."

They took her and the children into Cullen's machine and went on to the scene and Mrs. Piero, leaving the children in the car, stumbled to the side of the injured woman and saw that she was her daughter, and past speaking to her.

An ambulance came and took Mrs. Bauer away, but she lived only a short time and did not regain consciousness.

The wounds that caused her death were inflicted by .25-caliber, steel-jacketed bullets, fired from a weapon of foreign manufacture. The wound in the throat had been torn by a brutal thrust of the weapon barrel, probably when the shot was fired. And there was an abrasion on her jaw which might have been made by a blow from a man's fist.

There was nothing to indicate a struggle by the roadside, so the conclusion was that the woman had been shot while in the sedan and had then been thrown out. And this would account for nobody having heard the shot, although woodmen were at work not far away and houses were near enough for the shot to have been heard if it had been fired in the open air.



MRS. MAUDE BAUER,

New York woman who was murdered, almost within sight of her mother and children, by the driver of a Ford Sedan who gave her a "lift" after her own machine had become mired.

Mrs. Bauer as she appeared at the time of her marriage in 1914

Killed Her T o Save Himself

So the detectives, constructing their theory, concluded that the man made advances of unmistakable import very soon after Mrs. Bauer entered the car, that she fought for her honor and that the man, enraged, first struck her with his fist and then thrust the pistol barrel against her throat with such violence as to make a penetrating wound which at first was thought to have been inflicted with a knife, and then, to save himself from the consequences, fired the shot which killed her.

But now, after 11 days' investigation, the authorities are convinced that the attempted attack upon Mrs. Bauer occurred in the woods to the east of South avenue, and not on the highway. It has been learned that at 4:11 p. m. the fire siren at Linoleumville sounded and that when John Ferguson, a truck driver, heard it, as he was talking to wood choppers on South avenue, he drove to the fire, passing along the stretch of avenue where the murderer's car would have been if it had remained on the highway, but he saw no car.

So it was concluded that the murderer turned into the woods over what is known as the Old Woods road, and that he attempted to attack Mrs. Bauer there and that she fought him and broke away and ran to the avenue, where he shot her.

The story is strengthened by the story of the two boys who found the body. They say they heard the whirr of a motor in the woods.

There have been similar unsolved crimes in that section before, which gives some reason for supposing that the murderer may be a maniac, but the theory favored by the detectives is that the man presumed, without warrant, upon an acquaintance with Mrs. Bauer and, being repulsed, killed her to keep her from telling.

Descriptions of the man, as given by Mrs. Piero and by Barbara Fahs, a 14-year-old girl, who saw him when Mrs. Bauer entered his machine, are none too good, but from these there have been questionings of suspects, without definite results.

Sedan With Flowered Upholstery

The Ford sedan was a clew, of course, but there are very many Ford sedans on the island, and no assurance that the particular one did not leave the island by ferry, but a more specific detail was that it had flowered upholstery or upholstery covering. So the search, so far without result, has been for a Ford sedan, old model, with flowered upholstery, or bearing indications of recent removal of flowered covering.

So it is embarrassing for residents of Staten Island who own Ford sedans with flowered upholstery. Horatio J. Sharrott, a real estate and insurance agent, contractor and builder, owns such a car and he is finding it embarrassing. He happens to be developing the Chelsea region in which Mrs. Bauer was killed. His Ford sedan with flowered upholstery was found parked not a great way from where Mrs. Bauer was found.

He was questioned by the police and said he had driven out there to direct workmen who were clearing away bushes. He was first questioned in the presence of his wife. Later he was taken to the scene of the crime. He said he had seen nothing and heard nothing.

Unfortunately for the officials, but fortunately for him, he does not answer the descriptions that have been given of the murderer, who appears to have been a much younger person.

There was a stir when a telephone message was received to the effect that in a garage at Leonia, N. J., was a Ford sedan with shattered windows and bullet holes in it. Detectives were sent, but the owner convinced them that he had merely been in an accident and that the bullet hole was from the accidental discharge of a weapon while on a hunting trip.

Another recent photograph of Mrs. Bauer, whose murder remains a mystery after nearly two weeks investigation.

Two 25-Caliber Shells Found

Several suspects have been arrested and questioned, but they have all so far given satisfactory accounts of themselves and none are held. Offers of rewards aggregating $10,000 have not been effective in eliciting any worth while information.

When the police first searched the roadside where Mrs. Bauer was found they were unable to discover any shells, but when search was made a day or two later two 25-caliber shells were found.

At first it was thought that robbery might have been the motive, as Walter Bauer, when he came from the factory and found his wife's body at the morgue, remarked at once the absence of her rings, but these were found later where she had left them at home.

When Bauer reached home he vowed that if the slayer was caught he would strangle him with his own hands. On being taken to the morgue to view the body he swooned and had to be attended by a physician. Now he roams the island looking for the murderer.

Those who are inclined to attribute the crime to a maniac recall the unsolved murders of Irene Blandino and Bessie McMahon of Jersey City, near South Beach, Staten Island, last April. Their throats were cut and they were thrown from automobiles. And near the spot where Mrs. Bauer was found the nude body of a boy was found hanging a year ago and this crime has never been explained.

Since the crime, distances have been measured and it has been found that from the intersection of Merrill and South avenues, where Mrs. Bauer entered the sedan, to the point where she was found dying is just four-tenths of a mile. From where she left her mired machine to the intersection of Merrill and South avenues is only about 1000 feet, so that within such a short distance and within such a short time did tragedy come into the Bauer family, taking the wife and mother who had no thought of danger to herself when she started for help to extricate her machine.

It is the belief of Capt. Arthur Carey, head of the homicide squad at headquarters, that fear of apprehension caused the killing and that it was done either by an immigrant of the racial type that does not hesitate to kill to cover up a robbery or other crime, or by a man of established reputation, name and family, who, failing in an attack on Mrs. Bauer, killed her to save his name and reputation and to prevent his disgrace and punishment.

Prospect of Solution Small

As the days pass the prospect for a solution of the mystery and punishment of the murderer diminishes. The investigators frankly say they are just where they started and District Attorney Fach says: "After running down every clew, I am forced to the conclusion that no arrest is possible in the near future and I greatly fear the case will go down among the unsolved murders of New York."

But Mrs. Bauer will not have died in vain if from her fate women everywhere take the District Attorney's warning never to enter the automobile of a stranger for any purpose whatever. For that way may lie dishonor or death.

It would be hard to find a woman anywhere with less cause to fear tragedy than Mrs. Bauer had. She was born on Staten Island, in the neighborhood where she was living when she was murdered. Her childhood and young girlhood were spent among persons who live simply and placidly. She sang in the choir of the Park Baptist Church for many years.

She took a nurse's training course at the Parker Hospital in New Brunswick. After that she returned to Staten Island and lived with her parents. Eight years ago she was married to Bauer.

But tragedy came to her with awful suddenness. And three days later she lay in her home in a casket banked with flowers. Simple services were said by the Rev. J. Havergal Sheppard, former pastor of the Staten Island church which Mrs. Bauer attended, and who married her to Bauer eight years ago. And the hearse bore her away and she lies now in Evergreen Cemetery, Elizabeth, N. J.

And, as the District Attorney convincingly says, she would be alive now, alive and happy, with her husband and children, if she had not accepted a "lift."

PHILADELPHIA'S GANGS DRIVEN OUT IN THREE MONTHS BY MARINE GENERAL WHO DEFIES POLITICIAN

Police Forced to Prevent Crime or Be Fired—As Result City Has Had Only One Payroll Robbery Since He Took Offic

Criminals Who Had Flourished Under Political Protection for Years, Reaching Their Peak Stage in 1923, With 6989 Robberies and 155 Murders, Packed Up and Left When Gen. Smedley D. Butler Took the Reins as Head of the Police Last Jan. 6 and Started His Drastic Clean-up Campaigns With Attendant Shake-ups in the Department—Assailed by Machine Bosses, He Invites Them to "Go to Hell" and Threatens to Clean Up the "Machines" Themselves.

GANGS and their rivalries present one of the most baffling features of law enforcement in St. Louis—one that undermines the morale of both the citizenry and the police because of the disrespect for the law that follows as a logical sequence the failure to punish those guilty of such outrages and lack of confidence in the integrity of law enforcement agencies it breeds. The gang feud in St. Louis knows no law that will restrain the feudists from doing pretty much as they please in carrying on their fights and murders. If members of the Hogan gang, for instance, desire to take any kind of vengeance, whether by assault or murder, upon their rivals of the Egan gang, they proceed to carry out their plans just as though there were no police and no public to be considered. So it is with the Egan gang against the Hogan gang.

Is this condition peculiar to St. Louis? If other cities have these manifestations of outlawry, how do the police deal with them and how do they suppress them, if, indeed, they do? What has St. Louis to learn from its sister cities? To answer these questions, the Post-Dispatch sent one of its most experienced police reporters to New York, Chicago and Philadelphia to observe gang and crime conditions there and report on them. Herewith follow the third and last article of the series. The second, dealing with Chicago, was printed last week.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, April 5.

CRIMINAL gangsters, protected by crooked politicians, who had made of the tenderloin, which had run wide open here for years, a filthy network of streets in which all forms of vice and crime flourished, packed up and emigrated to other cities when Brigadier-General Smedley D. Butler of the United States Marine Corps became Director of the Department of Public Safety Jan. 6.

The gunmen said they would be back soon. They regarded Gen. Butler's "clean-up" order to the police as only a political move, destined to last no longer than other sporadic reform waves the city had known, but their guess was wrong. Gen. Butler is still on the job, and his orders to the police are: "Keep the gangsters away from Philadelphia."

Activity of the Police Department forced by the new director when he announced that the city must be rid of the gangs brought onto the streets the strangest collection of policemen this city has known. Men who had spent years as Desk Sergeants and in other soft swivel-chair positions, although physically able to walk beats, were put out on post or into raiding parties.

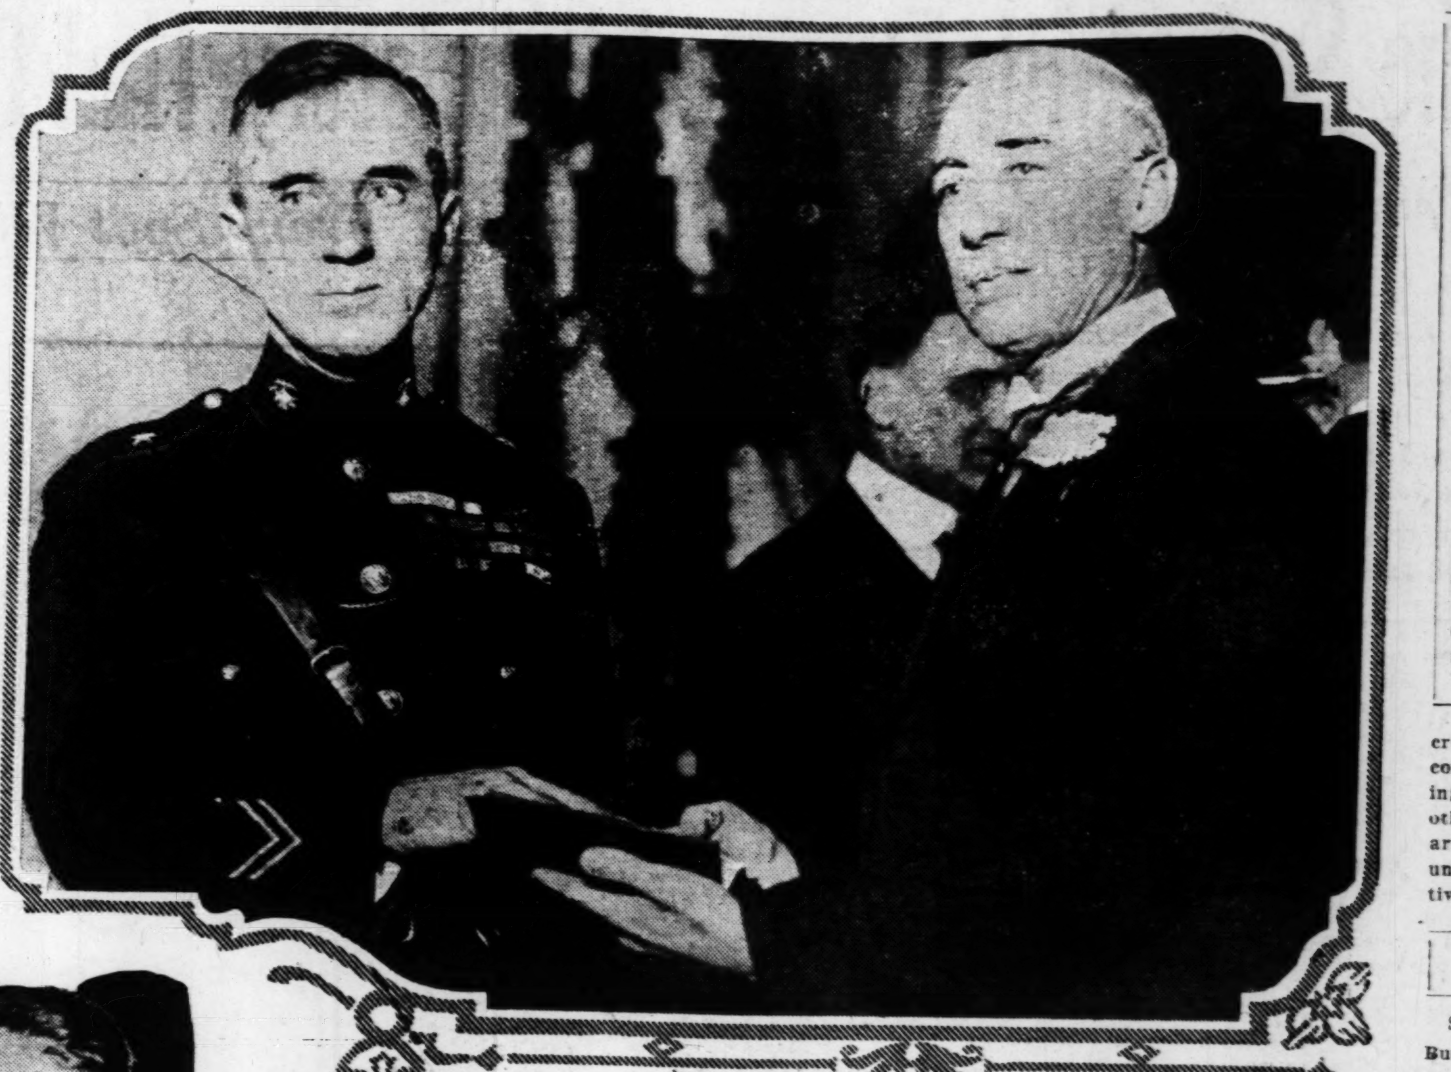
The clean-up is causing uneasiness among a certain group in the Republican City Committee, which has controlled the municipal government of Philadelphia for 50 years, during which time the police had become accustomed to taking orders from politicians and ignoring the rules and regulations of the department. They profess to believe that Mayor Kendrick, also a Republican, is sponsoring the drive against criminal gangs only to rid the Police Department of certain factions objectionable to the regular organization and that he called in Gen. Butler, an outsider with no political aspirations, to help him accomplish this end.

"Machine" Fears for Its Existence

But they have an unpleasant fear that Mayor Kendrick may decide he can get along without the "machine" altogether and will start "cleaning up" some of the "machine's" friends. If that proves true it will mean a real struggle between the Mayor and the "machine" which helped to elect him.

Another explanation of this extraordinary activity on the part of a "machine" administration is that Kendrick hopes to tear from the grip of Gov. Pinchot the political control of Pennsylvania. The Governor had been becoming too friendly with the left wing of the Republicans here and in Washington. Just prior to Kendrick's election Gov. Pinchot won the applause of the law-abiding element of Philadelphians by sending the State Constabulary into the city to help enforce the laws, but that organization accomplished little because the "machine"-controlled police not only refused to assist the constabulary but placed obstacles in its way.

However, Gen. Butler declares he is not a "smoke-screen" for any political move. Although his father, Thomas D. Butler, represents Westchester in Congress and for years has been recognized as a Republican standpatter, Gen. Butler says he knows nothing of the political game, that he has no axes to grind and that he does not intend to serve any political interests.



Gen. Butler being sworn in by Mayor Kendrick, who called the warrior into city service to direct the Police Department and drive out the criminal element by persistent "clean-up" raids.

BRIG. GEN. SMEDLEY D. BUTLER,

Of the United States Marine Corps, who has had both the gangsters and the crooked politicians on the run since he became Director of the Department of Public Safety of Philidelphia on Jan. 6. He has absolute authority over the police and "lops off heads" if his orders to enforce all laws are not carried out to the letter.

Four Years Leave From Navy

"I'm here because I'm here," he said to the correspondent. "Mayor Kendrick told me he wanted someone to make the police do their duty and asked me to take the job. He said the criminal gangs were running away with the town and that the police were so subservient to political bossism that they had become virtually impotent.

"I said I would take the job for six months, but when I took charge and found out what a big job I had undertaken I concluded that if the city would make the salary of Director of Public Safety $15,000 a year instead of $10,000 I would stay here as long as Mayor Kendrick is in office. They called my bluff. So here I am. I have obtained four years' leave of absence from the Navy, and I intend to keep up the fight against gangsters so long as the Mayor continues to back me up.

"The second day I was in office I summoned the Captains and Lieutenants to the City Hall and told them in plain language just what the situation was going to be. I informed the officers that I knew all about derelictions in the Police Department but that I was going to begin with a new slate. I assured them that I would not hold a grudge against any of them for what had been done in the past but that henceforth they must deliver the goods or their official heads would be lopped off.

"Why, do you know that before Mayor Kendrick assumed office ward politicians used to go into the very police stations and give orders to Captains? If gangsters with a political pull were arrested by mistake or through a bit of overzealousness on the part of a policeman that policeman was punished at the behest of some ward politician or his henchmen.

"As a result of that condition the morale of the Police Department was shattered. Policemen instead of trying to perform their duty independently and efficiently were concerned chiefly with currying favor with political grafters and ward heelers in the hope of winning promotion through 'pull.'

"There was no discipline on the force. Policemen were not being taken to task by their superior officers for neglecting to perform real police duty but they were being transferred and demoted for doing police work that was distasteful to the politicians.

"Policemen Were Grafting"

"And on top of it all many of the policemen were grafting. I was told on reliable authority that many of the protected criminals here, including gangsters, gamblers, bootleggers and drug peddlers, were paying money to policemen. What chance had law enforcement under such conditions?

"Well, as I said before, I told the commanding officers that I was not going to dig into the past, but that I would demand and expect 100 per cent efficiency from the police in the future. I gave them to understand that politicians had nothing further to do with the police.

"The Police Department from now on, as long as I am at the head, is divorced from politics," I told them. "From now on you are to enforce the laws, every one of them, and if you fail you lose your jobs. The officers were surprised. They had never heard a talk like that before, but they realized I meant what I told them and they acted accordingly.

"In the first 48 hours that I was in office the tenderloin was a thing of the past. Not only the gangsters were driven out, but women of the street, gamblers, sellers of hooch and narcotic peddlers were exiled. There has been only one payroll robbery in the three months that the drive against crime has been in progress and there has not been a gang murder.

A Few Hold Ups and Burglaries

"There have been a few hold-ups and burglaries, but in each instance the crime has been followed by a shake-up in the police district in which it was committed. Eight Lieutenants, a dozen Sergeants and 30 patrolmen have been fired. I have given the police to understand that it is their place to prevent crime. I realize that in a city of 2,000,000 people, with a police force of 5000 men, it is impossible to stamp out major crime altogether, but if the police simply do their duty and act as sworn enemies of the criminal element, waging endless warfare on the underworld, as they should do, crime will be reduced to a minimum.

"Are the police here getting co-operation from the courts and prosecuting officials? Well, I have not had time to consider that phase of the matter. I am not concerned with what the courts are doing. My chief concern is ridding the city of the criminal gangs that had so long infested it that they had become recognized in certain quarters as a necessary evil. I do know that the law-respecting citizens are behind me, so it does not bother me what the courts may think of it."

Politicians Obstructing Him

Gen. Butler is correct in what he says of the law respecting citizens. A movement now is on foot to get up a monster parade to march on the City Hall with banners indorsing the Butler brand of law enforcement and demanding that politicians let the General alone.

For it is no secret that certain politicians are obstructing the Butler campaign against crime. Gen. Butler has been especially severe in his denunciation of City Treasurer Thomas F. Watson, chairman of the Republican City Committee, who declared the city "would be better off without Gen. Butler."

"We must smoke Watson out of the City Hall," was the General's reply, in an address to police lieutenants. "I shall not permit this politician or any other to interefere with what is my plain duty."

How Gen. Butler "Apologized"

Some of the Police Magistrates, whose duties include fixing of bond and holding criminals for higher courts, for no apparent reason other than playing to the grandstand of politicians, have been criticising the Butler system from the bench. One of these, Magistrate Edward P. Carney, publicly denounced police raids on liquor-selling soft drink parlors as illegal.

Magistrate Carney, who before that was an insignificant figure in the city government, immediately became a hero in the eyes of the disgruntled politicians. He was given a testimonial dinner at which 3000 persons were present. There were many prominent men there and many saloonkeepers, ward politicians and professional bondsmen. Gen. Butler, who was among the diners, was hooted from a far corner of the dining room when he spoke of law enforcement.

Later Gen. Butler referred to some of the guests as "bums." Magistrate Carney went to Police Headquarters and demanded an apology. Gen. Butler told him in regular Marine language to "go to hell." Following that incident the General issued a statement calling upon the people of the city to say whether they wanted his style of law enforcement or not. He said if it was distasteful to the people he would resign. Since then he has been swamped with letters urging him to keep up his work.

With the spectacular Butler police methods attracting the attention of virtually the entire country, the records of the Police Department in Philadelphia for the last year are of more than usual interest, if only to show the extent of criminal conditions against which he is waging his sensational campaign.

The police record for 1923, recently issued by the Department of Public Safety, proves that Philadelphia, although by reason of State and Federal acts legally as dry as the most arid desert, was in reality during the last year one of the wettest, if not the very wettest spot on the great American "Sahara."

Not only was the city submerged in a flood of liquor of every make and brand but vice and gang banditry reached the highest point in the criminal annals of Philadelphia during 1923, when more than 115,000 persons were arrested on various criminal charges, or more than 9500 a month, and about 315 every day. The exact total of arrests, 115,229, is the greatest number ever recorded in Philadelphia, exceeding the previous record of 1910, when about 113,000 persons were arrested, due chiefly to industrial troubles of that year, including the car and several mill strikes.

Gangs Had a Big Year in 1923

One of the biggest problems facing the soldier-policeman was the curbing of the activities of gangs of robbers who enjoyed their most prosperous year in the city during 1923. In the year's report, robberies and larcenies reached a total of 6989, of which 1945 were classed as forcible entry into homes and stores, and 4120 arrested for those thefts.

The exact number of highway robberies is not given, omitted either by careful intent, or carelessness, but police officials admit that about one-half of the total robberies were hold-ups. This would make the total of highway robberies about 3500 for the year, or an average of more than eight every day.

Property valued at $6,547,082 was reported stolen during the year. Exclusive of automobiles, the property loss amounted to $1,484,895, of which only $292,846 worth was recovered by the police. In only one form of theft did the police make any gain on the thieves and that was in automobile thefts.

The number of stolen machines during 1923, totaled 3236, with a value of $4,852,160, while 3805 cars, valued at $5,201,399, were recovered. The recoveries include 100 cars which had been stolen in the previous year, and 1066 which had been stolen in other cities or abandoned on the street and not reported stolen.

NEBRASKA'S PRETTIEST GIRL ABANDONS STAGE FAME TO WORK AS STREET MISSIONARY

"Miss Omaha," Placed Second Among America's Beauties and Given Star Part in Broadway Revue, Returns to Childhood Calling

"Omaha Needs Me Worse Than New York and I Had to Come Back," Says Alyce McCormick, Who, From the Age of 4, Has Sung and Preached to the Corner Down-and-Outers as a Member of the Volunteers of America—Victory in Beauty Contest Brought Her Opportunity to Try Out in New York Musical Show; Then With Fortune Within Her Grasp, She Canceled Contract and Returned to Humble Station as an Exhorter of Sinners.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., April 5.

HOW many girls, selected as the second most beautiful in America, given the opportunity to star in a Broadway musical revupe—and then urged to continue her engagement at a large figure —would chuck it all within a year and go back to singing hymns on the street corner with the Volunteers of America?

Not many, one may venture to say, in this era of pleasure-seeking stage struck young women. Not many, perhaps, would choose the career of a Volunteer missionary to begin with, even if it were pitted against less alluring alternatives than Broadway fame. And if they did choose it, the chances are exceedingly small that they would ever be confronted afterwards with the dilemma of deciding whether to sing under the Omaha street lights for a share in the erratic proceeds of a collection basket or behind the Shubert footlights at many certain dollars a week. Ordinarily the two professions don't get in each other's way.

But Alyce McCormick, acclaimed as Nebraska's prettiest girl and then placed next to top position among all America's beauties, has turned in such a record. At the same time she has turned Broadway form sheets topsy-turvy by thus throwing her speeding wheel of fortune into reverse and settling back into the niche in life from which she leaped so spectacularly a year ago. How did she ever come to make such a decision? More than a few young women whose most extravagant vagaries are dreams of only a chance at the prizes Alyce McCormick has thrown away are wondering. But she made it, so let her explain it.

"Something calls me back to Omaha," she says. "Something tells me that my mission in life is not to be an actress, but a saver of wayward souls on the streets. Therefore I am back and am satisfied with my course."

This from a sparkling eyed Venus of 25 who, a few months ago, was fairly knocking the eyes out of the front row in a New York theater with her performances in "Bal Tabourin."

Is Now Her Own Orchestra

Having chosen her course, Alyce McCormick again thrums her mandolin on the windy street corners unmindful of the worldly glories she has put aside. She might by now have been wearing furs and jewels instead of the simple garb of a Volunteer. She might have been pulsating to the applause of brilliant, admiring audiences with her name in electric lights above the door outside. Yet she finds a keener delight in dispensing the Volunteers' brand of homely cheer to the down and outer, in ministering to the sick and needy and preaching when occasion demands, to half curious, half embarrassed gatherings of curbstone derelicts. Scarcely is it to be wondered that the New York producers with their unsigned contracts are asking what manner of twentieth century girl is this who, with fame and fortune at her command, prefers to devote her youth and beauty to humble service, sometimes rewarded, sometimes not, in life's waste places among wasted lives.

If Alyce McCormick's voluntary abdication of her pedestal sounds like an evangelist's tale, her sudden ascension to its height savors no less strikingly of the fairy books. In spite of her widely acknowledged beauty, probably Alyce would never have experienced her strange adventure into the wonderland of Broadway had it not been for Ina Claire, the popular actress, and the accident that brought them together.

It chanced that last season when Miss Claire came to Omaha for a week's engagement in Arthur Richman's play, "The Awful Truth," a bazar, sponsored by the Volunteers of America to finance a picnic for poor children, was in full swing. About the time of her arrival, somebody with a keen eye for publicity values hit upon the scheme of conducting a beauty contest in connection with the bazar and with another manifestation of advertiser's genius, suggested that Miss Claire's services be enlisted as a judge of the beauties.

Refused to Enter Contest

Being deeply interested in the success of the bazar and the picnic for poor children, if not in beauty contests for their own sake, Miss McCormick approached the actress with the proposition herself. As the technique of beauty contests came under discussion, Miss Claire, experienced in the appraisal of feminine forms and faces across the footlights and in the dressing rooms, suggested that Alyce might do well to enter the competition herself. This the girl modestly refused to do. But the meeting resulted in a friendship that later was to have considerable significance.

The bazar's contest was held and forgotten. Alyce McCormick went about the routine of her work and continued to sing on the streets with the zeal that befits a daughter of a battalion commander of the Volunteers' army. But when Ina Claire finished her tour and went back to New York, she told her theatrical acquaintances about the unusual type of western beauty she had discovered in Omaha. As connoisseurs in shapely faces and figures, they were interested.

In the meantime another beauty contest was under way in Nebraska. The elimination competition for the candidates who were to represent the State at the National Fashion Show at Atlantic City was about to be held in Omaha and some interested reporter had sent in the picture of Alyce McCormick without her knowledge. When he told her about it, she relates, "I was on the verge of an attack of grip and very ill, but I couldn't help laughing at the joke."

But the joke was not to be on her. She was picked among the first 10 and then when the committee undertook the task of choosing the winner among these, every member was found to be voting for the same girl, and that girl was Alyce McCormick. She was unanimously selected as the prettiest girl in the State and by virtue of that victory was entered as "Miss Omaha" in the National Fashion Show at Atlantic City.

Religious Scruples an Obstacle

Hearing of this, the Shuberts became interested. Before the date for her to appear at Atlantic City arrived they had acted upon Miss Claire's suggestion and sent her a contract to take a minor part in "The Dancing Girl" as a tryout. Fortune had already opened its doors to her. She had only to enter.

Whatever may have been the thrill she experienced at this overture, this opportunity to step from an Omaha street corner to a New York stage; there were other things besides fame and fortune to consider. She was the daughter of F. A. McCormick, commander of the Volunteers in five states. What would he say? She was the granddaughter of Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth, founder of the organization. What would she say about having a granddaughter on the stage? What would all the Volunteers, with their religious scruples say, and in the final analysis, how would she reconcile such a course with her own scruples which she had been taught from the time she took up the work of a Volunteer at the age of 4? She knew she was what Broadway would call a "goody-goody." Would Broadway accept her and could she accept Broadway? Many persons warned her not to set out on the path that is hedged with temptations of every sort for young and beautiful girls from the country, or from a city like Omaha which, on Broadway, amounts to the same thing.

Finally, it was Fred Stone's example that inspired her decision. He had said the stage offered the largest field for doing good. She had wanted a larger field. Why was this not her opportunity? Over the protest of Grandmother Booth, who refused to accept her resignation from the Volunteers, she signed the contract.

Much in Demand After That

Time came for the trip to Atlantic City and eastward Alyce McCormick journeyed, chaperoned by her mother. The prize beauties were gathering from all over the nation. Every state was represented. The pomp and opulence of the fashion pageant were bewildering. Before she had fairly got her bearings it was over and she awoke from her bewilderment to find she had carried away second prize, second prize in a National contest.

But if the Omaha victory had started opportunities her way, this one brought them swarming. Her pictures were in all the newspapers along with the story of her life. Woman's page writers begged her for beauty hints for young girls. Artists sought her services as a model and theatrical producers offered her contracts. She might have had her pick had she not already given the Shuberts her word that if she decided to go on the stage she would appear in a Shubert production. She accordingly advised them that she would gladly accept the engagement in "The Dancing Girl" "if they would have her."

A member of the Shubert organization, in discussing the incident that led Lee Shubert to give "Miss Omaha" a stronger part in her first appearance, than is usually given to a novice, said:

"Mr. Shubert was greatly impressed when he met Miss McCormick. He did not hesitate to make her an immediate offer for a year. Not only was he impressed by her beauty, but was also struck by her wit and personality."

Three weeks later she made her debut auspiciously as a singer and dancer in "The Dancing Girl."

Soon Given a Better Part

Her part in this production was that of a Balkan maid in native costume. Although it provided some opportunity for her to sing and dance, it was chiefly a "breaking-in" role designed especially to exploit her beauty and give her stage training. Her only training previously acquired had been gained in her daily work with the Volunteers and in amateur entertainments at some of the Omaha missions. However, she progressed so satisfactorily, that in three weeks she was withdrawn from the production and given a better part in "Betsy Ross" in order to acquaint her with other phases of acting.

When she had been on the stage scarcely two months her chance to shine in a leading role arrived. She was one of six young women selected from a field of 300 actresses, most of them experienced, for a principal part in "Bal Tabourin," a musical revue which later was adjudged among the best presented in New York last season. She played in that for four weeks and there won her greatest success. Alfred Goodman, leader of the Winter Garden orchestra, who has seen stars come and go by the hundreds, declared "her performance was really remarkable."

The Call From Omaha

Following overtures by the Shuberts indicated the same. So enthusiastic were they that they took her out of the show and began to mould her for a star's part. She was to be given three months of strenuous training under instructors and at the end of that time was to star in the grand opening of the Winter Garden's Musical Revue.

Here indeed was the opportunity of a lifetime. Such an elevation from obscurity to fame in so short a time is hardly to be encountered outside the story books. For two months she worked at her training and her progress was regarded as exceptional. Her letters to the people at home were published in the Omaha papers. Daily telegrams of congratulation from Omaha friends and admirers were sent to her. And then came the inexplicable.

With her goal almost won she abandoned her part, abandoned the Shuberts, abandoned New York and went back to the street corners of Omaha to preach to underworld habitues and sing hymns under the walls of ill smelling packing houses. All because of what she explains as a conviction that she was meant for mission work and not for the stage.

With her hat and baggage in one hand and her contract in the other she had strolled into the office of the Shuberts and had placed the contract on the desk. She was sorrowful, but determined.

"Something calls me back to Omaha," she told them. "I can't help it. They need me in Omaha worse than they do in New York. I can do the most good there and must go back."

Here was a girl ready to take a star's part in one of New York's most gorgeous productions. How many thousands of girls would have sold their very souls for such a chance! And yet she was passing it by and going back to preaching and playing to down and outers in a "drab western town" in a "drab western state." Persuasion, promises and a bigger contract proved of no avail. She was determined and that settled it.

So now "Miss Omaha" is back. With her Broadway fame and her beauty contest distinction gathering dust on the attic shelf, she again ministers to the poor, exhorts the sinner and passes the hat among the loiterers, accepting whatever jot the collection basket yields and addressing her soprano notes to the wayfarers of the gutter.

Gen. Aguilar, Executed by Mexican Federals at 87, Had Picturesque Career

By the Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, April 5.—Devoid of color and revolutionary flavor as has been the De la Huerta revolt, it has not been without its picturesque figures reminiscent of the days following the downfall of the Porfirio Diaz regime. One of these was General of Division Higinio Aguilar, 87-year-old rough rider of the Vera Cruz hills, who was captured recently by the Federal troops and executed. In spite of his advanced age, he was a terror of Federal train guards and a thorn in the side of the conquering Obregon armies between Esperanza, on the edge of the great Mexican plain, and the sea coast.

Tall, thin and slightly stooped, but with a face almost unlined despite his age, Gen. Aguilar was a splendid horseman and capable of long hours in the saddle without rest.

Aguilar was a boy of 17 when he joined his first Mexican revolution, the revolt against Santa Ana, the dictator, in 1853. In 1865-68 he fought against the Emperor Maximilian.

Once before he was sentenced to be shot. In the Diaz revolution he was a supporter of the President, but once was accused of treason, confined in a military prison and condemned to death. Just before the time set for the execution his captors were unable to find the key to his cell. The delay saved his life, for a messenger from Diaz presently appeared bearing a commutation of his sentence.

Aguillar acted as a confidential agent of Diaz, and later was credited with quelling, by diplomatic means, an uprising of the Yaqui Indians in Sonora and of the Mayas in Yucatan. After the deposition of Diaz in 1910 he served with the Carranza forces, but later joined Victoriana Huerta. He was one of the first to join the present revolt.

ROYAL RIDERS OF RED ROBE, NEW K. K. K. AUXILIARY

Chapters Being Organized in Both St. Louis and East St. Louis, Klansmen Admit.

ALIEN-BORN CITIZENS ELIGIBLE TO JOIN

Ku Klux Officers Also Forming a Branch for Boys From 12 to 18 Years of Age.

The Ku Klux Klan, contrary to its policy of opposition to all who are not "100 per cent Americans," is forming an organization throughout the country for "naturalized Protestants," and in some Central and Eastern states is allowing unnaturalized citizens to become members of the organization.

Chapters of "The Royal Riders of the Red Robe," the name by which the organization is best known, have been formed here and in East St. Louis, according to the Rev. Charles D. McGehee, klan official and former local Methodist minister who was ousted from the church recently.

Organization of a klan auxiliary for boys from 12 to 18 years old was also announced by the Rev. Mr. McGehee, who said members of this organization are composed largely of youths whose fathers are members of the Klan and whose mothers are affiliated with Kamelia, the women's klan organization. The purpose of the organization, McGehee stated, is to teach boys to "respect the Constitution and obey the laws of the United States." He said he did not know the name of the boys' organization, having had little to do with it.

Nature of "Royal Riders."

McGehee, who is now Great Titan of Province No. 1 of the Illinois klan, described "The Royal Riders of the Red Robe" to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

"'The Royal Riders of the Red Robe' is an organization for those foreigners who believe in the tenets of the Christian religion," he said. "Catholics and Jews are barred, along with Italians, Turks and members of the Balkan states. All those excluded, excepting Jews and Catholics, may be admitted by vote of the organization after it obtains its charter by the "raggoons," or organizers, can not admit any of these people.

"The organization is closely allied with the Ku Klux Klan and is for all naturalized Protestant Gentiles of 18 years and above. It is organized under the laws of Oregon and 'The American Crusader' is the Eastern organization of similar character. Its headquarters are at Indianapolis. It does not exclude unnaturalized persons, provided they believe in Christinity. The two organizations are effecting a merger after which they probably will be known as 'The American Crusaders,' and unnaturalized citizens will be admitted.

"Its purpose is to assist persons of foreign birth to understand the United States Constitution and make them better citizens. It was organized to permit foreigners who believe in klan ideals to become connected with the klan, although not directly."

Organizers at Work Here.

McGehee said that organizers have been working for several weeks in St. Louis and East St. Louis and characterized the growth of the organization in both places as "remarkable." He refused, however, to estimate the number of members in the two cities. East St. Louis klan officials, when questioned, admitted there was such an organization, but said they were not familiar with it. Other well-informed persons in East St. Louis said they had never heard of the organization.

Charters have not been granted the chapters in either city because they have not reached sufficient strength to govern themselves, McGehee said. The membership fee is $10. What portion of this amount goes to the organizers and what becomes of the remainder McGehee would not disclose. It will be recalled that klan organizers obtained $4 for every new member they obtained before the East St. Louis klan was granted a charter. Klansmen are organizers for "The Royal Riders of the Red Robe."

NEW GERMAN OIL SOLD UNDER WRITTEN GUARANTEE RUBS OUT RHEUMATISM

A remarkable new discovery of German Chemistry for the relief of rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia is astonishing the medical world. This marvelous oil seems to kill rheumatic pains just as effectively as these other German pain killers—Novocain for painless dentistry and Aspirin for headache pains.

Rheumatism in very many cases is due to internal abscesses (such as a blind pus pocket in a tooth which gives off poisons and which are carried in the blood to the joints and muscles. This new German oil when applied to the affected parts, seems to quickly penetrate and be absorbed by the body tissue. Even in the most severe and stubborn cases almost instant relief has been obtained.

Note: The oil referred to above is known in this country as Buhler Oil. At the present time, the following druggists report that they have secured a limited quantity of Buhler Oil for distribution in this city. So remarkable have been the results from the use of Buhler Oil that these druggists are giving their customers a written guarantee to refund the price in full to any purchaser of Buhler Oil who fails to get immediate relief. On sale at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph (3 stores), Keiffer Drug Co. (6 stores), Enderle Drug Co. (6 stores), Johnson Bros. Drug Co.

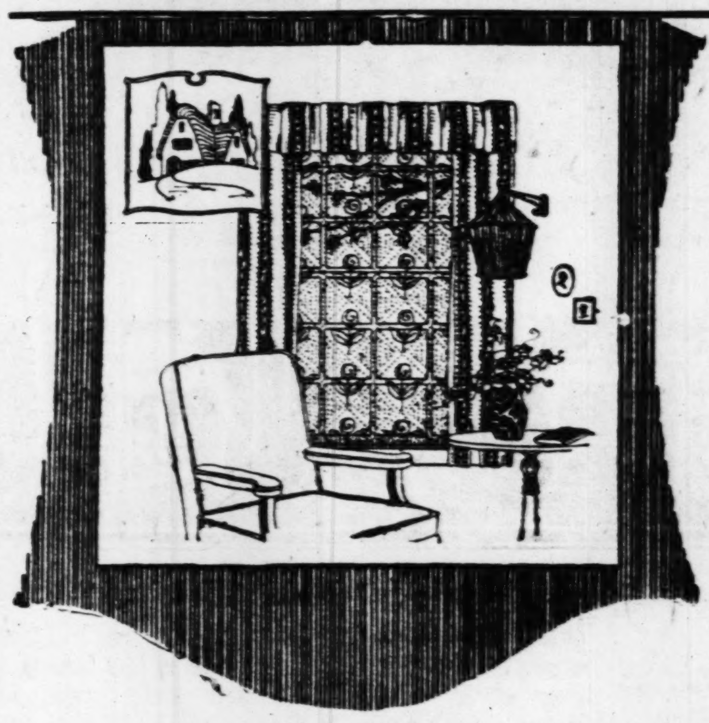
Exhibition of New Spring Draperies



Spring stocks have just come in and our Drapery Department presents a colorful display of the newest and most desirable curtains and materials. Now's the time for bright, new window hangings and door drapes. And everything you want is here, at prices as bright and cheerful as the materials themselves.

Fringed Curtains $2.35 Each
2½ yards long, 40 or 42 inches wide; beige and white. Border styles or all-over designs. Heavy bullion fringe or split fringe. Can be used one or two to a window.

Madras, 75c Yard
Heavy serviceable Madras in solid blue, brown or gold; also combinations of gold and green, silver and blue, gold and rose.

Terry Cloth, 95c Yard
36 inches wide and of a quality suitable for door drapes and window hangings. Black patterns, also striped and bird designs in various color combinations.

45-Inch Drapery Material $2.95 Yard
A beautiful combination of silk and linen. 45 inches wide. Rose color only.

Cretonne, 35c Yard
36 inches wide; small patterns suitable for bedrooms; also larger designs for sun porches. Blue and rose.

Shadow Silk, $2.50 Yard
This 50-inch wide Silk is splendid for panel curtains, and will launder well. Silk bullion fringe to match.

Overdrape Silk, $1.50 Yd.
36-inch heavy Silk in rose, blue or brown. Can be split for narrow windows.

Overdrape Silk, $1.00 Yd.
A lighter weight Silk, 36 inches wide. Brown, taupe or Copenhagen.

Ruffled Curtains $3.95 Pair
2½ or 2¼ yards long. Made of white figured Swiss, figured voile or dotted Swiss; also some in pink, blue and yellow. All have tie-backs.

Scrim and Marquisette Curtains, $4.95 Pair
These attractive Curtains come in blue and rose, with narrow lace edge or wide hemstitched hem.

Drapery Silk, $1.00 Yard
Short lengths of various goods, all 36 inches wide, and all ordinarily selling for considerably more than $1; as much as 10 yards in some of the pieces.

Drapery Silk, $3.75 Yard
45 and 50 inch silks, brocade, solid colors and a few striped patterns. Solid colors are gold, dark blue, mulberry, rose and brown. Stripes in combinations of blue, green, rose and gray.

Overdrape Material $1.95 Yard
Good heavy silk and cotton Material, 36 inches wide. Tan and blue; rose and blue; mulberry and brown. Wide enough to split. Edges to match.

Cretonnes, 95c Yard
New Cretonnes of exceptional beauty, patterned with large American Beauty roses in gray, blue or black background. Guaranteed fast colors.

Net Curtains, $3.95 Pair
These 2½-yard long Curtains come in ivory or white, scalloped or with narrow lace edge, or with narrow borders of filet or Nottingham.

Porch Chair Sets, $2.75
Bar Harbor Sets, consisting of padded tufted chair-seat and back cushions covered with cretonne.

Bed Set Material, $2.75 yd.
Heavy crinkle Material, 72 inches wide; in blue and white or pink and white striped effect. Windows can be draped with same material. 2½ yards is enough for one bed set. Colored edge to match.

Pillows, $1.25 each
Serviceable kapoc-filled Pillows, made with waterproof coverings in the darker shades. Splendid for porches and lawn swings.

Davenport Bed Suite

$227.50

Beauty and utility attractively combined. For it is the work of only a minute to turn the long davenport into a full-size double bed, comfortable as anyone could wish. Upholstering is of high-grade velour in beaver, brown or blue. Loose spring cushions, full spring seats and backs. Notice the beautiful carving on the frame, and the tassels on the arms. A wonderful value.

TALLEYRAND-SAGAN DUKEDOM IN PRUSSIA TO BE SOLD

Much Entertaining Was Done on Its 63,000 Acres to Help the Prince of Talleyrand.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 5.—Prince Howard, the 15-year-old son of the Duke of Talleyrand-Sagan, and his wife, formerly Anna Gould, daughter of the late Jay Gould of New York, is heir to a little French Dukedom in the heart of Prussia which is now being offered for sale and probably will be purchased by Duke Albrecht Eugen of Wurttemberg. Prince Howard is a namesake of his uncle, Howard Gould.

The Dukedom consists of about 63,000 acres and the old castle of Sagan, which was left untouched during the Franco-Prussian and the World Wars. It is the ancient property of the Princess of Talleyrand-Perigord and the Dukes of Sagan and is intimately connected with French history. The old Prince of Talleyrand, Napoleon and Victor Hugo were entertained there. Princess Dorothy, the most celebrated woman of the family, is said to have done much of her brilliant entertaining to help her uncle, the Prince of Talleyrand, attain diplomatic success at the Vienna Congress in 1814.

"The Royal Riders of the Red Robe" stand were described by the Rev. McGehee as follows:

"An absolute, and an unqualified allegiance to the Government and Constitution of the United States, and the enforcement of law and order.

"The protection of our homes, the sanctity of womanhood, the open Bible and the preservation and perpetuation of our public schools in which true Americanism is taught.

"The supremacy of the white race and opposition to intermarriage with any of the colored races.

"The separation of Church and State, and tolerance in religion.

"The purification of civil and political conditions that have too long been controlled and dominated by corrupt politicians and outside influence.

"Real klanishness among its members, and an unselfish service, believing by these principles it is working out the ideal of 'The Brotherhood of Man.'

"Justice and a square deal for all regardless of race, color or religion."

To Meet at Klan Temple.

McGehee would not admit that the East St. Louis organization has held meetings at the Ku Klux Klan temple at 418 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, but stated he did not know where they had held their meetings. He said he expected the organization in East St. Louis to hold its meetings at Klan temple after it was granted a charter.

McGehee's headquarters were in East St. Louis until last Tuesday, when he moved from the Metropolitan Building there to Centralia. East St. Louis klansmen said McGehee's territory had been enlarged to include 46 counties and he moved to Centralia to be in the central portion of his province. His province was enlarged when one of the five State province chiefs was ousted because of disloyalty to his superior officers.

It was observed yesterday that the "Department of Constabulary," an organization of about 100 men, most of whom are klansmen, armed to do police work in defiance of authorities, has moved from the Metropolitan Building offices it occupied a few doors from McGehee, a member. Employes of the building said McGehee removed a portion of the "constabulary's" furniture. Klansmen and "constabulary" officials have denied the two organizations are connected.

LINCOLN AUTOMOBILE DISPLAY THIS WEEK

Ford Motor Company Announces Four-Day Salon at Hotel Chase.

Quality car lovers will find a new delight in the Petite Salon to be held in St. Louis this week. It will be an unusual presentation of automobiles.

The salon is to be presented by the Ford Motor Co. for a special showing of Lincoln motor cars and will be held in the ballroom of the Chase Hotel, King's highway and Lindell boulevard, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Beautiful settings will be arranged for the cars and visitors will find themselves in luxurious surroundings. There will be music by Gene Rodemich's orchestra. Guests will have an opportunity to become fully acquainted with the Lincoln car.

Special Bodies on Display.

Among custom-built bodies three highly attractive cars are to be displayed. One will be the Fleetwood seven-passenger inside drive limousine, done in thistle green and equipped with wire wheels. There also will be a Judkins two-window Berline, a highly distinctive car, and a Judkins two-pasesnger coupe in blue. A body type of great appeal to those desiring a car for personal use.

Visitors will have an opportunity to study the Lincoln motor, for a cutaway motor will be on display so that inspection of all working parts may be made. It is beautifully mounted on a nickeled frame with mirror underneath and all brilliantl lighted.

Another feature will be th showing of a standard Lincol 136-inch wheelbase chassis, upo which all body types are mounte This chassis of polished steel wit many parts copper plated an equipped with wire wheels, prese an intimate picture of the existin details carried out in Lincoln co struction.

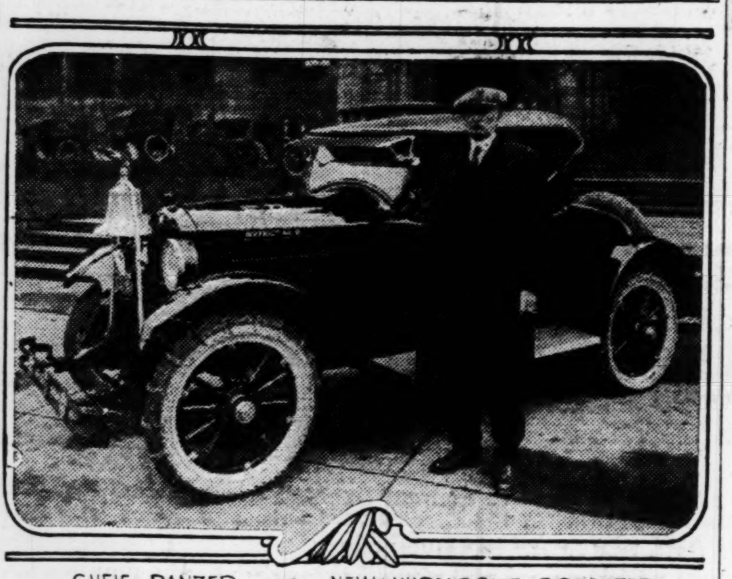
Those interested in fine coach work will be interested in a Lincoln body in white, which will form another exhibit, permitting inspection of just how Lincoln bodies are built.

Johansson Gage Exhibit.

The famous Johansson gages, the standard of precision measurement for the world, also will be featured at the salon, illustrative of the extreme precision carried out in building Lincoln cars.

The salon will open Tuesday morning and will be open every day from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10:30 o'clock at night, closing Friday.

Fire Chief Panzer With One of The Department's New Hupmobiles



CHEIF PANZER AND NEW HUPMOBILE ROADSTER

Five Hupmobile roadsters were recently delivered to the St. Louis Fire Department by the Weber Implement and Automobile Co. These Hupmobiles were delivered in prime colors to the Fire Department where their special Fire Department red color was applied. A special bumper was designed for the front by the Fire Department. Nickel bars are used on the red deck. Regulation F. D. cowl lights and tail lights are also used, these being in red and green glass. On the running board provision is made to carry night light, which is used by fire chiefs when fighting fires at night. Large bell is securely fastened on front frame. Special windshield visor and also electric automatic windshield wipers are used. Provision is made for hand chemical extinguishers in back of the seat. Special equipment was installed under supervision of Chris Koelm, master mechanic for the Fire Department. Chief Panzer received the cars at the City Hall. District chiefs will use the cars in regular service.

MOON USES DUCO ON SERIES "A" MODELS

Moon has adopted the new Duco system of body finishing and is using this latest development in body finish on all models of their series "A" cars, according to an announcement just made by Carl W. Burst, vice president and works manager of the Moon Motor Car Co.

Therefore Moon now offers the automobile buyer beautiful cars in the popular marine blue color finished in the most improved way, so that they will retain their beauty and newness much longer than cars finished in the ordinary way.

Moon commenced using Duco early in January, when their new lower-priced series "A" cars were put into production, and contemplate using it on all models.

GARDNER AGENCY HAS AUTOMOTIVE ACCOUNTS

The national advertising of two well-known automotive [illegible]s, Republic Motor Truck Co., Alma, Mich., and Motor Wheel Corporation, Lansing, Mich., has been taken over by the Gardner Advertising Co. of St. Louis, Chicago and New York, according to an announcement just made.

This advertising will be handled from the agency's new Chicago offices under the supervision of Howard L. Spohn, for many years prominently identified with advertising and productive activities in the automotive industry. Spohn has been elected vice president of the Gardner company, and is in charge of the Chicago office.

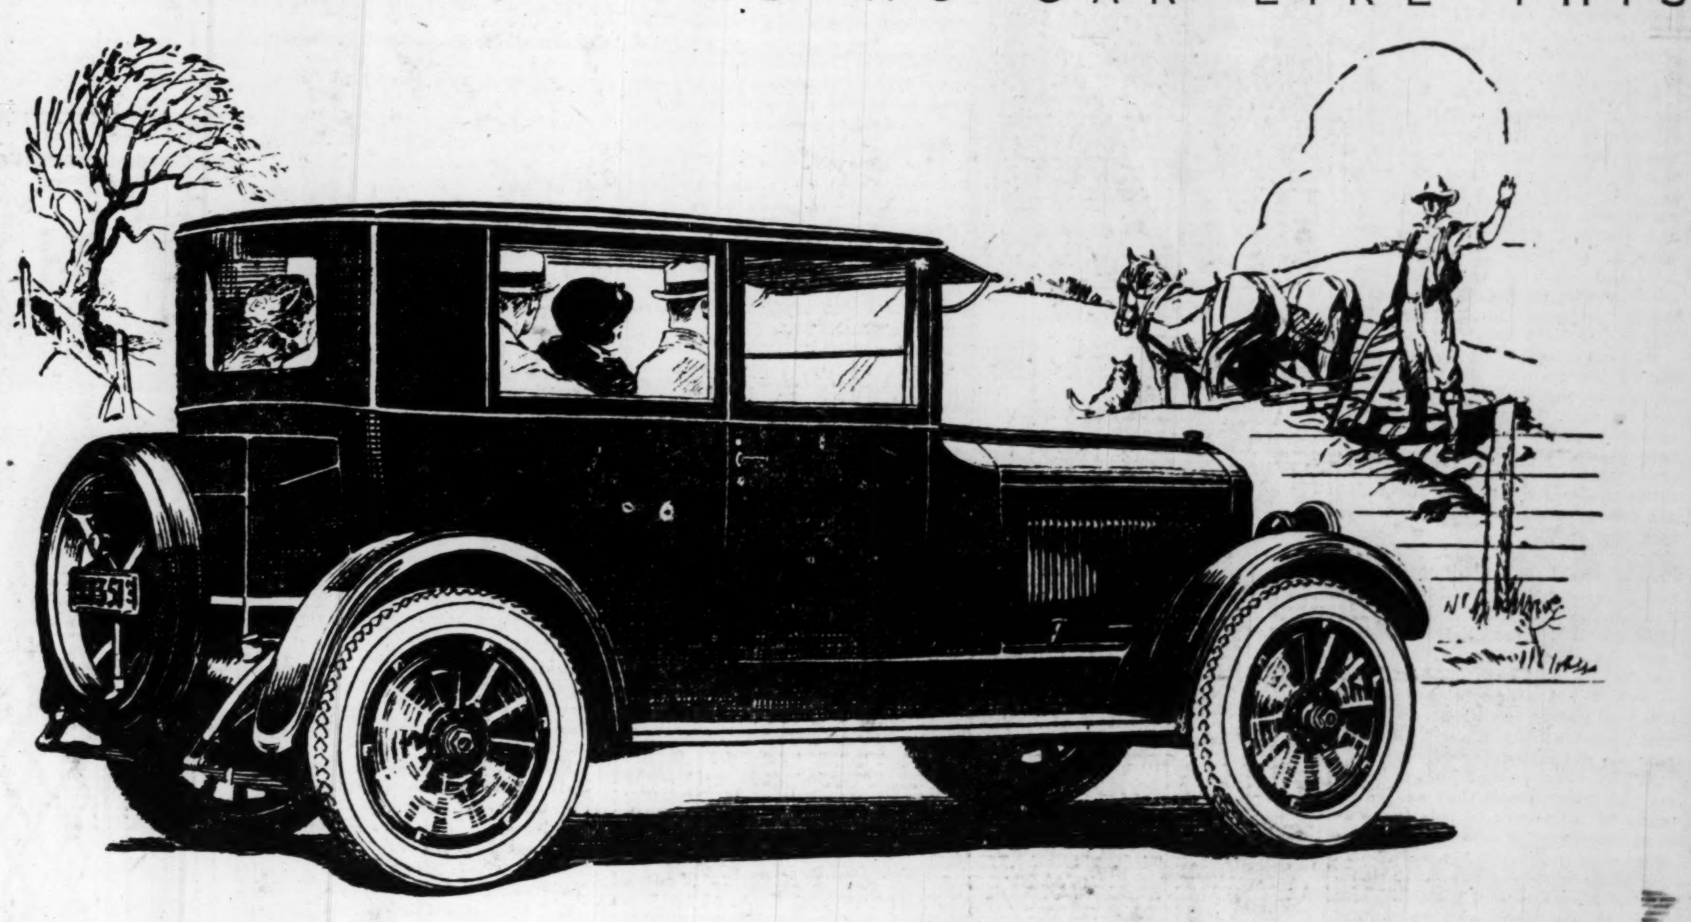
IN ALL THE WORLD NO CAR LIKE THIS



Years of Lustrous Beauty—$1325

BAKED enamel finish! This five passenger Jewett Brougham retains its glossy beauty for years. No other car at any price offers you a body built and finished like this Brougham. Separate steel body panels. Each panel is dipped three times in finest black enamel, and baked at high temperature, with a rub after each coat—then fastened to the wood frame. Wood, because wood absorbs vibration, eliminates noise.

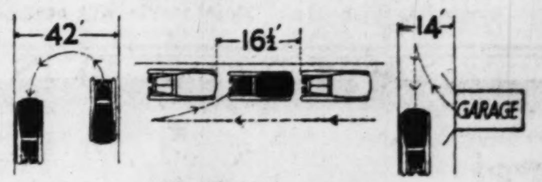
This Brougham is beautiful inside, too. Fawn-colored velour upholstery pleases the fastidious. All seats are comfortable; two in front fold, giving easy entrance and exit, either side.

Remember—It's a Sturdy Six

The Jewett is a sturdy six—not a "light" six. Touring car weighs 2805 lbs.—200 to 400 lbs. more than "light" sixes—and this Brougham in proportion. It has Paige-Timken axles front and rear; 6-inch-deep frame; all-steel universals.

The Jewett motor has extra large cylinders—3¼x5 inches. This means 249 cu. in. piston displacement—far more power, and power-for-weight—than "light" sixes. Jewett goes from 2 to 60 miles an hour, or more, in high; beats most any car's time up any hill; picks up from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds, in high. (Try that with any other car.)

In all the world no car like this! The Jewett offers a combination of advantages and mechanical superiorities not found in any other car—and Jewett's price is moderate! Drive this Brougham. Measure it against all your needs, business and social. Note our number, now! (610-5)



Traffic Advantages

Jewett's convenient chassis size gives you every traffic advantage. Parks in a 16½-foot space; turns around easily in a 42-foot street; needs but a 14-foot alley to your garage.

HONOR WILLYS AT DEALER LUNCHEON

President of Willys-Overland Expresses Enthusiasm Over Volume Produced This Spring—Predicts Bright Future.

A stirring reception was accorded to John M. Willys, president of Willys-Overland, at a luncheon and meeting of several hundred Illinois, Missouri, and Kentucky dealers, tendered by the local branch of the company last Thursday noon at Hotel Chase.

Willys was here on his annual tour of important retail centers, which has enabled him to keep his finger personally on the pulse of the buying public and to gauge accurately the trend of public demand and tastes. With him were Mrs. Willys, General Sales Manager L. G. Peed of Willys-Overland and Ward M. Canaday, president of the United States Advertising Corporation, director of Willys-Overland advertising.

Although his factory just completed its greatest year, with an output of more than 200,000 cars during 1923 Willys expressed the utmost confidence that the current year would see even this mark surpassed.

"Willys-Overland aims to build 300,000 cars during 1924," Willys told his dealers.

"We have made a splendid start toward the achievement of this record," continued Willys. "During January we built 22,048 cars, more than doubling our record of January, 1923; in February we produced 22,136 cars against only 13,000 last year. Our production has now passed the thousand-a-day mark, and during April we anticipate an output of 30,000 cars."

Willys then recited to the dealers the many plans that are being made to take care of this tremendous incerase at the Toledo factory and subsidiary plants. He told of new buildings at Toledo, and of a million and a half dollars spent in additions and new plant equipment which will enable the company to double the production of Willys-Knight cars during 1924.

"We have not hesitated to increase our production in this manner because of our belief in continued prosperity," was his comment on existing business conditions. "There was enough prosperity in the country last year to enable automobile manufacturers to build and sell a million more cars than in 1922. More people will accumulate the necessary funds with which to buy more automobiles this year.

"According to authentic estimates, the automobile output for the first three months of 1924 will be 1,100,000 cars. At present preparations are being made for a production of 1,200,000 during the second quarter.

"Under the circumstances, why worry about that vague bugbear called 'saturation point?' There is plenty of business everywhere, but you can't sit in your store and wait for it to come to you."

In the course of his talk Mr. Willys also paid a fine tribute to the part the newspapers have played in the development of the automobile industry.

"Newspaper advertising enables us to tell our respective stories convincingly, so that any man who reads can obtain our message at a glance. The constructive help and fair play of the newspapers have aided Willys-Overland within one year to regain its position among the world's foremost motor car builders.

"Not only Willys-Overland, but the entire motor car industry owes its rapid rise in great measure to newspaper co-operation."

In conclusion, Willys warned all dealers to take stock of themselves in order to fit themselves for the test of keenest competition that is now brewing in the trade.

"The coming 12 months he commented, "will be a most vital period to our industry. There is a simmering down taking place—a sieving, if you will—by which motor car manufacturers and dealers alike are being shaken down, and it is only those whose business methods are abreast of the times who will survive."

In his talk General Sales Manager L. G. Peed paid tribute to the retail merchant and to the part he had played in Willys-Overland's success during the past year. At the same time he also sounded a warning that more efficiency must be injected into his business if he expects to continue to prosper. The meeting was concluded by a short outline by Ward Canaday of the tremendous newspaper advertising campaign planned for Willys-Overland this year in conjunction with its national publicity.

Tire Dealers Meeting Date Changed.

The Associated Tire Dealers of St. Louis will hold a dinner-meeting at the Claridge Hotel at 7 p. m. Thursday, April 10. In addition to the election of officers, an invitation to make a talk has been accepted by a speaker of national repute from the East. All tire dealers are invited to attend.

"DORT BUSINESS GOOD," SAYS NEW SALES HEAD

E. G. Poxson, whom it was announced last week, is the new general sales manager of the Dort Motor Car Co. at Flint, Mich., visited the Dort distributors, the Wilson Motor Car Co., just after his appointment.

Poxson is exceedingly optimistic over conditions in the automobile business. He has just returned from the Boston show and declares that he has never before seen such interest in motor cars as was evidenced there.

"With us, at the Dort factory," Poxson said, "conditions were never better. We are behind in orders and are increasing production every month. Our new three-door coupe has been responsible for some of the increased business, as it has proven extremely popular. We feel very happy over business and believe that this year will be by far the best year has ever had."

Shock Absorbers

SHOCK Float-a-Ford ABSORBER Makes a Ford Even Better FOR FORDS

FLOAT-A-FORD SHOCK ABSORBERS are made of heavy malleable castings. The springs are of cold-drawn steel and each part is fully equipped with oil cups. The exclusive third spring of FLOAT-A-FORD is responsible for its two-way action. See that Third Spring! It's this third spring that gives the Ford two-way (up and down) protection. The two big springs cushion the downward motion while the third spring—an exclusive FLOAT-A-FORD feature—effectively checks the rebound. TRIPLE-SPRING FLOAT-A-FORD SHOCK ABSORBERS have no competition on these features.

You can tell by the "feel" of it—

How else do you judge a good golf club but by the "feel" of it as you send your ball winging its way down the course? The thoroughbred horse straining at the reins telegraphs something of his fire and spirit along the lines to his driver. The smashing twang of a really fine tennis racket . . . the supple swing of a lithesome rod—it's the "feel" of each that's half the joy of sport.

That's the way with Lubrite Gasoline. You can tell it's good gasoline by the "feel" of it—by the way your car responds when you are driving it with Lubrite. Lubrite Gasoline is half the fun of motoring.

Lubrite Gasoline is a high-test, straight-run motor fuel. It vaporizes at lower temperatures than most gasolines and, hence, starts readily any time and anywhere, and runs better always.

It has a combustion range free from marked irregularities. Consequently, it fires with the steady, irresistable push which makes a motor idle perfectly and respond promptly in acceleration.

Try a filling of Lubrite Gasoline. Judge by the "feel" of it. It is championship quality at no higher price.

MAXWELL CLUB SEDAN IS LARGEST SELLER

Within six months from the date of its announcement, the phenomenal success of the Maxwell club sedan has made it the largest selling Maxwell model ever produced, according to word received by the Ward Motor Co., Maxwell distributors, from the factory. Day after day the company's plants in Detroit, Dayton, Newcastle, Ind., and Windsor, Ont., are turning out approximately 150 cars of this type alone.

"The club sedan is a full five-passenger enclosed car, providing features not found in other cars of the so-called utility type," says J. E. Fields, general salesmanager of the Maxwell Motor Corporation.

BUICK DEALERS HEAR DISTRICT SALES HEAD

H. P. Carter Talks to Seventy Retailers at Meeting—Optimistic About Future.

The Vesper-Buick Auto Co. of this city held a meeting for Buick dealers in Eastern Missouri, Southern Illinois and Western Kentucky, on Tuesday, April 1, at noon, at the Melbourne Hotel Roof Garden. Seventy Buick dealers were present.

H. P. Carter, district sales manager, with offices in Chicago, represented the Buick factory. He recently attended one of their periodical conferences, during which the fine tooth comb and the acid test were applied to the trade surveys which the district men have recently made. The announced result of the conference is a high degree of confidence that spring and summer business will justify rosy expectations.

Speaking for the factory, Carter stated that sound fundamental conditions are prevailing in nearly every part of the country and that no misgivings are felt that the automobile business will not thrive during 1924.

"During a presidential year, the verbal battle between the 'outs' and 'ins' upsets a few nervous people," said Carter, "but indications this year point to an effect less detrimental than usual. Buick is manifesting the courage of its convictions by maintaining the stiffest production schedule in its history."

Carter expressed himself as highly impressed with the Vesper-Buick Auto Co. organization. "The fact that strikes me most forcibly is the spirit of loyalty and of co-operation that seems to prevail. There is 'teamwork' all along the line, both in St. Louis and in the dealers' establishments throughout the territory. This not only speaks well for the management, but reflects favorable upon every individual concerned. With this feeling prevalent, we can look confidently to an exceptional year in this territory despite the fact that its has always been conspicuous among Buick strongholds."

Walter H. Vesper, vice-president of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co acted as chairman for the meeting, and introduced Mr. Carter. At the conclusion of Mr. Carter's talk, W. H. Willcockson spoke for a few minutes on dealer co-operation.

NEWMARK TO HANDLE DURANT ADVERTISING

J. H. Newmark, for more than 15 years associated with Durant and General Motores interests, has established his own business under the name of J. H. Newmark, Inc., and will conduct a general advertising agency.

Newmark will continue to direct Durant sales promotion activities and to create and place the advertising of Durant enterprises through his independent organization.

Newmark has a consistent record in the automobile industry and was the dean of General Motors advertising executives when he left that corporation in May, 1922, to return to the Durant interests.

The new agency will be located in the Fisk Building, Broadway and Fifty-seventh street, New York City, and will begin its operations with the following accounts: Durant Motors, Inc.; Durant Motor Co. of Michigan, Durant Motor Co. of New Jersey, Locomobile Co. of America, Flint Motor Co., New Process Gear Co., Warner Corporation, Adams Axle Co., American Plate Glass Corporation, Mason Motor Truck Co., the Durant Corporation, Hayes-Hunt Corporation and Precision Chain Co.

METAL GARAGE IS REAL CONVENIENCE

Anyone who has experienced the discomfort and inconvenience of garaging their automobile two or three blocks from their residence, and walking home in cold, rainy and disagreeable weather, can appreciate the convenience of having a garage right in their own yard. The feeling of security in having their car housed on their own property is worth much.

Thos. McHenry & Son, 3958 Easton avenue, with 25 years experience in the sheet metal business in all its branches, were pioneers in the manufacture of steel garages. The many superior features of the McHenry metal garage have appealed to thousands of St. Louis automobile owners, who are using their buildings with great satisfaction, and has enabled this concern to keep pace with the tremendous strides of the automobile industry.

Many people have never considered the investment feature of a McHenry metal garage. Garages are in great demand in all neighborhoods, and it is said anyone having space for a garage can realize from 40 to 80 per cent on the money invested in one.

The McHenry Co. also builds metal filling stations, auto wash buildings, and, in fact, metal buildings to meet almost any need.

New Anderson Sedan.

M. H. Hawkins of the Hawkins Motor Co., Anderson distributors, has just received word from the Anderson factory at Rock Hill, S. C., of a new Anderson model. This is a seven-passenger sedan and has the usual Anderson aluminum body. It is powered by a Continental 8-R motor. A seven-passenger touring car is also being built on the same chassis.

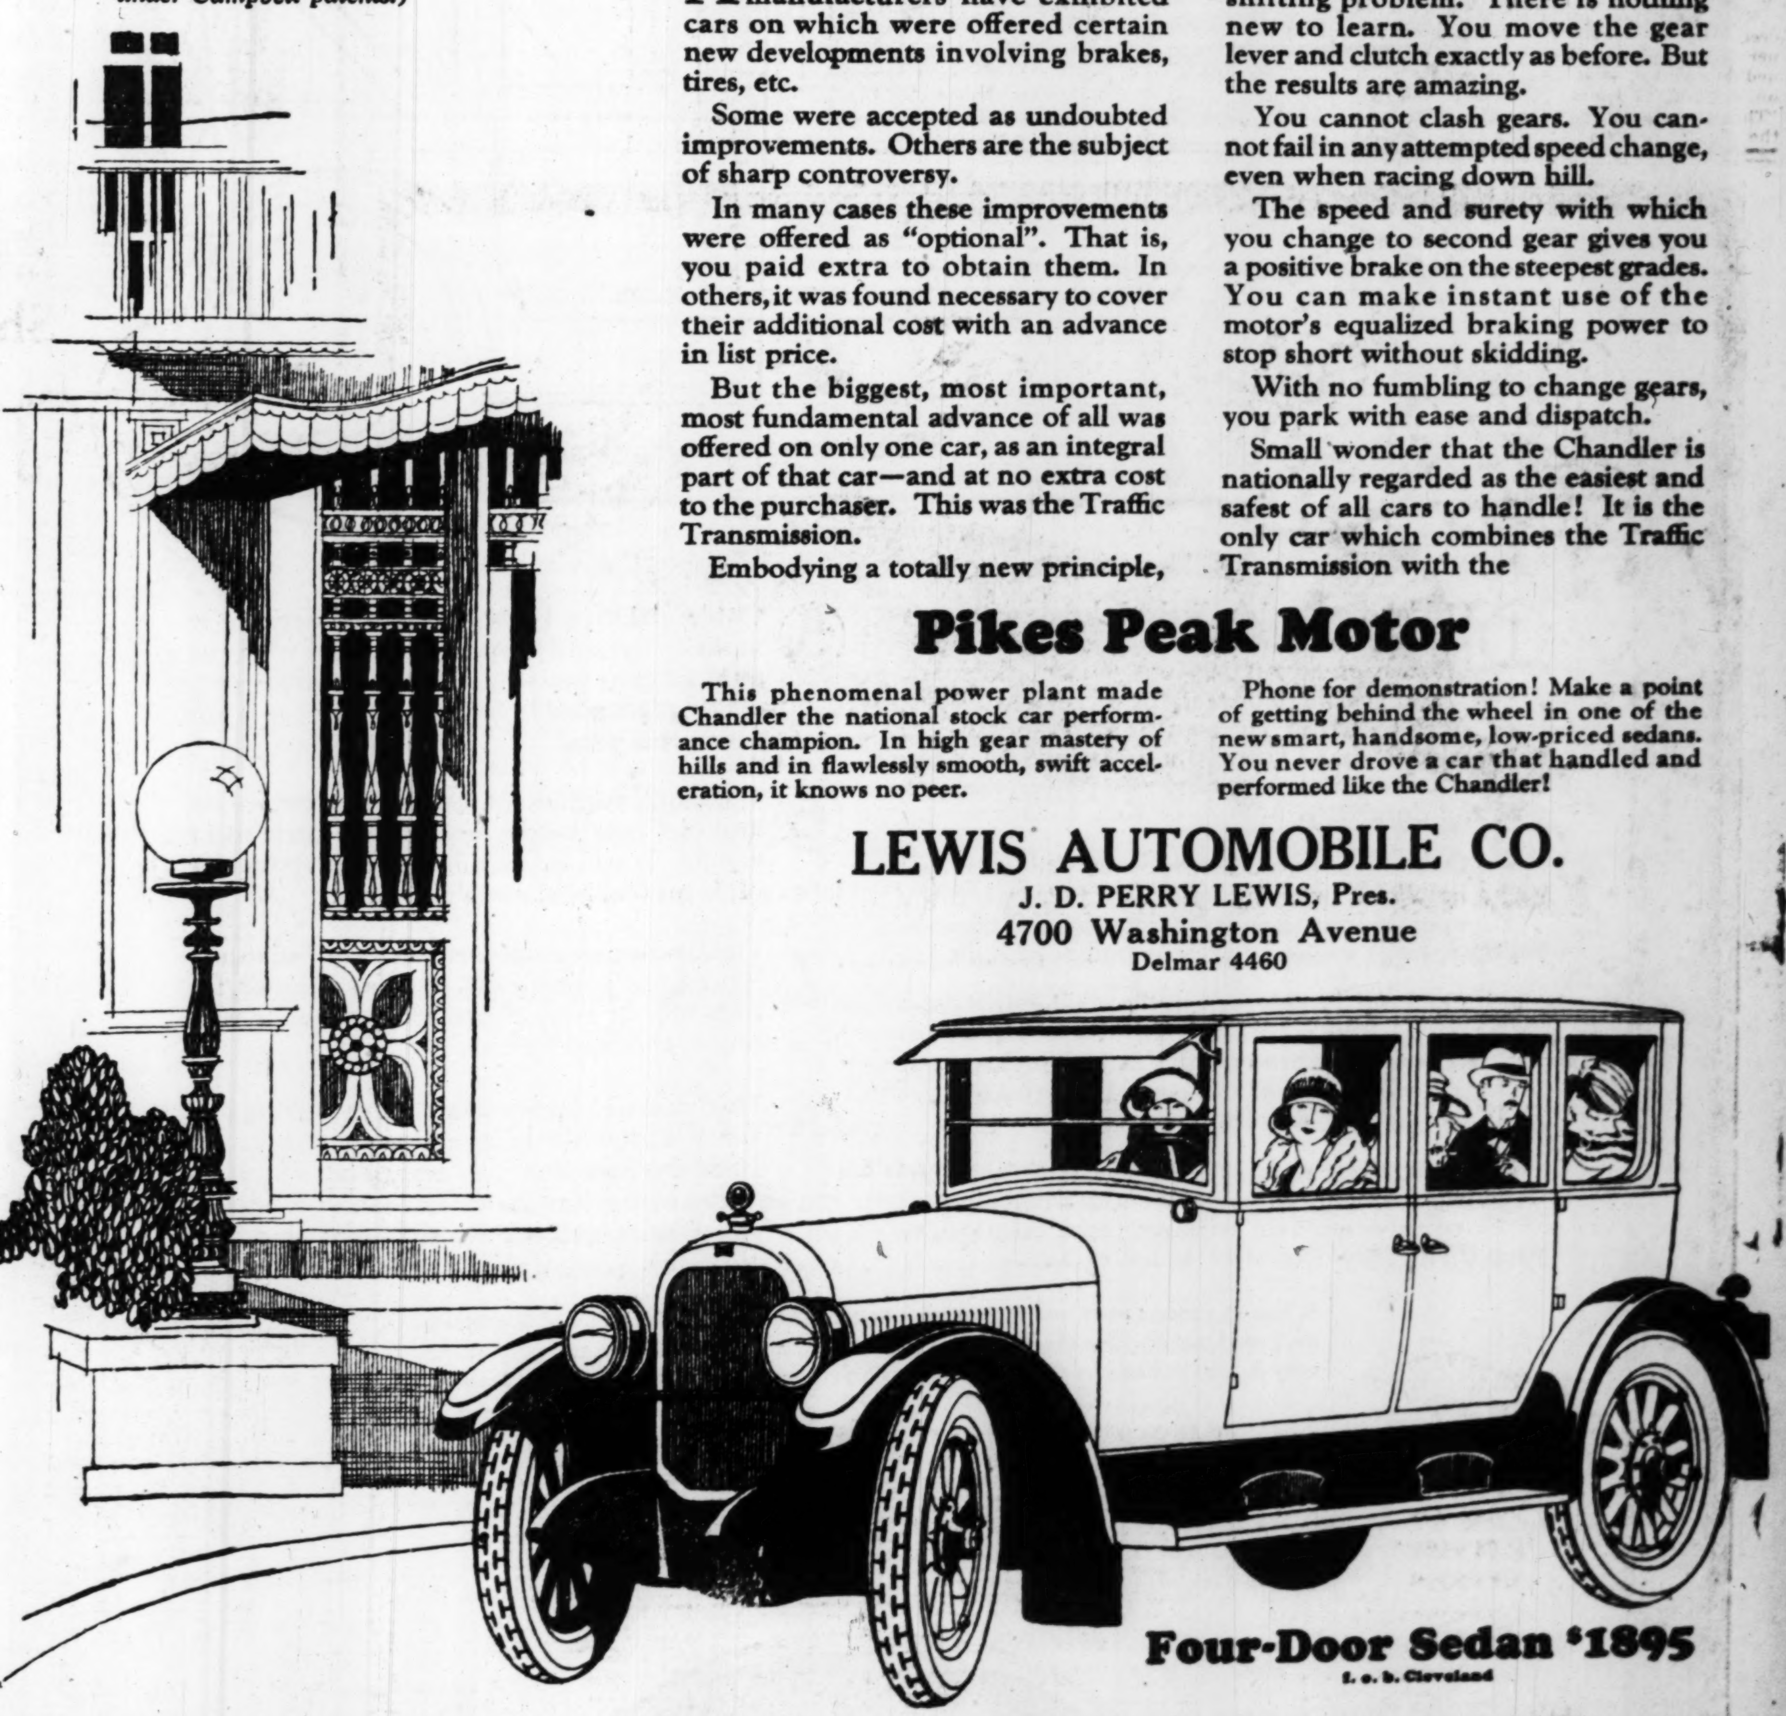
On Every Chandler Without Extra Cost

The Traffic Transmission

(The Traffic Transmission is built complete in the Chandler plant under Campbell patents.)



At the automobile shows many manufacturers have exhibited cars on which were offered certain new developments involving brakes, tires, etc.

Some were accepted as undoubted improvements. Others are the subject of sharp controversy.

In many cases these improvements were offered as "optional". That is, you paid extra to obtain them. In others, it was found necessary to cover their additional cost with an advance in list price.

But the biggest, most important, most fundamental advance of all was offered on only one car, as an integral part of that car—and at no extra cost to the purchaser. This was the Traffic Transmission.

Embodying a totally new principle, it represents the solution of the gear shifting problem. There is nothing new to learn. You move the gear lever and clutch exactly as before. But the results are amazing.

You cannot clash gears. You cannot fail in any attempted speed change, even when racing down hill.

The speed and surety with which you change to second gear gives you a positive brake on the steepest grades. You can make instant use of the motor's equalized braking power to stop short without skidding.

With no fumbling to change gears, you park with ease and dispatch.

Small wonder that the Chandler is nationally regarded as the easiest and safest of all cars to handle! It is the only car which combines the Traffic Transmission with the

Pikes Peak Motor

This phenomenal power plant made Chandler the national stock car performance champion. In high gear mastery of hills and in flawlessly smooth, swift acceleration, it knows no peer.

Phone for demonstration! Make a point of getting behind the wheel in one of the new smart, handsome, low-priced sedans. You never drove a car that handled and performed like the Chandler!

THE CAR OF THE YEAR

NEW ESSEX SIX DOUBLES ITS LAST YEAR'S SALES

Twice as many Essex cars are now being sold than last year, according to information reaching Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., distributors for Hudson and Essex cars. This word from the Hudson Motor Car Co. declares the new Essex six is meeting the most enthusiastic reception of any car ever sponsored by Hudson.

The schedules of production for the Essex six were originally set at twice the number of cars made in 1923, but these schedules have proved too small, it is declared, and the Hudson Motor Car Co. is now bending every effort to produce every Essex six possible in its plant.

"I believe this is because the new Essex has proved that it will actually outperform the old 'four,' famous as that car was," declares R. C. Frampton. "The new Essex is smoother, quieter, more economical by far, a better climber, and faster in pick-up. A good many of our Essex 'four' owners thought they had the finest car in the world for performance and endurance.

"With spring weather here, we look for the customary rush of motor car purchasers. Because our specialty is enclosed cars we have sold steadily through the winter and and we have been unable to lay up an excess stock.

T-6 SPECIAL TOURING ADDED TO REO LINE

A jaunty model, completely equipped and having balloon tires as standard equipment, made its bow this week when the "T-6 Special" Touring Reo was announced by the Reo Motor Car Co. This model which replaces the Phaeton Reo is the first of the popular line of passenger cars on which balloon tires have been made standard. Reo has been offering balloon tires as optional or selective equipment at additional cost, on all closed cars for several months.

Mechanically the T-6 Special Touring, as its name indicates, has for its power unit the same T-6 engine on which the Reo Motor Car Co. has standardized for its passenger line and its taxicab. The chassis, too, is the standard mounting for both the open and closed Reos, including such features as the double-frame seating for the engine, dual foot control, and oversized brakes. The Kardell Motor Car Co. distribute the Reo here.

DEALERS HAVE HALF A MILLION USED CARS

More than half a million used automobiles were in the hands of automobile dealers at the close of March, according to figures made public here yesterday by the National Automobile Dealers Association. This is about 25 per cent more cars than were in the stocks of dealers at the close of the first quarter of 1923.

Prices on used automobiles, as reported by the dealers from 18 states to the headquarters of the N. A. D. A. are steadily down-grade. In the last three months of 1923 the used car selling prices were down to nearly $300 and in the first three months they fell to an average of $293.60.

The average allowance price for used cars in the first three months of 1924 was $300.14.

The fact that the dealers generally were still making allowances in trading, that were higher than for the prices at which the cars would resell, accounts for the continued heavy losses, being absorbed by the dealers, says Lynn M. Shaw, assistant general manager of the N. A. D. A., who has just completed compiling the figures for the first quarter. The losses for the first quarter of the year 1924 were $6,049,600.

MAROON SPORT VELIE SHOWN BY BENJAMIN

The Benjamin Motor Co. reports receipt of a big new shipment of Velies. Included in the shipment was a maroon finish, sport touring car with balloon tires. This new car has attracted much attention at the Benjamin concern's showroom, 3021 Locust Boulevard.

Gray Coupes Arrive.

According to M. H. Hawkins of the Hawkins Motor Co., Gray dealers here, demand for Gray coupes has been so large that the company has been unable to build up a stock. A large shipment was received last week. Hawkins is also showing the new one-ton Gray truck.

The Cleveland Six claims ease in handling in traffic due to a very short turning radius of the car, which is 19 feet. Rapid pick-up of the motor is the result of the design which affords direct passage of gasoline from the carburetor into the combustion chambers, instead of having to go through many circuitous passages.

Here are Eight Oakland Features that other Cars will have Next Year

① Oakland's new six-cylinder L-head engine has such advanced features as full pressure lubrication to all bearings, automatic spark control, and special, patented, bronze-backed bearings. You will find that automotive engineers acknowledge that Oakland's advanced features have set a new standard for light-six power, smoothness and durability.

④ Centralized controls—on the steering wheel right under your hand—are so convenient you wouldn't do without them once you've used them. Now exclusive with Oakland.

⑤ Oakland Duco body finish is different. It looks better and lasts indefinitely, without scratching or marring. Next year many cars will have this remarkable finish, but you get it on an Oakland this year.

⑥ Oakland's permanent top looks better, inside and out, lasts longer, and makes curtains fit snugly. It will be on all open cars sooner or later. It is on Oakland open cars now.

⑦ Oakland's glass enclosure can be added to any True Blue Touring car, in a few minutes, for only $60. It gives closed-car protection and is a unique Oakland feature.

⑧ Disc steel wheels are safer, better looking and more desirable in every way. Most car builders admit that they are superior by making an extra charge for them. On every model of the True Blue Oakland Six they are standard equipment this year, without added cost.

When you invest your money in a car you certainly want the latest word in performance and design. See the True Blue Oakland and drive it. Then you will realize why it pays to make careful comparisons before you choose your new car this spring.

The sweeping acceptance of the Oldsmobile Six Sport Touring can be explained in one sentence—we're giving people high quality, physical beauty, six cylinders, real comfort for five, complete equipment, and low price.

This car would have to be priced at more than $1000 but for this fact—it is the joint product of Oldsmobile and General Motors. Oldsmobile's immense plants and quarter-century of experience plus General Motors' great purchasing power, big experimental laboratories, and its staff of experts establish a manufacturing advantage that is reflected in the price of the Sport Touring. No car of like quality has ever sold at a price so low. See it at our showroom. Ride in it. Drive it.

GOES SEVENTY ROUGH MILES IN "SECOND"

Seventy miles in second gear in three hours and five minutes—an average of approximately 23 miles an hour over mountainous country. This is another Dort Six record which was established in a run from Fresno, Cal., to Huntington Lake recently, according to word just received by H. C. Merry of the Wilson Motor Car Co.

A close tabulation of the speed of the motor shows that it was turning over fast enough to drive the car at a speed of 50 miles per hour in high. In making this trip the Dort proved itself to have marvelous endurance and power, for scarcely another trip could be planned that would tax the durability and stamina of a car more than the trip to Huntington Lake. Usually in making a mountain trip the driver of a car will go as far as possible in high, then shift to second and, if necessary, go in low. These many gear shifts necessarily retard the speed of the car and a very poor average mileage is made. Ernest Johnson, the driver of the Dort Six which made this record, was impressed with the idea that if the car was kept in the same gear on such a trip better time could be made. Before the start, gears were sealed in second so that no shifting could be made.

NEW PEERLESS SIX JUST ANNOUNCED

A new powerful six-cylinder engine designed by Peerless engineers and built entirely the Peerless shops in Cleveland; Peerless-Lockhead hydraulic four-wheel brakes, bodies of exceptional roominess—these are outstanding characteristics of the new Peerless six, just announced by the Peerless Motor Car Co.

This new six has been awaited with anticipation by the trade and public alike. It has been generally known that Peerless engineers were working on a six-cylinder product for more than two years.

PARTS EDUCATION BY HUPP DISTRIBUTORS

Hupmobile distributors and dealers are conducting an educational campaign among motorists the country over on the parts that enter a complete motor car.

They are demonstrating how important the highest grade parts are in contributing to proper performance, economy of operation, length of life, freedom from repair and the other essentials that go to make up lasting satisfaction.

"Many of these parts," says George Weber, president of the Weber Implement and Automobile Co., Hupmobile distributor, "must be of unusual strains and provide the necessary factor of safety.

"Because that is so, we are presenting in advance what Hupmobile puts into its car. We want every man who puts money into an automobile to do so with his eyes open, so far as we can help to that end. So we are bringing the inside of our car out into the daylight, where everyone can see it before buying. We feel that the prospective buyer is not exercising good judgment if he buys a car until he knows conclusively what enters into it."

GENERAL STORAGE IN BATTERY ASSOCIATION

The General Storage Battery Co. of this city will be one of the pioneer members in a new association of storage battery manufacturers that was organized in Chicago last week.

James M. Downey, sales manager of the General Storage Battery Co., has just returned from the organization meeting, which he was invited to attend with representatives from about 18 other battery companies.

Downey states that the aims of the new body will be to standardize various practices and to educate the motorist how to get the best benefits from battery investments.

A Morse front end chain drive is used in the Cleveland motor instead of gears. The design of this assembly permits take-up of wear after long service.

In having the gasoline system on the left side and the electrical on the right side of the Cleveland motor, the possibility of fire is reduced to a minimum.

STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX TOURING CAR

Mark This Example of what Studebaker alone can do

STUDEBAKER is the world's largest maker of quality cars. Our assets are $90,000,000. We have $50,000,000 in model plants.

Our sales have almost trebled in three years, because of our matchless values. Last year, 145,167 people paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

Come and learn why

Come and see, before you buy a car, the reasons for this success. See this Light-Six Touring Car, for instance.

Built of the finest steels. Of the very same steels we use in the costliest of our cars. On some we pay makers 15% premium to get just the quality specified.

Built under an engineering department which costs us $500,000 yearly.

Each car subjected in the building to 32,000 separate inspections.

Same steels, same workmanship as in the costliest Studebaker models.

Two great features

There are many features in this Light-Six found in no rival car. But we want to mention two in particular.

The motor is perfectly balanced. That means long life and freedom from vibration.

The reason is this: We machine all surfaces of our crankshafts and connecting rods by 61 operations. Just as was done in Liberty Airplane Motors. This is done in no other car at our prices.

Then we use more Timken bearings in this car than are used in any competitive car within $1,500 of our price. And Timken bearings take up wear as no other bearings do.

Why this price?

This Light-Six Touring Car is priced at $1,045. Built under ordinary conditions such a car would cost you from $200 to $400 more.

But we build 150,000 cars per year. We make our own parts. We build our own bodies in $10,000,000 body plants. We have 12,500 up-to-date machines. Our major costs are divided by enormous output.

The result is a value no other maker even tries to match in a fine car of this size. Come see what it means to you.

Send for the Book

Mail us the coupon below. We will send you free our new book that will inform you on five simple things which reveal the value of a car. For instance—

It will enable you to look at any car and tell whether it's been cheapened to meet a price or offers true quality.

It will tell you why some cars rattle at 20,000 miles and others don't. It shows one single point in a closed car which measures whether you're getting top or medium quality. The book is free. Clip the coupon now.

How It Excels

Steels are identical with the steels in the costliest car we make.
More Timken bearings than in any competitive car within $1,500 of its price.
Genuine leather cushions, 10 inches deep. Curled hair filling.
All-steel body.
One-piece windshield—rainproof.
Attractive cowl lights.
Quick-action cowl ventilator.
Non-skid cord tires.
Transmission and ignition locks.
Perfect motor balance.
The supreme car of its class.

CLEVELAND MANAGER PRAISES ADVERTISING

Advertising is responsible for the growth of the automobile industry, according to Harrison Goldsmith, western sales manager of the Cleveland Automobile Company of Cleveland, O. Goldsmith made this statement in an address to the Women's Advertising Club of St. Louis last Monday.

Goldsmith declared that over $100,000,000 was spent in advertising automobiles, tires and accessories in the United States during 1923.

The speaker told of the rapid growth of the automotive business and gave statistics showing the tremendous amount of raw materials it consumes, and its importance in the economic life of the country.

WOMEN INTERESTED IN CAR ENGINEERING

The Cole Motor Car Co. has just completed an investigation among women drivers to find out what it is that influences women in the purchase of their motor cars.

The net of the Cole investigation, results of which have just been received by the Benjamin Motor Co., Cole distributors, shows that in the last analysis women have selected their Cole cars because of six distinct engineering features, rather than because of the car's beauty.

According to the Cole investigation women wanted a car that steers easily, shifts easily, that has a nimble clutch action, unusual brakes, balanced riding comfort and plenty of power.

J. J. Cole, who is pioneer in the field of motor creations, has been recognized for years as a close student of selling as well as of engineering. It is typical of the thoroughness with which he works that he would make such an investigation among women.

Cole has always been a leader in the design of beautiful cars, but by the same token he has not overlooked the fact that engineering plays a very important part in the sale of cars to women.

HAYNES MAKES BOSTON SHOW SALES RECORD

How enthusiastically the public is receiving the Haynes was again demonstrated by the sales of this car last week in Boston. Forty-two Haynes cars were sold to actual owners.

"These figures are very gratifying," says S. E. Burke, general sales and advertising manager of the Haynes Automobile Co., in a letter just received by H. C. Merry of the Wilson Motor Car Co., Haynes distributers, "as these purchases represent an actual vote of the public on the value of the Haynes. They prove that our ideals are realized, and that we are truly building 'the par car.'"

Page, president of the Carondelet-Buick Auto Co., and who has been associated with several of the retail Buick dealers in St. Louis as a salesman.

Extensive alterations will be made in the corner location at Grand and West Pine and the storage and display facilities; also a gasoline filling station.

OLDS SALES BREAKING ALL PREVIOUS RECORDS

Sales of six cylinder Oldsmobiles during the first three months of 1924 broke all previous Olds Motor Works records. From Jan. 1 to March 31 this year nearly 22,000 cars were shipped from the Lansing, Mich., plant.

Sales for the same period last year totaled 7635 cars—about one-third the number manufactured and sold the first quarter of 1924. The highest first quarterly figure previous to this year was during the first three months of 1920 when 12,000 cars were manufactured and sold.

"We have every reason to expect a continued good business," said H. H. Mundy, of the Olds Motor Works, one representative who was here visiting the De Luxe Automobile Co., Oldsmobile distributers, last week. "In 1919, our best previous year the country was working under greatly inflated conditions. Such do not exist at present, and, in the normal course of events, the present era of prosperity should continue.

"This applies to all business, but with even greater force to the automobile industry. Automobiles are built better today than ever before, and they give the greatest dollar value a man can obtain for his money."

The mechanical value of an automobile cannot be judged entirely by appearance.

M'DONALD SURVEYS EUROPEAN CONDITIONS

Stewart McDonald, president of the Moon Motor Car Co., returned this week from a six weeks' business trip to Europe, and reports that business conditions over there show definite improvement.

"In France everyone is busy," says McDonald. "England is in the throes of labor difficulties, though the reaction to the tram and bus strikes indicates the country is fed up on labor's continued demands. The atmosphere is clearing there. American automobiles are sold freely in Spain, Great Britain and the Scandinavian countries, in which nations Moon cars have enjoyed a good trade for some years.

On the trip abroad, McDonald established new dealer connections in the occupied German territory. The German distributor, Anton Burnell, has purchased 200 cars, 42 of which are now being boxed for shipment. Moon's export business has been expanding steadily, about 10 per cent of Moon production being sold in foreign countries.

ANZAC RECORD IS BROKEN IN JEWETT

Auckland to Wellington, New Zealand, a distance of 500 miles, has been the scene of many attempts at shattering automobile speed records. The most recent to come to the attention of the States was the record broken by the new Jewett six.

Many fast runs have been made between the two cities, despite adverse road conditions. The task that faced the Jewett was to reduce the record of 15 hours and 25 minutes. The Jewett succeeded, states the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., builders of the motor car, in a letter just received by James E. Newell of the Newell Motor Car Co., Jewett distributers.

The new Jewett record is 14 hours and 58 minutes.

A new feature with the Cleveland Six is a new method of lubrication of the valve mechanism. Oil under pressure is forced to this location and the entire mechanism is kept constantly lubricated.

CARS FOR TESTS TAKEN FROM SHIPPING LINE

Every second day a finished car awaiting shipment in the Packard Motor Car Co.'s factory is seized by the company's engineers, and after a 500-mile road test, is completely disassembled.

Each car taken by the quality engineers has passed every factory inspection and is ready for delivery. No warning is given workers in the factory as to when the engineers will call, and the cars, both sixes and eights, are picked at random and immediately taken into the engineers' laboratory.

Oil, gasoline and water are drained by the engineers. A new supply is put into the car and it then is sent out on the road. Drivers are instructed to handle the car as nearly as possible as it would be driven by an owner during the first 500 miles. Testing is done in the country on unimproved roads and with enough city driving to give a normal amount of starting and stopping.

When it returns to the factory the car is put in a big cradle-like machine which permits it to be turned on its side or upside down and every point on the exterior is examined and checked. It then is completely torn down and every piece of material is minutely examined with superaccurate gauges.

Why Bleaching Is The Safest Way to Whiten Dark Teeth

Dentists' New Discovery Guaranteed to Remove Teeth Stains—Or Costs Nothing.

Note Instant Results!

A new safe method has been discovered which whitens teeth instantly, giving dull, yellowish teeth a beautiful new flashing whiteness and lustre.

The old way to whiten stained teeth was to scrub them with harsh, gritty abrasives, which usually scraped away the precious enamel. But this new safe method is entirely different. It is called Bleachodent Combination, and consists of a mild liquid and a special kind of paste. This liquid softens and loosens the stains—while the special paste gently removes them. The reason this new method is safer than the old way is because the mild ingredients of Bleachodent Combination are especially combined to act only on the surface stains—not on the enamel itself.

You simply brush the teeth with a few drops of the mild, harmless liquid—then use the paste, and note the instant results! See how quickly dull, stained, yellowish teeth acquire a new, sparkling whiteness and glistening lustre! Tobacco and other stains disappear often with the first few applications!

Bleachodent was perfected by two prominent dentists who used it for four years on their own teeth and on their patients' teeth with such highly beneficial results that the Bleachodent Dental Laboratories were organized to place this remarkable product before the public. Bleachodent Combination is sold on the absolute guarantee that your money will be instantly refunded if you are not more than delighted with results of first application. Don't accept cheap imitations. Be sure to ask for Bleachodent Combination by its full name. Get it for small cost. For sale by all good druggists.

Weighs 314 Pounds--Only 35 Years Old

Could Not Walk Due to Gas on Stomach

"I am 35 years old, weigh 314 pounds and suffered terribly with gas and cramps. Could not walk four blocks without suffering pains in my right side. After taking one bottle Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) I was entirely relieved of the cramps and of the gas on the stomach." (Signed) Leo Boness.

INTESTINAL ANTISEPTIC.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacili in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

REPORTS FROM PHYSICIANS.

"I found Adlerika the best in my entire 37 years' experience." (Signed) Dr. G. Eggers.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. P. (Name given on request.)

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

To the Women Motorists of St. Louis

WHILE it is almost universally recognized that Cole cars possess a beauty of design and line in a superlative degree, it is a compliment to the judgment of women motorists that they have found underneath this beauty engineering advantages which make Cole so popular with women.

A recent canvass of Cole women drivers shows that Cole engineering has in the last analysis been the determining factor in the purchase of their cars.

Here are the Six Engineering Advantages Women Like in Cole

① A Steering mechanism so easily operated that it is never work to guide a Cole—just play—a hand operation without bodily exertion.

② A Clutch that positively eliminates foot-fatigue, "jumpy-get-away" or a dread of gear-shifting.

③ A Gear Shift which filters through thumb and forefinger as easily as stroking a kitten.

④ Brakes that even a small, daintily shod foot commands on the instant—a fractional pressure, unlabored, untiring, positive.

⑤ Balanced Riding Comfort, like the glide of a motor boat in smooth water with the engine shut off.

⑥ Smooth, Deep-Throated Power that gives you the dash of a greyhound or the idling of a gaited thoroughbred under perfect control.

These advantages must be engineered in a car and are found in Cole. You, too, like other women, want all of these advantages in a car. Without doubt the car that is more nearly engineered to fit the requirements of women is, we believe, the Cole.

If your car does not give you what Cole is giving other women, then you are not driving a "woman's car."

Let your own judgment dictate a demonstration.

The Greatest Motor Fuel of all—

RED CROWN ETHYL GENERAL MOTORS PRODUCT GASOLINE

Since the earliest days of the automobile industry, engineers have known that it would be possible to get greater power and economy from the use of petroleum fuels in internal combustion engines were it not for a very objectionable knock developing in the motor when efforts were made to obtain such increased efficiency.

Ask for Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline at any Standard Oil Service Station in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

For years this problem has been made a study in the great General Motors Research Laboratories and now success has crowned their efforts and Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline is offered to the motorists of America.

This new fuel possesses many advantages among which are these—

It eliminates fuel knocks—and the waste of fuel and lack of power and the carbonization that these knocks indicate.

It makes for smoother and more powerful motor operation.

It insures quicker acceleration.

It makes for greater economy.

It eliminates all harmful effects of carbon.

It actually improves the condition of the motor.

Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline is the greatest boon to motorists since the invention of the self-starter. It's the greatest motor fuel that has ever been offered to you. Try it.

HINTS FOR REFLEX USERS

Here is a hint from the Electrical Research Laboratories for improving reception in some Erla reflex sets. Due to difference in assembly a different size by-pass condenser than that shown in the blue prints, etc., across the secondary of the 6 to 1 audio transformer will, in some cases, effect an improvement.

In place of the .00025 mfd fixed condenser, try, first a .00015 mfd fixed condenser and then a .0001 mfd fixed condenser, especially if a howling is evident when the 11 plate variable condenser is being adjusted. This howl can be eleminated by using a fixed condenser of lower capacity than the .00025. This fixed condenser controls the radio frequency reflex of the set.

An 11-plate variable condenser may be substituted in place of the .00025 mfd fixed condenser and obtain excellent results, especially in tuning more sharply for distant stations, but if this by-pass condenser is reduced to too low a value a reduction in signal strength, especially on weak signals, will be noted.

For the Notebook.

Keep the set away from open windows on damp nights.

A poor connection of any kind usually means failure of a crystal detector set to operate.

The way to learn to operate a set properly is to liseen in with someone who is experienced.

Never use copper for storage battery connections. It is much better to use a lead or zinc connection directly on the battery.

The law requires that all coastal broadcasting stations cease operation immediately when an "S O S" call is heard.

A 6x10-inch panel may be cut from an old 12-inch phonograph record. To do this, use a hot knife. The holes should be punched in the record with a red-hot iron.

RADIO SETS PLANNED FOR WAR VETERAN HOSPITALS

Present Institutions to Be Wired, and Future Buildings Will Include Complete Equipment.

Director Hines of the Veterans Bureau plans to equip all Government hospitals with radio as soon as possible. As a preliminary step he has authorized the wiring of hospitals under construction for radio distribution in the following cities: Northampton, Mass.; Tupper Lake and Chelsea, N. Y.; Chillicothe, O.; Camp Custer, Mich.; St. Cloud, Minn.; Excelsior Springs, Mo.; and Livermore, Cal. Additions being constructed in hospitals in Gulfport, Miss., Knoxville, Ia.; Little Rock, Ark.; and Augusta, Ga., will also be wired for the installation of receiving sets.

Hospitals planned, but not yet started, for Aspinwall, Pa.; San Fernandino, Cal.; Pikesville, Ky.; Great Lakes, Ill.; and probably at sites in Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland when definite plans are completed. All 48 hospitas at present occupied, not yet supplied with radio, will also be wired and equipped as soon as means to meet the expenses can be found, the director states. Money will be needed for the centrally located receiving sets, and many pairs of phones and loud speakers, and it is hoped charitable institutions or radio manufacturers will aid the Government in this plan to bring the outside world to all the veterans in Government hospitals.

Wire for Aerial Insulators.

When putting up an aerial, do not make the mistake of using a small size wire to hold the insulators. This only makes the aerial as strong as that bit of wire. Always use the same sized or heavier wire as in the aerial.

Two Who Will Take Part in Music Centenary to Be Broadcast by KSD

MARIE MARENKA BLANCHE BLAZENKA

A program of compositions by Smetana will be given this evening by the Czecho-Slovak Society of St. Louis, in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of the great Bohemian author. Among other things, the first act of the opera, "The Bartered Bride," will be sung. The entire program will be broadcast by KSD, beginning at 8:30 p. m.

EVENING CLASS IN RADIO

There Will Be 20 Lessons During Remainder of Season at Soldan High.

The evening radio class at Soldan High School begins it's third period and there will be 20 lessons during the remainder of the season. There are two classes—for the beginners and for the more advanced — in which the theory and practice of radio receiving and transmitting are taught.

These classes are conducted by the Board of Education and are free to all who wish to attend. The classes meet on Monday and Wednesday nights between 7:30 and 9:30. All interested persons are asked to be on hand Monday night before 7:30.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All queries must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer.

Q. What is the best tube to use in a Flewelling receiver? L. A. V.

A. Any "hard" tube. The UV-201-A or C-301-A is the preference of most radio fans.

Q. Would an indoor aerial in an attic help to reduce static? D. J. S.

A. Yes, to a large degree. This is an excellent plan for summertime radio reception.

Q. (1) Please publish the Kopprasch circuit. (2) What is the cost of an amateur transmitting license? (3) Where can a transmitting license be obtained? (4) Can Day-Fan variometers be used in the Kopprasch hook-up without changing the connections? F. C.

A. (1) The Kopprasch circuit appeared in the Post-Dispatch, issue of April 23, 1923. (2) No charge is made for amateur transmitting licenses. (3) Address request for application blanks to Radio Supervisor, Federal Building, Chicago, Ill. (4) A slight change is necessary in the connections to the variometers to adapt them for use in a Kopprasch circuit, but this does not prevent them from being used in the conventional way afterward. It is only a minor change in the wiring.

Q. I have a standard make of receiver. Since adding three stages of radio frequency, recently, it tunes so broadly that it is impossible to select and "hold" one station. The tuning was much more selective before the addition of "radio" amplification. I have heard every large station in the United States, Canada, Mexico City, Cuba, Hawaiian Islands, London, England, and Glasgow, Scotland, but theer is always some U. S. station that drowns them out. Please tell me what change to make. Would it be advisable to explain the matter to the manufacturers? J. J. K., Hartshorne, Ok.

A. The probability is that your aerial is too long, although it is difficult to diagnose trouble with the few details you have given. Suggest writing to the manufacturers of your set, explaining your entire radio set from aerial to ground, and include a wiring diagram of the three stages of amplification you recently added. They will, no doubt, supply the information desired.

Q. What is the address of the Norman W. Henley Publishing Co and what is the price of their new book, "222 Radio Circuit Diagrams"? R. N.

The address is 2 West Forty-fifth street, New York City. Cost, $1.

Q. Please explain some simple way to increase the wave length of a radio receiving set. M. M.

A. Either increase the length of your aerial some 15 or 20 feet or connect a .0005 or a .0001 mfd. variable condenser across the aerial and ground binding posts.

Q. (1) My aerial runs north and south. It is about 90 feet long and about 25 feet high at one end, and 55 feet high at the other. What can I do to overcome the directional effect? (2) Would a Fada 180-degree vario-coupler work well in an Erla three-tube reflex receiver? (3) Should a loop aerial be connected to the aerial and ground terminals, or across the secondary of the vario-coupler? M. W. W.

A. (1) If there is a large building in your immediate neighborhood, it may be responsible for your dificulty, but if not, the trouble is more than likely in your set. Experimenting and improving its efficiency may do a great deal to increase your range in all directions. (2) Yes. (3) A loop aerial is connected across the aerial and ground terminals of a receiver. These terminal lead to the primary of the vario-coupler which serves as a coupling device.

Q. (1) Is there any danger of lightning striking an aerial. After using my set, I disconnect the aerial and ground wires and connect them together, but I have no switch or lightning arrester? (2) Why is it I can get distant stations 1000 miles away and cannot get stations 20 miles away? (3) Would a cardboard panel finished with paint or enamel give as good results as a bakelite panel? A. L.

A. (1) It is dangerous and considered a risk to have an outdoor aerial with no lightning switch or protective device. The insurance companies require that an approved lightning switch or arrester be instaled in a direct line from the aerial to the ground at every outdoor installation. (2) Probably because of a difference in wave lengths. You gave no details concerning your set and we cannot give a definite answer. (3) No. Most emphatically not. Some enamels and paints have a metallic base which would short-circuit instruments with which it came in contact, and also the cardboard would absorb moisture, rendering it unless as an insulrator.

Radiograms.

Radio has been adopted as a specific treatment for bedridden tubercular patients and convalescents at Camp Kearney, Cal.

Throughout the United States there are nine municipalities, chambers of commerce or boards of trade operating broadcasting stations.

The largest and most powerful radio station in Canada is at Ottawa. This station is known as CKCH, and broadcasts on a wave of 435 meters.

Indians and cowboys recently joined in a barn dance near Palisade, Neb., to music broadcast from a radio station in Troy, N. Y. Some of the people came 45 miles to attend the dance.

One of the newest courses listed at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., is radio. Previously the students of the navy's school learned only the principles of telephone, telegraph and radio communication as part of their electrical course.

BROADCAST SIGNALS OPERATE ALARM BELL

Recently Perfected Signaling Device Calls Attendant to Radio Set.

When the telephone was being developed back in the '70s one of the first advances was the provision of a bell to call the subscriber. In radio communication a bell has not been important in the past because operators have been required by law to stand watch at commercial stations.

There are, however, many possible applications of radio telephony where a continuous watch may not be necessary for the safety of the public, and here a bell to call the attendant would be of decided advantage. For instance, a mining company might install a radio telephone system for point-to-point communication between its workings, where the rough country will not permit the erection of wire lines. Then there is the ship-to-shore telephone system, in which a reliable signaling device would be of great convenience, enabling the service to be handled by the same operating methods used in wire telephony. A practical method of ringing a bell over a radio link has been developed by C. S. Demarest and M. L. Almquist of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and L. M. Clement of the Western Electric Co.

How the System Works.

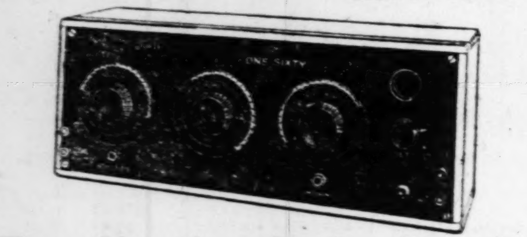
This is how the new signaling system works: In the transmitting radio station is a vibrating interrupter, operated by direct current, which delivers an alternating current at 135 cycles per second. This alternating current is used to modulate the radio oscillations just as speech currents are used. At the receiving station the incoming signal is demodulated and the 135-cycle current, after amplification, flows through a relay tuned mechanically to that frequency. When this relay begins to vibrate it makes a second relay close positively, and this relay will operate any electrical device, such as a bell, horn, lamp or selector switch.

While this signaling system will be of decided importance in many applications of radio telephony and telegraphy, curiously enough it is not based on any new discoveries, but rather represents the adaptation to radio of certain apparatus that is well known in wire telephony. The 135-cycle input is fed into the audio-frequency input amplifier at a point appropriate to its energy level. In small transmitters it may be applied directly to the modulator tube.

At the receiving end the output of the detector tube of the regular radio receiver is connected through a special one-stage amplifier to the vibrating relay. Five vacuum tubes must be kept lighted continuously while the station is to be ready for incoming calls, but the current consumption is so small that it is a negligible part of operating costs. Considering the value of an attendant's time, the use of tubes and power in this way makes possible a substantial saving.

As to the effect of interference, tests show that the electrical and mechanical tuning of the receiving circuits and apparatus is so effective that radio telegraph signals similar to those from an interrupted continuous wave or spark transmitter would render speech unintelligible long before they would make the signaling system [illegible]

FADA "One Sixty" Neutrodyne Reflex Receiver



Tune Into Any Station Instantly

Think of a receiver that has known and tested dial combinations by which every important station in the country can be pre-selected. If you own that receiver and know these combinations YOU CAN'T FAIL.

Cuts Thru KSD

People who are most experienced in radio, call the "Fada" the greatest radio advance in years. It is rapidly replacing their old equipment. With it in your home, you can enjoy local broadcasting whenever you wish—but powerful local stations can't interfere with you when you want Chicago, New York, or any other far-off place. They can't drown you out.

Radio Without It, Is Obsolete

Every day, demonstrators from Frank Adam are proving the wonders of this receiver in new homes. People who thought they had the best equipment that money could buy are amazed at its clear-cut range, its convenience, its accuracy. Think of stepping to your radio and getting any station in the land quicker than you could phone your grocer. Imagine the pleasure of browsing at will the nation over without endless tuning, wailing and howling.

"The Rolls-Royce of Reception"

The SUPERIOR HETERODYNE 8-Tube Receiving Set incorporates every good feature of the Super-Heterodyne, plus push pull amplification which is endorsed by all the leading radio engineers as the only means of amplification without distortion.

SUPER-SENSITIVE: A modified system of the Super-Heterodyne which makes it much more sensitive and selective. An extra modulating tube so used as to increase the sensitivity of the set over that of any known receiver. Results secured exceed by far the Neutrodyne, Reflex, or any other.

SIMPLICITY OF OPERATION: Only two controls for tuning which can be logged on any station for future reception.

ULTRA RECEPTION: Completely eliminates all local broadcasting and receives distant ones clear and distinct. One-half degree variation of the dial tunes out the interfering station and produces unusually fine reception.

RANGE: Tunes the large and small far-distant stations that other receivers fail to get. A range of 3000 miles using a 2-foot loop aerial and a range of 600 miles using only a ground wire. Covers the entire broadcast range.

SPECIFICATIONS: Special wound SUPERIOR 10,000 meter Radio Frequency Transformers. Oscillator coupler for use with outside antenna if desired. Solid walnut, hand-rubbed cabinet. Length over all, 33 inches.

A remarkable Receiver of unusual merit. Truly the most beautiful set on the American market, and absolutely the last word in Radio.

BROADCAST SIGNALS OPERATE ALARM BELL

Recently Perfected Signaling Device Calls Attendant to Radio Set.

When the telephone was being developed back in the '70s one of the first advances was the provision of a bell to call the subscriber. In radio communication a bell has not been important in the past because operators have been required by law to stand watch at commercial stations.

There are, however, many possible applications of radio telephony where a continuous watch may not be necessary for the safety of the public, and here a bell to call the attendant would be of decided advantage. For instance, a mining company might install a radio telephone system for point-to-point communication between its workings, where the rough country will not permit the erection of wire lines. Then there is the ship-to-shore telephone system, in which a reliable signaling device would be of great convenience, enabling the service to be handled by the same operating methods used in wire telephony. A practical method of ringing a bell over a radio link has been developed by C. S. Demarest and M. L. Almquist of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and L. M. Clement of the Western Electric Co.

How the System Works.

This is how the new signaling system works: In the transmitting radio station is a vibrating interrupter, operated by direct current, which delivers an alternating current at 135 cycles per second. This alternating current is used to modulate the radio oscillations just as speech currents are used. At the receiving station the incoming signal is demodulated and the 135-cycle current, after amplification, flows through a relay tuned mechanically to that frequency. When this relay begins to vibrate it makes a second relay close positively, and this relay will operate any electrical device, such as a bell, horn, lamp or selector switch.

While this signaling system will be of decided importance in many applications of radio telephony and telegraphy, curiously enough it is not based on any new discoveries, but rather represents the adaptation to radio of certain apparatus that is well known in wire telephony. The 135-cycle input is fed into the audio-frequency input amplifier at a point appropriate to its energy level. In small transmitters it may be applied directly to the modulator tube.

At the receiving end the output of the detector tube of the regular radio receiver is connected through a special one-stage amplifier to the vibrating relay. Five vacuum tubes must be kept lighted continuously while the station is to be ready for incoming calls, but the current consumption is so small that it is a negligible part of operating costs. Considering the value of an attendant's time, the use of tubes and power in this way makes possible a substantial saving.

As to the effect of interference, tests show that the electrical and mechanical tuning of the receiving circuits and apparatus is so effective that radio telegraph signals similar to those from an interrupted continuous wave or spark transmitter would render speech unintelligible long before they would make the signaling system fail.

RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

SURVEY SHOWS FARM RADIOS INCREASING

Replies From 73 Illinois Counties Show That There Are 20,845 Sets in Operation.

Replies from 73 Illinois county farm bureaus in a radio survey just completed by the Illinois Agricultural Association, revealed that there are 20,845 radio receiving sets on farms in these counties. The survey would indicate that between 7 and 10 per cent of the rural population of the State have installed receiving sets.

"The survey was made for the purpose of determining the extent of the use of radio on farms, the type of programs most desired, practical benefits of radio, and for the planning of programs to meet the demands of the constantly growing army of farm radio fans," according to State I. A. A. officials.

These farm radio sets tune in nightly on stations all over the United States. Chicago, Davenport and St. Louis are mentioned most frequently, because they are nearby and easy for a small set to pick up, but many reports were given stating that farmers tune in on Kansas City, Dallas, Fort Worth, Jefferson City, Omaha, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, New York and other broadcasting stations.

The counties near broadcasting stations naturally showed the most sets. Madison County, in the vicinity of St. Louis, has 2550 sets; Rock Island County, near Davenport, has 900 and in Henry County, also near Davenport, the report shows that nearly one-third of the entire farm population has sets.

Only about 25 per cent of the farmers owning radio sets make their own, the rest being manufactured sets, the survey showed.

An increasing number of farm communities use receiving sets for their meeting programs. These are installed in school houses, country churches or community houses. Logan County reports four rural schools having sets. In Greene County there are no regular community sets as yet, but private sets are frequently loaned and installed for community gatherings.

One of the questions asked in the survey was, "What sort of radio programs do such gatherings use the most and like the best?" The almost invariable reply to this was, "Musical programs and occasionally good lectures."

Individual farmers, farm bureaus and banks tell of practical benefits from the daily market and weather reports. Montgomery County, near St. Louis, furnishes this example:

"The First National Bank of Raymond, Ill., has a radio set and gets the opening livestock market at 9:40 a. m. The manager of the Co-operative Shipping Association keeps in close touch with the market report at East St. Louis, and several times has received the market report at 9:40, called in one or two cars of hogs and hit a good market at East St. Louis the next day. On several occasions this made the farmers from $50 to $100 per car more money for their hogs."

The returns from Madison County state: "The reports keep the farmers in closer touch with the markets and they are not the prey of buyers who may come along and offer below the market for hogs or cattle."

"What radio features of special interest to Illinois farmers do you think the I. A. A. might be instrumental in establishing?" was another question asked in the survey. News of pending legislation, crop reports, co-operative marketing, talks, farm organization news, market reports and short talks on good farming were the most frequent suggestions.

One point that was stressed was the necessity of having farm programs early in the evening, since the 10 o'clock programs are rather late for farmers. "Make it snappy," was also the advice given regarding farm programs. Plenty of jazz music, and talks that are short and to the point. It is as easy to tune out a tiresome speech as to tune it in, they said.

The human-interest angle of the farm radio set showed through the survey. One man reported that "the women folks now divide the time formerly spent listening over the telephone with the radio." A report was given of a farmer who was neglecting his farm duties because he sat up so late listening in.

The rapidly increasing popularity of the farm radio is shown by the report from Coles County, which has had 100 sets installed in the last six months. This county is not located near any broadcasting station.

CONVERTING SINGLE TO A 3-CIRCUIT SET

Change Results in Reduction of Radiation and Increased Selectivity.

By STUART C. MAHANAY,
Radio Staff, Post-Dispatch.

Since interference among individual broadcasting stations has been reduced, another kind of interference has come into prominence, namely, that caused by regenerative receiving sets. Unfortunately, the type of receiver which causes the most trouble by radiating whistles and squeals, is the one which is the simplest of all the tube sets to assemble and operate—the single-circuit receiver.

Double and three circuit sets operate with a minimum of radiation, and are much more selective, but the disadvantage in them lies in the fact that they are somewhat more difficult to tune, and more time and trouble is required to construct them. After some practice, however, tuning becomes second-nature and highly satisfactory results are the result.

This article explains the conversion of a single-circuit receiver of the usual variety, to a two-circuit set at a cost of approximately 25 cents, and a small amount of time and labor. This is more than justified, it will be found, for the finished receiver is one that is quite selective, and operates with a minimum of radiated interference.

How the Change Is Made.

First, remove all wire from the primary of the vario-coupler. Then separate the rotor and shaft from the tube in order that it may be located in the center of the tube. This is best explained by the picture diagram. It will be noted that the wire is wound on either side of the space required for the rotor shafts. The primary is rewound with either the same, or new wire, and taps taken off at every tenth turn. Note that no single-turn taps are made.

Over this tapped coil just wound—on either side of the rotor—is placed a layer of cambric cloth and over the cambric cloth is wound about 10 turns of No. 26 d. c. c. wire. If an adhesive agent is required to hold the wire in place, collodion is recommended. The two ends are brought out to binding posts. Be sure, in winding the outer coil, that this second coil is wound in the same direction as the first (tapped) coil. This is highly important.

The changes outlined above convert the original primary of the vario-coupler to a tapped secondary—the 10 outside turns becoming the primary and the rotor provides the feed-back as in the single-circuit hook-up.

Before soldering all connections, it is advisable to try reversing the "tickler" coil leads and, with the set hooked up for operation, note any difference in signal strength. Make permanent the connection which gives the loudest signals.

The hook-up is self-explanatory. Both schematic and picture diagrams are shown.

It is essential that a variable grid-leak be employed, and if a "soft" or gaseous detector tube is used, a vernier rheostat will be of inestimable value in fine and selective tuning.

Any type of tube will work in this hook-up. A detector tube is preferable, but a "hard" or amplifying tube can be made to function. In the latter case, a plate voltage ranging between 22½ and 45 volts may be necessary, but this can only be determined by experiment.

One, two, or even three stages of audio-frequency amplication may be added if it is desired to use a loud speaker.

Some practice in tuning will be necessary before best results can be had, but after some experience is asquired, the set, if carefully made and connected to an efficient aerial, will prove to be all that the broadcast listened can desire for distance and selectivity—considering the expense and trouble required in its construction.

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

The latest development of the Crosley Radio Corporation is the "Trirdyn," a three-tube receiver consisting of tuned radio frequency amplification, regenerative detector reflexed back to the first tube, and an additional stage of audio frequency amplification giving to the set the effect of five tubes, although there are but three. It is claimed that Crosley engineers have been working on this receiver for more than a year, devoting all their efforts to the development of what leading radio authorities regard as the very best working unit. This receiver is nonradiating (or nonreradiating, as it is sometimes called). Tuning is effected by means of only two dials, which can be calibrated. Two rheostats are supplied, one for controlling the detector, and the other for controlling both amplifier tubes. According to the manufacturers, this set can be used satisfactorily with a very small indoor aerial, and gives loud-speaker volume on long distance stations. The receiver is known as the Trirdyn, getting its name from the combination of radio frequency, regeneration and reflex and also the fact that the set uses only three tubes.

The Operadio is one of the most complete portable radio receivers on the market. The set is enclosed in a carrying case, 17 inches long, 12 inches high and 9 inches deep and contains a built-in loud-speaker. Six tubes are employed in the set—three steps of radio frequency, detector and two steps of auto frequency. Either C-299 or UV-199 tubes may be used. Both "A" and "B" dry cells, which are enclosed in a separate compartment, are balanced in such a way that their actual life is the same. Under normal operating time there is 150 hours' use in the batteries or about three months. Six No. 6 dry batteries supply the filament current and four 22½-volt batteries the plate current. A voltmeter mounted on the panel allows the user to burn the filaments at the proper voltage. All tuning is accomplished by capacity through one condenser. The manufacturers supply with the set a "wave-bridge" which is built into the removable top and side, and is plugged into the instrument when the set is in operation. It is free to rotate similar to a loop aerial and, being very directional, makes the set most selective.

The Marinette Electric Corporation has brought out a new double slide crystal tuner. The tuner is only sold as a complete set with phones and detector. All aerial equipment is supplied with the set. The phones that come with this efficient tuner are made by the same company.

These phones may be either one of two types. Neither pair is rated in ohms, but is wound for best efficiency. The phone cords are marked for correct polarity, which will eliminate the necessity of trying for the best connection. Phones may be bought separate from the receiving set.

The Fahnestock Electric Co. has been supplying telephone companies in the United States and Canada with test connectors for more than 20 years. These connectors are in use in all parts of the country and are therefore subject to various climatic conditions and temperatures. The fact that these connectors are now standard equipment on telephone lines would prove that they have given absolute satisfaction. One of these types of connectors, known as the No. 31, makes an ideal connection for joining the lead-in wire to the antenna. By snapping the larger connector over the antenna wire and inserting the end of the lead-in wire into the small, connection is made, thus eliminating the soldering and splicing of the two wires. The connector is made of the highest grade phosphor bronze and is guaranteed to keep its spring temper indefinitely.

Worth Remembering.

Never increase the filament voltage of a tube above the value recommended by the manufacturer. Keep it below that point if possible. It is a matter of economy as well as efficiency. If in doubt, use a voltmeter acoss the terminals of the tube socket.

STANDARDIZING DRY CELLS FOR GOVERNMENT CONSUMPTION

Conference Called to Select Standard Types and Sizes for All Use Including Radio.

The Bureau of Standards has called a dry cell conference on April 28 to standardize battery types and specifications. The Government purchases about 135,000 dry batteries a year. They include over a dozen types and sizes to fulfill many requirements, including radio "A" and "B" batteries, but the exact distribution for telephone, bell-ringing, flashlight, ignition and radio use is not available. In an effort to standardize Government requirements and specifications, an interdepartmental committee is now at work. A tentative schedule carrying about seven standard cells and two radio dry cells has been laid out.

Since the problem was undertaken, however, the demand for dry batteries for governmental radio work has increased greatly and conditions have been changed, necessitating a revision of specifications of performance. Dry battery manufacturers have been carrying on extensive tests to determine the type of performance tests to be established and the proper numerical values for these requirements.

The Bureau of Standards in co-operation with the American Electrochemical Society has now decided to call a conference of dry cell manufacturers and users, including Government representatives.

Radiograms.

Helen Keller, deaf and blind since the age of 19 months, enjoys radio by unscrewing the cap of the phones and lightly touching the diaphragm.

During a recent test in a newly cut tunnel, more than 200 feet underground, at Lakewood, O., radio messages were distinctly heard from broadcasting stations at Cleveland, Chicago and Philadelphia.

WJAX at Cleveland, O., broadcasts a daily woman's program every morning between 9:30 and 10 o'clock. Such subjects as canning, housekeeping, music, books and play reviews, baby care, news in politics and musical numbers are among the subjects sent out.

How ACME made sure before going ahead

"REFLEX" circuits began to appear in print about eighteen months ago and have been appearing steadily ever since. The Acme Apparatus Co. adopted the policy of active waiting, which meant find out, make sure, before telling the novice how to make an Acme "REFLEX."

The results of nearly two years of "active waiting" can be obtained by anyone sending 10 cents to the Acme Apparatus Co., Cambridge, Mass., for the new edition of our book, "Amplification without Distortion," containing complete information and wiring diagrams to make your set "REFLEX."

Ask your radio dealer to show you the Acme (R-2, 3 and 4) Radio Frequency Transformers for distance and the Acme A-2 Audio Frequency Transformer for volume.

LEAVENWORTH STATION OPENS

Completes Link in Government Chain of Radio Relay Stations Across Continent.

Last week, the Army Message Center in Washington was in direct touch with its new radio station at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. The new circuit of about 1000 miles was opened for tests, and mechanical transmission was tried out experimentally. WBC, the call of Leavenworth station was heard for the first time by operators at WWA, which is the call of the Army Message Center in the Munitions Building.

The set at Leavenworth is a duplicate of the 10-KW tube set, recently installed at Fort Douglas, Salt Lake City and completes the Army's transcontinental circuit, in three jumps, eliminating five relays. Messages now go from Washington to Leavenworth to Salt Lake City and then to San Francisco. The new set, described as a wonderful piece of equipment by Gen. Saltzman. It may be used for radio telephony as well as radio telegraph.

Points on Receiving.

If set works fine on one locality and not in another, try changing the ground connection.

If set cannot be made to operate, remember the fault may be in the apparatus as well as in the circuit, aerial, or ground.

If low wavelength stations cannot be received, insert a larger capacity variable condenser, shorten aerial, or insert a fixed condenser in series with the antenna lead.

If high wavelengths cannot be reached either add additional turns of wire to the stator of the variocoupler or variometer, or insert a honeycomb coil of the required size in series with the antenna lead.

EIFFEL TOWER CONCERT IS HEARD AT CHATHAM, MASS.

For the First Time, American Radio Station Receives Regular Program from France—It Came for An Hour.

The first radio concert heard in America transmitted from the Eiffel Tower at Paris, France, was intercepted Saturday night, March 29, by Bert Moulton at Chatham, Mass. Moulton is employed at the Radio Corporation of America coastal station at Chatham. He also operates his own experimental station.

The powerful station on the Eiffel Tower, with the call letters "SFR," operated by the Compagnie Francaise de Radiophone, used a wavelength of 1780 meters, and broadcast a special program intended for American listeners between 5 p. m. and 7 p. m., Eastern standard time.

A carefully calibrated receiver employing four tubes was used, and Moulton listened to the French broadcast program for more than an hour. He heard instrumental and vocal selections at 6:10 p. m. and held them until 7:15 p. m.

It was the first time that a regular concert from France was received in America. Station SFR used 2000 watts, which is twice as much as power American broadcast stations use, and it is also significant that the wavelength used was much higher than the average broadcasting wavelength. Static, and the fact that little previous notice of the test had been given to American listeners, was responsible for the small American audience.

Tube Tips.

Do not apply excessive plate voltage to the ordinary amplifying tube, as it paralyzes the electron emission and sometimes ruins the tubes. The tube will take a plate potential of about 120 volts without any damage. Many enthusiasts, in their desire to get more amplification, try increasing the voltage, and when they reach about 160, away goes the works. The ratings given on the tubes are out there for a purpose; do not disregard them.

For the Notebook.

A single-circuit set can never eliminate interference as effectively as a two-circuit set can.

Two spider-web coils can be used either as a variocoupler or a variometer.

The art of tuning is acquired only by actual practice, and not from a book or a discussion.

When operating a loud speaker it is better to get moderate and clear signals than loud, distorted ones.

It is possible to light the tube with alternating current, but it is accompanied by a strong hum.

NEW YORK RADIO SHOW TO BE HELD IN FALL

Sept. 22-28 Set for Exhibition at Madison Square Garden—Foreign Exhibit Planned.

Final arrangements have just been made for the world's first annual international radio show, which is to open at Madison Square Garden on Monday, Sept. 22, and continue until Sunday night, Sept. 28.

The coming exposition, the largest and most complete show of its kind ever staged anywhere, will be held under the auspices of the newly organized Radio Manufacturers' Show Association, composed of 60 of the most prominent American radio manufacturers. U. J. Herrmann and James F. Kerr, the well-known theatrical managers, who have made such a gigantic success of the annual Chicago Radio Show, will be managing director and general manager respectively. There will also be an Advisory Board made up of E. B. Mallory, chairman of the radio division of the Associated Manufacturers of Electrical Supplies, Paul B. Klugh, executive secretary of the National Association of Broadcasters, and Calvin Harris, the pioneer radio publicity expert.

The Radio Manufacturers' Show Association will hold three great expositions next season, which will probably revolutionize the show end of the business. The first will be in New York, at Madison Square Garden, Sept. 22 to 28; the second will be held in Chicago, at the Coliseum, Nov. 18 to 23, and the third will take place on the Pacific Coast early in 1925. The name of the latter city and exact dates will be made known within a few days.

The board of directors of the R. M. S. A. has taken an exclusive 10-year lease on Madison Square Garden for its annual and international radio show, which will be held there every fall until 1934. The association has also taken over the Chicago Coliseum for a like period and another 10-year lease is being negotiated on a Western exposition building. The new organization, which is heavily financed, is indeed a permanent institution which promises to be of great benefit to radio in general.

Managers Herrmann and Kerr have incorporated many of their own original ideas into next season's plans, which are expected to make the show itself an unusually attractive spectacle and also eliminate nearly all of the unpleasant features of past radio exhibitions, for both exhibitors and patrons.

An outstanding feature next season will be the introduction of foreign exhibits. Several of the leading European manufacturers have applied to Manager Kerr for space and he is now trying to rearrange his plans so as to enable them to have a section of their own.

Different Types of Aerials.

There are two types of aerials frequently used for receiving purposes, namely, the inverted "L," in which the lead-in is taken from one end of the aerial, and the type "T" aerial, in which the lead-in is taken from the center of the aerial. The "T" type has less directional effect than the inverted "L" aerial, but in receiving aerials that are more than 20 feet above the ground the directional effects are almost nil, so in practically all cases the "L" type aerial will prove satisfactory.

TWO NEW RADIO BILLS INTRODUCED IN SENATE

One Is Duplicate of White Bill —Other Would Eliminate Copyright Fees.

Despite the popularity or necessity of investigation, two Senators have found time and interest enough to introduce bills affecting radio. Senator C. C. Dill of Washington has introduced a duplicate of the White bill, which is still in committee, and also a special bill intended to relieve broadcasters from paying copyright fees when transmitting music, songs, etc., through the ether. Hearings on the latter bill will be held by the Senate Patent Committee on April 9, and representatives of the authors and publishers, broadcasters and even listeners-in are expected to be present. In view of the fight in the open previous to the introduction of this measure, further conflict at the hearings is anticipated.

Senator R. B. Howell of Nebraska presented a bill "reaffirming the use of the ether for radio communication or otherwise to be the inalienable possession of the people of the United States and their Government, and for other purposes." This bill, recently reported favorably by the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, seeks to establish two years as a maximum for licenses of broadcasting and other radio stations, as opposed to the maximum time of 10 years allotted under the White bill. It also provides that the President may, in time of war or emergency, terminate license privileges. The Senator is also interested in the general regulatory bills before the House and Senate.

Senator Howell has just introduced a resolution asking the Secretaries of War and Navy to appoint a committee to make a study of their facilities for picking up and broadcasting the Senate proceedings.

Improvised Loud Speakers.

An emergency loud speaker can easily be made by putting each telephone receiver of a headset in an ordinary china cup, with the ear cap down. The volume obtainable is often astonishing. Round cut glass fruit bowls, or wooden chopping bowls are also quite effective. If the bottom of the dish is rather flat the phone must be propped up by a couple of match sticks.

Tuning Combinations.

The tuning dials of a receiving set require careful manipulation. They are like the sensitive combination dial of a safe, and for every broadcasting station to be tuned in there is a definite combination that will give the best results. When a new station is heard, it is a good plan to make a record of the tuning combination. Note dial settings and switch points, the stage on which the broadcasting was received, the quality of reproduction, and any other data that will increase the efficiency of tuning in distant stations.

MOVE TO FREE THE AIR OF ADVERTISING

Numerous Complaints Are Being Received Fro mthe Radio Public, Say Officials of New Organizations.

NEW YORK, April 5.—"Free the air of advertising," is one of the slogans of the newly organized American Radio Association, which has in view the elimination of commercial exploitation through the medium of radio broadcasting.

"Some action is necessary at this time,' 'said Executive Secretary Alfred M. Caddell, "to head off what threatens to become a great handicap to the radio industry itself. Numerous complaints are being received from teh radio public who are objecting in increasing numbers in having their news, music and entertainments interspersed with advertising which properly belongs in the columns of newspapers and magazines."

Stuart Rogers has been appointed chairman of the Antiadvertising Committee, which will ask the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the Associated Advertising Agencies and similar organizations to co-operate with the American Radio Association for the protection of the public.

"It is only natural that with the coming of broadcasting in the United State," says Mr. Rogers, 'that advertising and publicity men generally would seek to take advantage of the opportunity offered for advertising their individual firms, and while much can be done towards spreading information of general value to the public, the radio public of today is being saturated with a large amount of matter which can be classified only as pure and unadulterated advertising.

"The reaction to this sort of a program is obvious. In the end the result will be disastrous to the trade itself, and the American Radio Association feels that this kind of propaganda should be eliminated from radio programs."

Information regarding the plan and scope of the proposed Anti-advertising program may be had upon application to the national headquarters of the American Radio Association, 50 Union Square, New York City.

EXPLAINS SITUATION AS TO VACUUM TUBES

Sales Manager of Radio Corporation Denies That They Are Holding Back on the Sales.

When asked whether there was any foundation to the rumors that the company which he represents had withheld the sale of vacuum tubes and thus restrained the sale of competitive apparatus, E. E. Bucher, manager of sales department, Radio Corporation of America, said:

"Rumors to the effect that we have been holding back on our tube sales are absolutely false and I wish to deny that this is the case. Only 10 to 15 per cent of our total monthly tube production is required for our merchandise, the remainder going to purchasers using sets and parts manufactured by others.

"There are general facts in the vacuum tube situation which we are glad to give and which, no doubt, will tend to curb any feeling that the Radio Corporation of America is not giving this subject the close attention that it deserves.

1. "We maintained a day-by-day inventory of from 450,000 to 600,000 tubes of five different types, up to Jan. 1 of this year, and steps were taken many weeks past with the endeavor to build this inventory to still larger figures.

2. "768,816 Radiotrons were delivered to the trade in January, this year; 825,936 in February, and March deliveries will exceed 900,-000.

3. Seventy per cent of our monthly production schedule is composed of Radiotrons UV-200 and 201A.

4. "Stocks of dry battery tubes have been in excess of the trade demands from May, +923, to date, and current production is keeping apace of the demand.

5. "Current production on the storage battery types of tubes is actually in excess of new orders booked for these particular types, but present production schedules should produce an excess by the first week in April.

"There is no desire on the part of the Radio Corporation to do anything other than produce tubes in sufficient quantities to meet every possible requirement of the trade. We are in the business to sell and not to withhold. However, the circumstances under which the manufacturer works in meeting the requirements of the market must be given due consideration.

"Briefly, the industry is too young to enable either the dealer or the distributor to place orders with the manufacturer sufficiently in advance to meet the fluctuating demands for the specific types of tubes. As the factories, on the other hand, must prepare their production and procure new material from 90 to 120 days in advance of actual deliveries, it becomes necessary for us to endeavor to predict at least four months in advance what the trade requirements may possibly be. To this end the Radio Corporation maintains a staff of expert statisticians whose time and energies are devoted solely to a study of this situation, frequent conferences are held with the manufacturers and production schedules are revamped to meet the fluctuating demands of the market.

"During the latter part of November, 1923, a largely increased demand for the storage battery types of tubes became evident, but no prior notification of this possible increase was given to the Radio Corporation by the trade channels. Major steps were then taken in our factories to increase production on that type such as the building of additional plant facilities, the installation of new machinery, the training of additional personnel, etc. Between the first week of December and February, production on the storage battery types of tubes was actually doubled and still further increases are obtained week by week.

"Production schedules have been laid down in the factories for the remainder of this year, which it is confidently believed will be largely in excess of the trade requirements, for it is the avowed policy of this company to keep its producton ahead of the demand.

"A temporary tube shortage may develop in any particular locality not by reason of insufficient factory production, but because of the difficulties of obtaining uniform distribution. The Radio Corporation sells its tubes to distributers; from that point on it has no control over distribution to the dealers. We are aware, however, that distributers are making every effort to serve dealers in all localities, but the actual quantities distributed in any particular territory are also governed by the amount of dealers' orders, dealers' credits, inability of some dealers to sense the public demand sufficiently in advance to enable them to serve customers promptly, and numerous other factors, all of which have bearing on the situation.

"As further evidence of our desire to meet all possible trade demands, it is important to point out that only 10 per cent to 15 per cent of our total tube production is required for our own merchandise and all that we need is more concise advance notification of what the trade wants, thus enabling us to prevent shortages."

RADIO PROVES GREAT AID TO DEAF PEOPLE

Many Whose Hearing Is Defective Can Understand Broadcasting.

Nearly everyone knows that the invention of the telephone was more or less of an accident—that it was the result of efforts by Alexander Graham Bell to make an instrument by which his wife, who was deaf, could hear. It was during these experiments that he made the instrument which revolutionized communication throughout the world.

It is not so generally realized that deaf persons, in many instances, can hear better over the radio, and that this new art of communication is proving a real boon to the deaf.

This is due largely to recent remarkable advances in the art of broadcasting music and the voice, and to the fact that in receiving sets where there is amplification without distortion, the quality and volume of sound makes it possible for many deaf persons, who do not readily hear ordinary conversation, to hear and understand over the radio.

Recently a man called at the office of a well known manufacturer of amplifying transformers to tell him what radio had done for his neighbor and life-long pal. The neighbor had been so deaf for many years that it was impossible to make him understand unless one actually shouted into his ear. One evening while visiting his friend the deaf man put on the receivers of a set and found, to his amazement, that he could understand every word. Right then and there he asked his friend to make him a set, and the following Sunday the set was installed. That evening the man went over to his neighbor's house to see if the set was working and found him listening intently. The deaf man rose from the set, took his friend by the hands, and with tears streaming from his eyes, said, "Old pal, you don't know what you have done for me. For the first time in 20 years I have been able to hear a sermon. I have attended church three times today by radio."

There is increasing realization of the possibilities of radio, not only for persons whose hearing is too defective to enable them to hear sermons and public addresses, but also for persons who, from ill health, or other cause, are not able to go into the crowds of public places to hear sermons, lectures, addresses, concerts, etc. With a single home-made set, all of these treasures of entertainment and education are brought to their own library. No better example of this has been afforded the country than the experience of former President Woodrow Wilson, who, while an invalid during the last years of his life, spent hours of every day listening to the radio and thereby keeping in close touch with the world in which he had formerly been so active.

THE MODERN TIE THAT BINDS

The parents of this generation have the motor car to thank for happiness fathers and mothers of bygone days seldom enjoyed.

If we are better able to keep our children within the family circle even after they have reached young manhood and young womanhood, it is because in the automobile we can better provide them with an alluring and compelling family interest.

Get the family's feeling on the subject. If a new car seems far in the future, ask them if a good car that has seen some service would be acceptable now. See how eager and willing each member of the family group will be to voice an affirmative.

When that's decided, turn to the Post-Dispatch's Classified "Automobiles" columns and go over the great variety of makes and models for sale there. Read the values offered here until you find what you want. You are sure to find it soon —and to your immense satisfaction and your family's delight.

Zinc and Copper Banish Rheumatism

Remarkable New Discovery Proving Boon to Thousands

Application for patent covering what is considered to be the most unique discovery of its kind has just been made by the Eureka Manufacturing Co., 306 Jefferson Av., Mempais, Tenn. After years of experiment they discovered that an especially constructed, chemically treated set of heel plates, one zinc and one copper, placed in the shoes of the sufferer will, by a scientific process, quickly rid the wearer of rheumatic pain, sciatica and stiff joints, as well as tone up the system in general. Experiments in hundreds of cases have proved this discovery to be a boon to all sufferers of the above ailments, especially as it eliminates the use of medicine which, in many instances, proves to be of only temporary value. They are anxious to prove their statements by sending any sufferer of rheumatism a special liberal trial offer. Write them today.

ASKS THAT NAME BE DROPPED AS OFFICER OF 'CONSTABULARY'

E. J. Henning, Assistant Secretary of Labor, Unaware of Purposes of the Organization.

E. J. Henning, Assistant Secretary of Labor, whose name appears among 40 "vice-presidents" on the letterhead of the Illinois "Department of Constabulary," has announced his ignorance of the organization's purposes, as have other "vice-presidents" questioned by the Post-Dispatch.

"Some years ago," he writes from Washington, "a friend introduced me to a Mr. Howe and asked me to permit the use of my name as a vice-president of the State Constabulary. Because of the representations of my friend I did so. Recent developments seem to have brought about a strange angle, and I am asking the withdrawal of my name in connection with the organization."

The "constabulary" was discovered in East St. Louis about two weeks ago. Organized under an anti-horse thief law in 1887 which permitted its members to carry revolvers, it developed that most of its 100 East St. Louis members were Ku Klux Klansmen. Officials of the klan and the "constabulary" deny it is a klan organization, but three alleged klansmen arrested with revolvers and "permits" issued by a justice of the peace are awaiting trial on "gun-toting" charges.

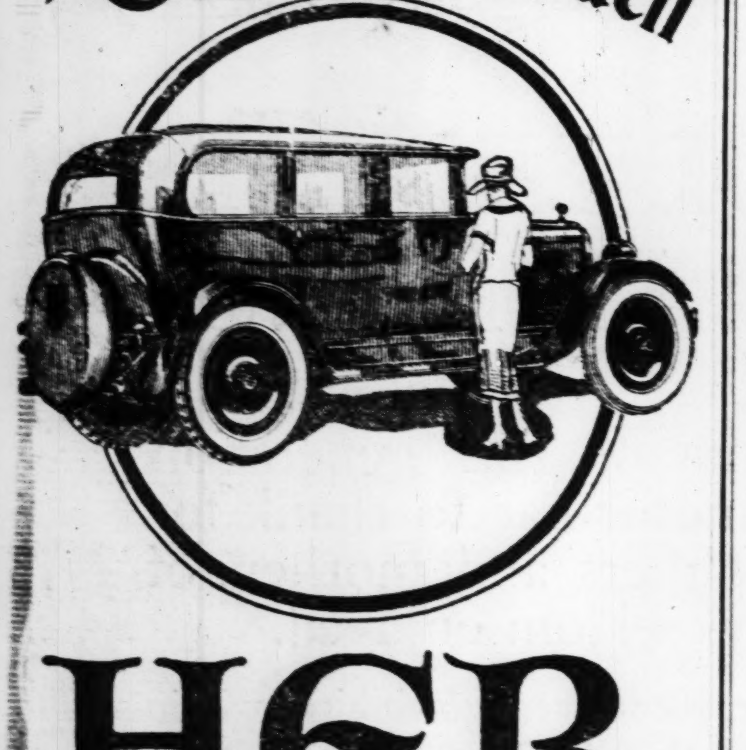
$440,000 SAVED TO CITY YEARLY BY SALVAGE PLANT

Copyright, [illegible] Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, England, March 18.—This city is now recovering products from its refuse heaps every year worth $180,000. A few years ago the city built a salvage plant at a cost of $2,000,000. This will be paid for in a few years, after which the profits will be used for the reduction of the city debt, says a report of the committee responsible for the building of the plant. The city also saves $260,000 annually which it formerly cost to dispose of the refuse.

Birmingham has a population of 919,438. The salvage plant last year produced 25 tons of pure tin, 5000 tons of fat, and several boatloads of fertilizer. Food for pigs and poultry and oil products for candle and soap making also were sold, and the clinkers and stone were used for repairing roads.

The English Coach



HER

Auburn built the new English Coach for her.

It is her car—a totally new type—a real sedan.

A graceful stream-line closed car, with soft flowing custom built curves instead of the ordinary harsh angles.

Flared sides, top, back—even the windows and sun visor are curved. A high European waistline adds the final touch to the smartest thing in sedan bodies ever built.

She will like its style—and the touch of its wheel. Greater strength with less weight in its arched contours give it open car behavior.

Balloon tires, of course. Five of them. A completely appointed car, fully equipt at the factory with every necessary extra—but there are no extras on the price. She will like the English Coach as soon as she sees it—and so will you.

Many Members of St. Louis Society Away From Home

Some Traveling in Europe but Family Parties in This Country Are the Chief Activities Now.

THE few weeks preceding the first warm days of spring find a number of St. Louisans away. For the most part they are members of family parties gathered in other parts of this country although news still reaches here from a few of the European travelers almost at the end of their voyages.

Mrs. Alvin B. Goodbar of 3953 Westminster place, will depart April 12 for Cincinnati to visit her sister, Mrs. Whitaker, and to spend a reunion of the Joy family. Mrs. Goodbar and her three brothers will be there a week. She will then go to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Schoepf, formerly Miss Virginia Goodbar, for a week's visit.

Mrs. Kennett F. Burns of Washington boulevard is in New York, where her son, who is at school in Middlesex, Mass., will join her for the spring vacation. Mrs. Burns will be away two weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Embree Pendleton of Clayton and her two children will depart for Temple, Tex., this week to visit Mr. Pendleton's mother, Mrs. George C. Pendleton. Mr. Pendleton will return immediately and his family will remain a month. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holmes of 46 Portland place and their young daughter, Miss Caro, are on their way West, where they will be with Mrs. Holmes' mother, Mrs. [illegible], in Chico, Cal., for a month. Mrs. [illegible] Williams has gone to New York to

Parties for Visitors Keep Up Semblance Of Social Gayety

Miss Jane Parsons, Mrs. W. T. Ravenscroft and Mrs. Albert T. Perkins Among Hostesses at Informal Affairs.

THE most pertinent fact concerning society just now is the number of visitors who continue to come and go. Their presence entails informal entertaining befitting the penitential period, and keeps up at least a semblance of social gaieties.

Miss Jane Parsons, daughter of Mrs. John B. Denvir Jr., will have guests on two occasions during the present month. Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Fowler of Los Angeles, her cousins, will arrive for a few days, en route to New York, and will be feted informally during their visit, while later in the month Miss Peggy Ewing of Baltimore, a former classmate of Miss Parson's at Bryn Mawr, will come for a longer stay. Miss Ewing is popular in Baltimore and made her debut there two years ago. Mrs. W. T. Ravenscroft of the St. Regis apartments is entertaining an interesting visitor in Mrs. Stephen Ionides of Denver. Tomorrow afternoon Mrs. Albert T. Perkins of Argyle place will give a luncheon for her and tomorrow night Mrs. Ravenscroft will entertain her at dinner.

Mrs. William Scarlett of Columbus, O., has been visiting her son, Dean William Scarlett, of Christ Church Cathedral this week. She will depart tonight for her home. Dean Scarlett is now occupying an apartment in the Worthington, on Waterman avenue.

A visitor whose arrival has been anticipated with interest is that of Miss Marie De Assern, daughter of Countess Cecile Wasilowska of New York. She is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lawrence Parker, the parents of her fiance, King Parker, in Washington terrace. With her came Mr. and Mrs. Parker's daughter, Mrs. William Scott Sneed of Montclair, N. J., and her twin sons.

Many of the out-of-town guests are daughters of St. Louisans, prominent in society elsewhere, who are renewing home ties. Among them are Mrs. Henry Putnam of New York, who, with her small daughter, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nagel; Mrs. Henry Fenimore Cooper of Boston, formerly Miss Kitty Guy, daughter of William Evans Guy of Portland place; Mrs. Audenried Whittemore, formerly Miss Catherine Case, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. Case of Pershing avenue; Mrs. John Guthrie Hopkins of Greenwood, Va., who is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peyton Skipwith; Mrs. Frederick Rice and Mrs. Charles Jenney of Boston, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Morrison, and Mrs. George Bemis of Kansas City, visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fairfax Funston. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Cooper will be honoree at a luncheon given by Mrs. Elzey M. Roberts, and old friends are also honoring the other young women.

Mrs. W. S. Keller of Los Angeles and Mrs. E. W. Bell of New York will come to St. Louis from their homes at opposite ends of the continent the last of the month to be the guests of their sister, Mrs. Ralph L. Thompson, of McPherson avenue, and will remain a month. Another visitor is Mrs. Robert H. White of Boston, until recently of St. Louis. Her daughter, Mrs. Jerome Schotten, is entertaining her, and she, with Mrs. White's friends, are making her visit an enjoyable one. Mrs. W. N. Bemis will give a luncheon tomorrow; Mrs. Raymond Mancha a tea Tuesday afternoon, and Mrs. C. J. Miller a bridge party Thursday.

The Easter season will bring Miss Eleanor Eaton of Yonkers, N. Y., to visit Miss Mary Scudder Bond of Vandeventer place. Miss Bond is now Miss Eaton's guest, and will accompany her to St. Louis. The young women were classmates at Miss Bennett's School. In May, Mrs. James Frederick Brown of Denver, Colo., and her four children, who have spent the winter in Miami, will visit Mrs. Brown's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Ravenscroft of the St. Regis apartments en route to their home. They will be at the Forest Park Hotel. Mrs. Ned Caulkins of Detroit is being much feted as the guest of Mrs. Carrington. Mr. and Mrs. John Brodhead gave a small dinner for her an evening or two ago, Mrs. H. H. Hopkins gave a tea, and Mrs. Ben-

Miss Myra Delano's Is One of Week's Notable Weddings

Simplicity, in Keeping With Lent, Marks Event at Christ Church Cathedral — Few Guests Besides Members of Family Present.

A QUIET wedding of interest to society was that of Miss Myra Delano, daughter of Mrs. Rufus J. Delano of "Covelly Farms," Eureka, Mo., and Clarence Edwards Vinnedge of Tampa, Fla., which was solemnized last Monday afternoon at Christ Church Cathedral. Because of Lent, arrangements were simple. There were few guests, besides the bride's family, and those were invited informally by telephone. The couple dispensed with attendants. The bride was accompanied to the altar by her brother, who gave her away, and Canon Gordon M. Reese performed the ceremony at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Vinnedge wore a tan gown, with hat and shoes to match, and a tan coat. Her corsage was fashioned of orchids and valley lillies. Mr. and Mrs. Vinnedge departed on a 4 o'clock train for their honeymoon trip, and will make their home in Tampa.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and an Eastern finishing school, and the bridegroom is an alumnus of the University of Wisconsin. Mrs. J. Francis Linthicum of Cleveland, formerly Miss Eleanor Delano, was unable to be present at the ceremony.

A group of St. Louis artists, including Caroline Risque, Nancy Coonsman Hahn, Adele Schulenberg, Sheila Burlingame, Victor Holm, Robert Bringhurst and Joseph Horchert, have sent out cards for a tea this afternoon, which will open an exhibit of sculpture and batik to continue until April 30. The patrons and patronesses are Mmes. Oscar Johnson, Claude Kennerley, Edgar Rombauer, William V. Schevill, F. R. Clarke, Paul Janis, Clement Ross Duncan Meier, Irr Stevens, Charles Nagel, Walter Fischel, John Slaughter, O. T. McLane, Philo S. Stevenson and Clark McAdams, Ernest Stix, Misses Mary Powell, Mary McCall and Margaretta Brown, and Messrs. Edmund Wuerpel, Hugo Koehler, William Booth Papin and Tom Fry.

jamin Chapman Jr., a luncheon. Mrs. George A. Shives of Cincinnati and Mrs. Felix H. Hunike of Elizabeth, N. J., are visiting Mrs. J. A. Lewis of the Kingsbury apartments.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. West, of 11 Westmoreland place, and their daughter, Miss Frances, are expected home this week after an extended visit in the South. They have been at Camden, S. C., and are now visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hakes of Mount Vernon, Ia., have toured home after a visit to Mrs. Hakes' brother, Lorenzo D. Woods, and the Misses Lunday, 4510 Page avenue.

visit her sister, Mrs. Bessie P. Brueggeman. She will sail April 19 for Europe, accompanied by Mrs. Roger Generelly of Waterman avenue.

Word has reached here of the travels of Miss Lenore Cahill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Cahill, of 4475 Lindell boulevard, who has been in Europe since the latter part of last summer, with her aunt, Mrs. William P. Burke. They are now in Italy, and will depart soon for Paris. Miss Cahill's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sullivan, of Providence, R. I., with their four children, will sail May 25 to be with her for the summer. Misses Helen and Mildred Petring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Petring of Washington terrace, are in St. Moritz, Switzerland, according to letters received by St. Louis friends. They will soon go to Paris for a week and will return late in May. Miss Berkeley Sloan is chaperoning the group, which includes Misses Marie Clarkson and Catherine Edgar.

Miss Zoe Schotten of the Buckingham Hotel has returned to Paris, France, to join Saunders Foster and his daughter, Miss May, after a visit to her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome J. Schotten of West Pine boulevard.

Kent G. Colwell, son of Mrs. Breckinridge Jones of 45 Portland place, has gone to New York, whence he will sail in a few days for his home in London. He has been recuperating after a recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Wendling of 4509 Pershing avenue and and Mrs. Brown-O'Fallon will attend a house party to be given by Sam Stone and Craig Culbertson of Louisville the week of the Derby.

Mrs. Stanley Stoner of Westminster place will sail in May for Europe to join her daughter, Miss Marian Stoner, who has been in Miss Nixon's School in Florence all winter.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mepham of Westminster place and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bray have postponed their Eorupean trip for which they were to have sailed this week, until late in the month because of the illnesse of Mrs. Bray. Miss Beatrice Thomas will accompany them.

Mr. and Mrs. Leicester Faust have opened their country home, "Swastika Farm," on the Olive Street road, and will remain there until they depart for a summer trip. Since their return from Pasadena, Mr. and Mrs. Faust have been with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Plant.

Guests at the mah jongg dinner party to be given Tuesday night by Mr. and Mrs. David N. Burruss Jr of Belt avenue will be Messrs. and Mmes. Edwin S. Elder, Louis Dennig, Walter Muckerman, Marquis Merrell, Jerome Kircher, Leonard MacCarthy, and Misses Jane Rule, Jane Nugent, Carolyn Matthews, Alice Clark, Joseph Hafner, Truman Walker, Fred Krug, Edward Grant and Richard Bull. The affair will take place at the home of Mrs. Burruss' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl F. G. Meyer, 5603 Clemens avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Hoblitzelle, who have been making their home at the residence of Mrs. George K. Hoblitzelle during the latter's absence in Europe, are expected home today from a cruise to Bermuda.

Mr. and Mrs. Garneau Weld, will sail April 12 for home, after a honeymoon trip in France. Their visit has been unusually delightful, for Mr. Weld has spent several years abroad and his friends have given many parties for them. They will be in New York a few days before returning to St. Louis. Mrs. Weld was Miss Etta Randolph, sister of Mrs. Harry Potter of 7 Kingsbury place.

Mrs. Henry C. Garneau of the St. Regis apartments has returned from a visit to her sister, Mrs. Van Lear Wills, in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. William C. Stribling of the St. Regis apartments is expected home from Pasadena, Cal., April 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lammert of Lindell boulevard and their daughter, Miss Mary Lammert, have returned from Pass Christian, Miss.

Mrs. Lewis Hager, who has been visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Hager, 27 Beacon avenue, Ferguson, for three months, has returned to her home in Spencerport, N. Y.

Mrs. Lon Sanders of 208 Oakwood avenue, Webster Park, will go to Washington this week to attend the Continental Congress. Mrs. Sanders will represent the Jefferson Chapter, D. A. R.

Miss Rose Volland, who returned last week from a Mediterranean cruise, gave a tea yesterday afternoon in her studio. On her trip Miss Volland visited Panama, Hawaii, Java, India, the Holy Land and the European countries. While in Naples she met Misses Helen and Mildred Petring, who are touring with friends.

The season at the winter resorts is practically over and St. Louisans are drifting homeward to the typical dullness of the pre-Easter season. Mr. and Mrs. George Fox Steedman, of 24 Westmoreland place, and Miss Katherine, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Wallace, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morrill have left the St. Louis colony at Hot Springs, W. Va., and returned home. Miss Medora Steedman, who spent the spring vacation with her parents, returned to the Foxcroft School in Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Nims of 56 Portland place gave a small dinner party Thursday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Neill A. McMillan, who recently returned from Europe.

The College Club will meet Tuesday, April 8, at 3:30 o'clock, when Gustavus Tuckerman will give a reading of Eugene O'Neill's play, "All God's Chilluns Got Wings." Mrs. W. M. C. Bryan, the hostess, will be assisted by Mrs. Charles E. Witter, Miss Helen Woods and Mrs. W. W. Burden. The Board of Managers will meet Thursday, April 10. Friday, April 11, will be College Club day for tea in the Hotel Chase lounge. A luncheon, followed by bridge and mah jongg, will be given at the clubhouse at 1 o'clock, Saturday, April 12. Reservations must be made with Mrs. Edgar J. Swift, 5660 Cates avenue, Forest 5056W, before 6 p. m., Thursday, April 10.

The Kirkwood Study Hour Club met Wednesday with Mrs. A. B. Boyer as hostess. Mrs. W. J. Van Nice reported attending a meeting where applied education was discussed, and Mrs. O. E. Turner a literature and reciprocity meeting. Mrs. Turner entertained the club with readings of her own composition. The following officers were re-elected for the coming year: Mrs. George Baumhoff, president; Mrs. L. P. Wingert, vice president; Mrs. R. B. Williamson, recording secretary; Mrs. W. C. Lindwall, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. K. Lange, treasurer, and Mrs. J. E. Brock, auditor. The club voted to furnish a tree for the Kirkwood High School lawn.

The Tuesday Literary Club met April 1. Reports of officers and committee heads were given concerning work of the past year. Mrs. Alice Lavelle MacDonald gave the third act of "The Melting Pot." The result of the election is as follows: Mrs. William H. Badger, second vice president; Mrs. Emile Paillau, recording secretary; Mrs. J. H. Castleman, treasurer, and Mmes. W. L. Nelson, P. A. Griswold and J. C. Falk, directors. At the next meeting, April 15, Prof. Bates of Washington University, will talk on "International Relations From an Economic Viewpoint."

The Wanderers held their last meeting at the home of Mrs. W. F. Gould. Quotations from the Bible were given in response to roll call. Mrs. W. B. Upton read a paper on "The Bible: Its Origin, Significance and Abiding Worth," and Mrs. J. W. Miller one on "Jacob's Vision." The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. W. Miller, 758 Clara avenue, Wednesday.

The Bay View Reading Club will meet at the home of Mrs. W. W. Milne, 6909 Kingsbury boulevard, tomorrow. Annual election will be held and reports read by the committees. Mrs. O. E. Erisman will read a paper, "The Proposed Twentieth Amendment" which was prepared by Miss Aylesworth. The discusion will be led by Mrs. J. I. Chappell.

A tea was given last week by Miss Catherine Taylor of Castleman avenue in honor of Miss Stella Rose Rice, who will be married Easter Monday to Virgil Corrigan. The guests included 26 of Miss Rice's close friends.

Mrs. Alga Andres Lanson will depart soon for New Orleans, La.

PARTIES, LUNCHEONS, RECEPTIONS AND TEAS

The Kirkwood Country Club will open its roof garden dining room for the season Saturday evening with an informal dance and buffet supper.

About 200 guests attended a reception given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Fred A. Hatch of Lenox place, Mrs. Donald MacDonald of Lindell boulevard, and Mrs. Merritt H. Marshall Jr., at the home of the latter, 5297 Washington boulevard. The affair was in honor of Mrs. J. W. McDonald, wife of Judge McDonald of the Appellate Court of Boston. Mrs. McDonald has been much entertained at informal parties and at larger club affairs during her stay here. During the afternoon those assisting the hostesses to pour and serve were: Mrs. Harry Wagoner, Mrs. W. J. Parker of Webster Groves, Mrs. Homer Little of East St. Louis, Mrs. Joe Davis, Mrs. Paul Guerard and Mrs. F. E. A. Curlee.

A program of music and readings was furnished.

President and Mrs. John L. Roemer of Lindenwood College, gave a white-and-gold luncheon at 12:30 o'clock yesterday (Saturday), at the Missouri Athletic Association, with the following students as guests: Misses Eugenie Andrus, Adaline Ayers, Priscilla Calder, Gladys Campbell, Mildred Carpenter, Alba Chapman, Margaret Ferguson, Florence Griffith, Allene Guthrie, Esther Hund, Ruth Kern, Roma Key, Isabel McMenamy, Helene Millsap, Eleanor Moehlenkamp, Katherine Moore, Keo Richards, Janet Robinson, Oreen Ruedi, Carolyn Sheetz, Ruth Steedman, Gladys Sullivan, Katherine Tinsman, Helen Towles, Kathryn Weise, Page Wright, Catherine Yount, Martha Whaley and Geraldine Wills. These girls are all seniors, who will graduate next month. Dr. Roemer made an address, looking forward to the wearing of caps and gowns, a few weeks hence, and also to Lindenwood's centennial which will occur in May, 1927.

Mrs. Lenore C. Cox of 5130 Enright, before departing on her extended vacation through California, entertained on Friday evening with a dinner and theater party. The following guests attended: Misses Elizabeth Sullivan, Anne Hogan, Mary Myer, Margaret McDowell, Bertha Ernst and Helen O'Toole, Nellie Green and Messrs. J. C. O'Donnell, J. Duffy, R. McDonald, William Garmon, E. Sudhoff and T. Brady.

There will be an Easter sale at the Catherine Springer Home April 9, beginning at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. Fancy articles, aprons, rag rugs, Eastern cards and home-made candies and cakes may be purchased. The culinary booth will be in charge of the Bay View Club. Luncheon will be served at noon, and there will be a program of music and readings in the evening.

A farewell dinner dance and entertainment was given by Miss Millie Gottschalk of 2703A Wyoming street in honor of Mrs. Olga Andres Lanson of 3903A Wyoming street. Tuesday at the American Annex Hotel. The guests were: Drs J. C. Rotter, Dr. H. Kinner, Mmes. T. Smith, Addie McGinnes, J. C. Rotter, Misses Alma Dubar, Helen Hedkamp, Bernadine Blavott, Madline Jennings, Gussie Huber, E. Hahn; Messrs. A 1900 Cataract Electric Washer

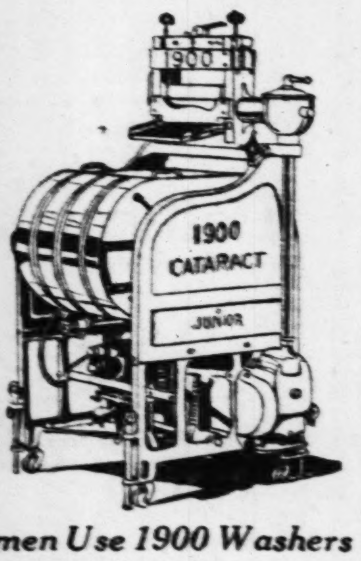
Six-Sheet Capacity

$130



In Choosing a Washing Machine

You Demand a Guarantee

—that it will outlast the years.

—that it will operate easily, efficiently and at a small cost.

Over a Million Women Use 1900 Washers

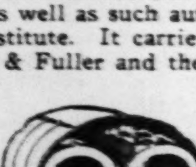
Why? Here Are Some of the Reasons

There is nothing complicated—nothing to wear out—nothing to lift—no machinery inside the tub—sturdily built—simple and inexpensive to operate.

It Has Stood the Test of Time

Built by a reliable manufacturer, 26 years in business, it is endorsed by national and state, as well as domestic science experts, as well as such authorities as the Good Housekeeping Institute. It carries the double guarantee of Stix, Baer & Fuller and the 1900 Cataract Company.

Cataraction



The Figure-8 Movement

—sends the soapy water streaming through the clothes with the maximum amount of pressure in the minimum amount of time. The 1900 Cataract Washer is the only Washer with this double oscillating movement.

The Tuxedo Literary Club met April 1 at the home of Mrs. L. C. Pemberton, 6015 Horton place. Election of officers took place with the following results: Mrs. C. C. Chapin, president; Mrs. F. C. Petty, first vice president; Mrs. R. H. King, second vice president; Mrs. E. Todd, secretary; Mrs. L. C. Pemberton, treasurer, and Mrs. S. Mitchell, auditor. The Friendly Aid Club, St. Louis County, met at the home of the president, Mrs. B. W. Whaley, 353 South Gore avenue, Webster Groves, Tuesday.

AMONG THE WEDDINGS OF THE WEEK

The wedding of Charlott Louise Braznell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Braznell of Buffalo, N. Y., and William Conrad Mundt, of Chicago, took place Friday evening at the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Dr. Henry Forsythe officiating. The bride wore a gown of white satin made on simple lines and embroidered with sequins and seed pearls. Her attendant, Miss Auby Hindball, wore a pink moire dress embroidered in sequins and seed pearls. Richard Douglass Wassall, the bride's cousin, was ring bearer; Raymond Wassall, best man and Warren and Jack Wassall and Edward and Harlow Braznell ushers. Cliff Wassal and Rolla Coughlin played the violin and piano. The bride is a graduate of St. Luke's training school for nurses and the bridegroom a graduate of Armour Institute of Chicago. Her gift to her bridesmaid was a necklace and Mr. Mundt presented his best man with a bill folder and his groomsmen with watch chains. A reception was held at the home of the brides' aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Wassall, 6426 Lloyd avenue, after which the couple departed for Chicago on their honeymoon. They will be at home there May 1.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Braznell of Buffalo, E. E. Braznell Jr. of Illinois University, Mr. and Mrs. Mundt of Fairburg, Ill., and Miss L. Birchel of Pontiac, Ill.

The marrigae of Miss Beatrice Jennings, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. Dwight Jennings, of 4101 Washington boulevard, and Chester W. Kotsrean, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Kotsrean, of 5171 McPherson avenue, took place yesterday morning at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Tadlock, in the presence of the families and relatives. A wedding breakfast followed. Miss Dorothy Jennings was her sister's only attendant, and William Kotsrean was his brother's best man. The bride wore Alice blue georgette, and carried pink roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Jennings wore rose colored georgette, trimmed with ecru lace. Mr. and Mrs. Kotsrean are both graduates of Washington University.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Baskind of 1206 Hamilton avenue announce the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Pauline, to Abe Lew Kaplan, son of the Rev. and Mrs. S. H. Kaplan, of Decatur, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Max F. Ruler of Washington boulevard have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Anna Marie Ruler, to Charles Frederick Mayer, of Kansas City, Mo., April 1.

The April meeting of the Phi Theta Club was held April 1 at the home of Miss Viola Traxler, 7500 South Grand boulevard. Those present were Misses Margaret Edscorn, Morella Madison, Irene Shaw and Celeste Simon.

Mrs. A. B. King of 745 Interdrive avenue was hostess for The Book Club, on March 31. The subject for the afternoon was "Science and Our Every Day Life." There were four papers: "Advances," by Mrs. H. C. Grote; "Expansion," by Mrs. G. O. Stone; "Inventions," by Miss N. A. Holman; and "Production and Consumption of Food Stuff," by Mrs. O. J. Krummenacher.

The Cultus Club, M. F. W. C., met with Mrs. John Maney Thursday. Members responded to roll call with current events. After reports from various committees, Miss Nellie Houghton read a skillfully written paper on "The Origin of Modern Languages." The hostess for the next meeting will be Mrs. Warren Bruce, 1722 Wagoner place.

The April meeting of the Literary Alumnae will be held next Saturday at the home of Miss Fern Bartlett, 1415 Monclair avenue. This is to be the business meeting of the year. New officers will be elected and the program for the coming year discussed.

LOCAL CLUBS STILL ACTIVE AS SPRING ADVANCES

The executive board of the Wednesday Club will meet in an all-day session on Monday, April 7. Mrs. W. C. Rumsey, first vice president, will preside.

The Political Study Class will meet on Tuesday, April 8, at 10:30 a. m. The leaders are Mrs. James C. Jones and Mrs. John E. Ritchey. The subject for discussion will be "Who are St. Louis delegates elected to Democratic State Convention to be held in Springfield, Mo., April 15? How are contests settled?"

The Wednesday Club will present a special program on Wednesday, April 9, at 3 o'clock. The president, Mrs. E. R. Rombauer, will preside. Syud Hossain of India will speak on "Eastern and Western Ideals: A Contrast and a Comparison." Hossain comes to this country as an orator with an international reputation and is a foremost authority on the political, economic and cultural relations between the East and the West. In 1920 he was one of the special delegates elected with the consent of the Viceroy of India, by the people of India, to present the Indian case at the Near Eastern Peace Settlement and attend the Washington Conference for Limitation of Armaments as press representative for India. As his first name indicates, he is a lineal descendant of Mohammed, and his family were among the premier nobility of India.

The Theta Chapter of the Delphian Society, Mrs. Flint Garrison, president, presiding, met at the Cabanne Branch Library, April 2. Mrs. Frank L. Davis led an informal discussion of text reports on the social life of Egypt; Mrs. J. T. Clabaugh spoke on the literature of that country; "Religion and Art of Egypt" was discussed, with Mrs. Byron Moser leading; text reports were given by Mmes. J. M. Shaw, S. I. Hopkins, H. H. McCully, Milton Sontheimer, S. T. Bassett and A. T. Pennington. Present-day poetry was discussed by Mrs. Dwight Currie. Mrs. T. W. Hall spoke of the achievements of science in 1923 and Mrs. E. J. Lumpkin reviewed the work of Maynard Dixon, artist.

The Harmony Literary Club held its regular meeting Friday, March 28, at the Busy Bee tea room. Mrs. M. S. Keator, hostess. Committee reports were as follows: Mrs. L. Cook, Ways and Means; Mrs. Harry Bennett, Citizenship; Literature and Reciprocity, Mrs. C. F. Sternberg; Law Enforcement, Mrs. George Malone. Mrs. L. Cook will represent the club at the meeting

A Woman Is as Old as the Line of Her Throat

A great many women who looked old and careworn are being made attractive and good to look at.

The contour of the face, the shape of neck, these make beauty.

Lift up the sag and wrinkles, tighten the skin around the neck, and you will look years younger. Wonderful Plastic Surgery does this. It is woman's best friend. It is painless, quick, lasting. Write for booklet.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads—that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

of the "Committee of 100" Monday. On the Advisory Board of the new clubhouse, Mrs. G. Z. Davis was appointed at the club's mass meeting. Mrs. M. S. Keator will represent the club, as delegate, at the National Convention at Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. J. T. Emmett, alternate. The main feature of the afternoon's program was the subject "China," under the leadership of Mrs. F. J. Sternberg, who gave a sketch of reprints from the Pekin Gazette on the Forbidden City, its customs, etiquette of the royal family, and the points of interest within the seven walls. Mrs. W. C. Markham will be the next hostess, entertaining April 11 at a 1 o'clock luncheon at her home, 3940 Russell avenue.

The Phi Delphian Chapter held its regular meeting Wednesday, at 2 p. m., at the Cabanne Branch Library, Mrs. H. W. Dawson, president, in the chair. Mrs. James Boyd conducted a most interesting program on "Greek Mythology," and the following ladies assisted: "The Titans and the Giants," Mrs. C. H. La Rue; "Zeus and Hera," Mrs. James L. Stuart; "Athena," Mrs. L. L. Beaver; "Apollo and Artemis," Mrs. H. W. Dawson; "Ares and Hephaestus," Mrs. Kumpf; "Aphrodite, Cupid and Hermes," Mrs. Marion G. Holt. Mrs. Ella E. Stickney was appointed delegate-at-large, and Mrs. O. W. Polster, treasurer.

The Alpha Delphian Chapter held its regular semimonthly meeting in the clubroom of Cabanne Branch Library, Tuesday, March 25, Mrs. W. H. Hudson, president, in the chair. Mrs. Catherine Brooks conducted the study of the day, which was "French Drama of the Seventeenth Century: Moliere, the First of the Moderns," and "Modern French Drama." Mrs. Roscoe Bridges gave "The Bourgeois Gentleman;" Mrs. B. A. Thompson, "The Amenities of Authors;" Mrs. W. H. Hudson, "Tartuffe." Modern French dramatists were discussed by Mrs. Evelyn Herrick and Mrs. Eugene Pleitsch. Responses were given by Mrs. Leone C. Jones, who gave a short history of wallpaper; Mrs. Hoffman, a short account of Joseph Schildkraut; Mrs. G. B. Lindsay, "The British Commonwealth of Nations."

St. Louis Chapter, D. A. R., met March 28, at the Jefferson Memorial, Mrs. Shelby H. Curlee, regent, presiding. Mrs. A. V. L. Brokaw urged co-operation in restoring and preserving historic sites and landmarks, among others the Grant-Dent home at Fourth and Cerre streets, and Arrow Rock Tavern, on the Missouri River, near Marshall. The latter has been purchased by the State and turned over to Missouri D. A. R. to restore and refurnish. This chapter has undertaken to supply floor coverings of the period, and rag-sewing parties are being held among its members. Such a party was given by Mrs. Walter Fabricius, at 3655 Botanical avenue, March 13 and by Mrs. Cooper S. Hammond, at 6007 Pershing avenue, March 21. Suitable rags and directions may be obtained from Mrs. John N. Booth, mother regent of the chapter, 4012 Delmar boulevard. An historic tea-service, of silver plate, was presented to the chapter in behalf of an anonymous members. It formerly was the property of the Calvert family of Maryland.

The remainder of the session was devoted to a "program of Americanization," under charge of Mrs. J. D. Marshall. An address was given by Harry ter Braak, assisted by a series of pictures shown by Mr. B. B. Maticha. Selections from the Bohemian opera "Hubicka" were sung by Miss Polepil, in costume, accompanied by Miss Sireka. Tea was then served.

Out-of-town guests at the meeting were: Mrs. Walter Eversman of Toledo, O.; Mrs. J. D. Phelps, Washington, D. C. Livingston, Manor Chapter; Mrs. J. W. McDonald, prominent club woman of Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Herbert Durand, Anne Hutchinson Chapter, Bronxville, N. Y., former member St. Louis Chapter; Mrs. Murray E. Foristell, regent of Sarah Bryan Chinn Chapter, Wentzville, Mo.; Miss Myrtle Miller of Keytsville, Mo.

An interesting meeting of the Literature and Reciprocity Committee, M. F. W. C., was held in the Vandervoort Auditorium Friday, with Mrs. Francis M. Allen presiding. Dr. Bostwick was present to distribute new books for the members of the committee to read and assist the library in its arduous task of expurgation. The committee indorsed a motion made by Mrs. Louise Marsh, of the Webster Groves Peace Council, for the observance of International Good Will Day, May 18. A program was then presented by two talented members of the committee, Mrs. J. K. Sterling and Mrs. Otis Turner, both of Kirkwood. Mrs. Sterling gave a beautiful interpretation of her one-act play entitled "Credo." The play was inspired by the sufferings of the Christians in Turkey.

KIBEL · SCHERMAN · DE MARINIS · BRUCK-WEIS · RAWAK · WARSHAUER · ACE-HIGH · AND FROM OUR OWN STUDIO-WORKROOM

Created of finest Italian Milan, soft lustrous crepe, intricate lace designs, beautiful Swiss hairbraid, glistening ribbon and gorgeous fabric and straw combinations.

THOUGHTS of Easter and Millinery are invariably synonymous. What woman who thinks of that day of days on the calendar of fashion does not picture herself in a Hat of indescribable beauty and chic? Here is an opportunity to realize such a mind-picture—here is her chance to express personal individuality in style—here is an occasion almost beyond perception. Model Hats from the source of millinery authority, from makers distinguished in their chosen art. Hats themselves the essence of originality and beauty, the finest of the Easter gathering. Only for this event are we able to offer such wonderful Hats at such a price.

—that explored the world for their inspiration.

True enough, we hark back to ancient China for the atmosphere of the season—the lacquer reds, the Chinese jades, the imperial golds and blues. But, ah then, Paris takes a hand with its modulations. What a drab old world it would be if we had no color, no sunshine, no Spring! We might well say we can express our personality in color. The green of hope and youth and life; the spiritual blues; the warm passionate reds. Then, too, our type calls for color, and this season's colors are so admirably the exponents of type.

THE BRUNETTE with luminous eyes can wear the lacquer reds, flame, apple green, cowboy lariat, Chinese red, Navajo, sunflower, narcissus, Cloisonne.

THE AUBURN haired beauty has dedicated to her the glorious golds: Mexico, cowboy, Yucatan, Peruvian brown, Navajo and sunflower.

THE TITIAN, or reddish blonde, must avoid the reddish brown in color and keep to the duller shades to enhance the gold in her hair. Fern, zinc, cowboy, lariat are recommended.

THE SILVER haired woman would be best in Cleopatra and Copen blue, wondrous shading of purple hues, cosmos, flame, fern.

THE BLONDE may wear any of the lovely pastel tints suited to her shadings and her eyes: Daphne, fleur de lis, cosmos, fern, Mexico, Ching, cowboy, lariat.

As to the Hats themselves, there's the Shantung, a new Chinese body; the Baronette, a brilliant Italian woven body; the Chinese Wenchow, the native coolie Hat; Panamas from Ecuador and Colombo in ingenious new weaves; Hinoki from Sumatra; the new French ribbed silk, gros de France taffeta; a knotted silk braid Hat of variegated colors; the heather body Hats in shades to match the sport woolens; dyed leghorns, very new, and Nacre clover-leaf crammed with colors. It's a feast to the eye, a delight to the soul—this palette of fashions! Crowning achievements!

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES OF MISSOURIANS IN THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Gen. John J. Pershing, General of the American armies, is back from France, where he has been writing the story of America's participation in the war. He has been welcomed with a series of entertainments.

He will be the guest of honor at the Army dance Monday, when the greater part of the officer personnel in the capital will turn out to greet him. The General will resume his residence in his beautiful apartment at 2029 Connecticut avenue, which has been leased during his absence to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Ryan of New York. His son, Warren Pershing, will come to Washington Monday from his school in Pennsylvania to spend his Easter vacation with his father.

This summer the General plans to take his son with him to Missouri to visit there his schoolboy haunts and homes. His sole surviving child, there is the closest of bonds between the lad and his distinguished father. It is remembered that during the war Warren Pershing was taken overseas as a Christmas surprise to his father, then on the front in France.

Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, one of the prominent winter members of the Missouri colony, entertained at dinner Thursday in compliment to Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the Chief Justice of the United States, who sailed from New York yesterday for Europe, where she will spend some time touring in Spain with her sister, Miss Maria Herron.

Miss Harriet Blair and Newell Blair of St. Louis are with their mother, Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, who is chairman of the Woman's Democratic National Committee. Miss Blair is a student at Goucher College and Newell Blair is a student of Philips Academy.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Leigh Palmer entertained at dinner last night in honor of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt. Among the guests were Senator and Mrs. Selden P. Spencer and the Assistant Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis.

Breckinrdige Long has gone to St. Louis for an indefinite stay. Mrs. Long has opened her Washington residence for the meetings of the Cancer Committee, which is sponsored by many of Washington's most prominent women.

Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, vice president general of the D. A. R., who is a Missourdian, will be at home informally to the members of the Missouri delegation to the D. A. R. Congress during its sessions here, April 11 to 19.

The American Minister to Sweden and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, who are coming to America on a leave of absence this spring, will come direct to Washington to inspect the work on their country home at Georgetown. After a short stay here they will go to St. Louis, which is their permanent home.

Representative and Mrs. Cleveland A. Newton entertained at dinner last night for a group of the officers of the Missouri State Society, of which Newton is president.

Representative Clarence Cannon, who represents Champ Clark's old district in the House of Representatives, has taken an apartment in Congress Hall, where he has been joined by Mrs. Cannon and his two daughters.

Mrs. Selden P. Spencer, wife of Senator Spencer, was one of the guests of honor at the annual banquet of the Business Women's Council, at the Church of the Covenant, last week. Senator and Mrs. Spencer entertained at dinner informally last week.

LOCAL CLUBS STILL ACTIVE AS SPRING ADVANCES

Mrs. Turner read a group of her poems, which were equally interesting.

The St. Louis Chapter, U. D. C., will meet tomorrow at 2 o'clock at the Fairmont Hotel, 4907 Maryland avenue. The hostesses will be Mmes. Edwin B. Sherzer, John C. Vaughan, W. N. McConklin and Frederick Vierling. Vocal solos will be given by Mrs. John E. Stoker, a group of readings by Mrs. Rutherford Cravens, and piano solos by Mrs. William H. Bronaugh and Miss Martha Ottofy. The meeting will be followed by a reception to the Confederate Veterans' Camp, 731, and their wives, with an automobile tour of the city. Mrs. L. M. Ottofy entertained the board of the chapter Thursday.

The Sisterhood of Temple Israel will meet Thursday, jointly with that of Temple Shaare Emeth, in the vetry rooms of the latter church, at 2 o'clock. An open meeting will be held in the temple at 3:20 o'clock. Dhan Gopal Nukeji will lecture on "Religion of the Future."

The Mothers' Circle of the Kennard School will meet Thursday at 1:30 o'clock. There will be several speakers. The picture show, dance and parcel post party given by the club recently was a financial success. C. Johnston entertained the guests with magic tricks.

BAR DAYLIGHT SAVING BY THE WESTERN UNION and Electric Railway Work- File Complaint With Pennsylvania Board.

RRISBURG, Pa., April 6.— of the adoption of daylight saving time by the Western Union Telegraph Co. in the Pittsburg district was asked in a complaint filed by John L. Nelson, Pittsburg, representing division No. 85, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, the Public Service Commission announced today.

The complaint alleged all clocks controlled by the company in the district are affected and claimed it was the announced decision of the company to set its clocks one hour in advance of the Eastern standard time on April 27 and to continue advanced time until September 28. It is the first complaint of this character to reach the commission.

DENTIST EXCLUDED BY LOCAL SOCIETY STATES GRIEVANCE

Dr. Julius L. Bischof, Back From Six Years' Professional Service in Army, Appeals to National Body

COMMITTEE VOTED HIM "UNETHICAL"

Alleged Offense, He Says, His Act in Mailing Pamphlets on Cases of Oral Surgery Observed by Him.

Failure of the St. Louis Dental Society to approve application for membership made by Dr. Julius L. Bischof, a specialty dentist, with offices in the Carleton building, has been followed by an appeal to the American Dental Association and by Bischof's resignation as editor for the St. Louis Chapter of the Xi Psi Phi Quarterly, a national publication distributed among dentists.

Bischof, a graduate of Washington University dental school, returned to St. Louis and opened offices, specializing in extractions, X-Ray and mouth surgery, following six years' service in the United States army, including service in the World War, about a year ago. Shortly thereafter he caused to be mailed out to members of the dental and medical profession a small pamphlet, detailing certain "Clinical Reports" of oral surgery observed by him, and inferentially announcing his opening of offices.

By this action Dr. Bischof incurred the enmity of the St. Louis Dental Society's "Committee on Ethics and Election," he contends and through failure to receive that committee's indorsement was disapproved of membership by a vote of 30 to 28 at a recent meeting.

Dr. Bischof States Case.

In resigning his editorship for the St. Louis chapter of Xi Psi Phi Quarterly, in the current number, Dr. Bischof, narrates the circumstances of his "ethical indiscretion," in part, as follows:

"About a year ago Dr. Bischof left the United States regular army, in which establishment he served nearly six consecutive years, two of which were spent in the A. E. F. He returned to St. Louis to engage in practice, the specialty of exodontia, radiography and oral surgery.

"By way of introduction to the profession upon his return, he mailed to the St. Louis Dental and medical practitioners a letter setting forth his specialty, also stating his six years' service and experience in Government hospitals. He also mailed to the profession two issues of 'Clinical Reports,' each citing two cases of systemic conditions as resultant from focal infections of teeth.

"About this time Bischof made application for membership in the St. Louis Dental Society. The application was indorsed by the president and one of the vice presidents. Nothing was heard further for several months. He then called the secretary of the society on the telephone and asked the reson for the delay. To this query he was informed that the committee on ethics had not yet made a report to the society. He then called one of the committee (who, by the way, is a specialist in the same line of work) and was informed by him as follows: 'You had better withdraw that application, for you can't pull that kind of stuff and get away with it.'

Construed as Unethical.

"Bischof then went to see the two other members of the committee (also specialists) and was greatly surprised to learn that they had placed the construction of 'unethical' on his 'Clinical Reports.' The latter two committeemen were very complaisant and seemed personally reluctant on subscribing negatively to what he had done."

The committee referred to by Dr. Bischof consisted of Dr. George Winters, Dr. H. C. Pollock and Dr. E. B. Owen.

To a Post-Dispatch reporter, Dr. Owen yesterday ascribed Bischof's action in making the matter public as "hasty" and "ill-tempered," adding that the application probably would have been considered more favorably at a later date, but that Dr. Bischof insisted upon its being called up.

Dr. Bischof, however, insisted that he was "fighting for a principle," and that in appealing to the national organization he did so without hope of gaining membership in the local organization, which has complete jurisdiction over its own membership. He charged that a clique of dental specialists was responsible for his failure to obtain membership in the St. Louis Dental Society.

Reclamation Charge Extension Favored.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The Senate bill, for the extension over a three-year period of reclamation charges on irrigated lands, was reported favorably today by the House Irrigation Committee. The measure was modified to provide for 5 instead of 6 per cent interest.

Tremendous Payroll Robbery
Headlines such as the above have become so commonplace that they cease to arouse our interest. Apathy is the insidious foe of good government as well as good health.
Headaches perhaps are such an ordinary happening to you that you merely take a pill or a powder and let it go at that.
Dig down and find out what CAUSES your headaches. Come to my office next time you have a headache and have your eyes tested. Hundreds of thousands of cases of sick and nervous headaches are caused by eyestrain.
For the past 20 years I have specialized in the relief and prevention of eyestrain headaches, and other annoying symptoms of defective vision by properly prescribed glasses. Thousands testify to the universal success of my service as well as my eminently reasonable charges.

3000 MAILMEN HERE HOPING FOR PAY BOOST

Postal Employes Solicitous About Fate of Bills Now Before Congress.

Three thousand postal employes in St. Louis are watching the progress, or lack of progress, of bills now pending before Congress which provide increases in salaries and pension annuities. From Postmaster Alt down to the newest substitute clerk, they're all in favor of the bills.

Leaders in the movement for the increases emphasize that they are not asking for gifts, but merely for adequate pay for efficient service for which extensive training, in many branches, is necessary. In St. Louis they have received indorsement from scores of organizations, including the Chamber of Commerce and trade unions. At a recent public mass meeting in the armory, 2000 persons went on record as favoring the increases.

Source of Opposition.

The chief opposition to the general increases is said to come from the Postmaster-General, who estimates the Kelly bill, for instance, will mean additional expenditures of $150,000,000 a year. Representative Kelly has placed the figure at $100,000,000, and suggested a readjustment of parcel-post charges as a means of increasing revenue to increase salaries. The bills will be passed by both House and Senate, postal employes believe, if they are ever reported out of committee, where they now are.

Many postal employes have reported they are unable to "make ends meet" on their salaries. The average salary is less than $2000, whereas investigation, in Boston, has shown a typical case where the expenditures of a postal employe, his wife and two children aggregated $2436 for the year. As the costs in Boston approximate those here, the result of the investigation, tabulated in the following table, also apply to St. Louis:

	Per month.	Per annum
Rent	$37.50	$450.00
Food	65.00	780.00
Clothing	30.00	360.00
Fuel and light	12.50	150.00
Car fare & lunches	15.00	180.00
Househ'd equipm't upkeep	8.50	102.00
Recreation	8.50	102.00
Insurance and savings	12.50	150.00
Doctor	2.50	30.00
Dentist	2.50	30.00
Papers, magazines, and incidentals	5.00	60.00
Laundry	2.50	30.00
Church	1.00	12.00
Totals	$203.00	$2,436.00

There are 1079 regular postoffice clerks and 806 carriers in St. Louis, with salaries ranging from $1400 to $1800. There are 677 railway mail clerks, their salaries being from $1600 to $2200. In addition there are substitutes who are paid only for actual time worked.

YALE NEVER WILL BE 'A RICH MAN'S COLLEGE,' SAYS ANGELL

Dr. Angell Also Tells Alumni Board Young Today Are Better Than Their Parents.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Yale will never be a rich man's college, for "we'll shut up before that happens," President James Rowland Angell of the University told its Alumni Advisory Board today. He also expressed optimism about the young people of today.

"There is no danger that Yale will become a rich men's college. A large number of our students are on their own resources, and about one-third of the undergraduates are earning a part or whole of their expenses. The University pays about two-thirds of the student's expenses, the student roughly a third.

"We like to have the high school boys from the Middle West. We have not always been getting them, but we are getting them now.

"Despite all that is said against the younger generation, I believe that most of the young people of today are better than their parents. I concede that to be true of my own offspring and I suspect you can say the same of yours. They are better physical specimens and I am inclined to think they are better moral specimens, though of that I am not so sure."

ISAAC W. GRAHAM TO ANSWER TO SECOND CONTEMPT CHARGE

Manufacturer's Remark Uncomplimentary to Judge Grimm Reported by Deputy Sheriff.

As measured by court reprisals, the contempt which Isaac W. Graham, secretary-treasurer of the Usona Manufacturing Co., 3512-26 Chouteau avenue, feels for court processes may be growing deeper. But outwardly its manifestations are not expected to be apparent when he appears tomorrow before Circuit Judge Falkenhainer on a second contempt charge.

Graham was fined $10 Friday by Judge Grimm for contempt—for barring a Deputy Sheriff from summoning employes in his plant as jurors. On the way to the Sheriff's office to pay the fine, he grumbled, and these remarks were repeated before Judge Falkenhainer by the Deputy Sheriff, who was his escort. Graham admitted that he had remarked to the Deputy that "Judge Grimm is a little bit raw today," adding that the Judge was "narrow." He said he would apologize to Judge Grimm, and Judge Falkenhainer suspended sentence until tomorrow.

AY BUILDING AT THIRD AND PINE IS SOLD

even-Story Structure, Occupied by Printing Concerns, Bought by Harry C. Hunter.

NION ELECTRIC GETS DOWNTOWN LOT

uch Activity Evident in Real Estate on Chestnut and Pine Streets—Outstanding Purchases.

By Berry Moore.

The Gay building at the north- st corner of Third and Pine eets was purchased yesterday by rry C. Hunter of the Bauman fe Co., through the Cornet & lbig Trust. It belonged to the orge T. Burdeau Realty Co. ich recently acquired it from the y estate.

While the amount involved is thheld, it is understood that Hun- paid the Burdeau Corporation a eral profit on its investment.

The building is seven stories h and has a frontage of 95 feet Third street and a depth of 72 t on Pine street. It is occupied incipally by printing and litho- aphing concerns, with annua tals of $22,000. The building equipped with two elevators.

The story of old St. Louis would rdly be complete without a his- y of this building, which is one the pioneer structures of its e in the business district, and ich was built by the late John Gay, who had extensive hold- s in St. Louis and in St. Louis unty. The building has been ll maintained, and is one of the st substantial in the district st of Fourth street.

Other Large Deals Pending.

The central business area con- ues to be one of the most buoy- t sections of the St. Louis real tate market. Negotiations were ncluded, or initiated during the eek, for a number of other large oldings, which give promise of ccessful issue.

The Union Electric Light & ower Co. acquired yesterday, hrough the Cornet & Zeibig Trust, lot 40x140 feet on the west side Eighth street, between Chestnut nd Market streets, situated be- een two east and west alleys. The was Florence D. Lucas.

For Automatic Sub-Station.

An automatic sub-station, oper- ting without operators, will be ected on the site by the Union lectric. The building will be quivalent to a two-story brick ructure and, with equipment, will st $160,000.

The sub-station will transform igh-voltage alternating current to w-voltage direct current, which n be safely handled commercial- . The station will pick up the d automatically as consumption creases at various hours of the ay. This will be the second such tation in St. Louis, the other be- g now in operation in the base- ent of the Union Building, welfth boulevard and Locust reet. Increasing demands for rvice downtown necessitate the w station, the company an- unced.

The plot is one of the original Lucas holdings and has an added lue by virtue of its alley advan- ges.

Jack Dubinsky and Alexander Glick, president of the Glick Rea Estate Co., yesterday acquired titl to the four-story Orpheum Hote building and site, at the northe corner of Ninth and Chestnu streets.

The sale was made on behalf o the Industrial Loan Co., which re cently acquired it, and which h made a handsome profit throug the resale, according to realty cir cles. Both transactions were han dled by the Cornet & Zeibig Trus

GAY BUILDING AT THIRD AND PINE IS SOLD

Seven-Story Structure, Occupied by Printing Concerns, Bought by Harry C. Hunter.

UNION ELECTRIC GETS DOWNTOWN LOT

Much Activity Evident in Real Estate on Chestnut and Pine Streets—Outstanding Purchases.

By Berry Moore.

The Gay building at the northeast corner of Third and Pine streets was purchased yesterday by Harry C. Hunter of the Bauman Safe Co., through the Cornet & Zeibig Trust. It belonged to the George T. Burdeau Realty Co., which recently acquired it from the Gay estate.

While the amount involved is withheld, it is understood that Hunter paid the Burdeau Corporation a liberal profit on its investment.

The building is seven stories high and has a frontage of 95 feet on Third street and a depth of 72 feet on Pine street. It is occupied principally by printing and lithographing concerns, with annual rentals of $23,000. The building is equipped with two elevators.

The story of old St. Louis would hardly be complete without a history of this building, which is one of the pioneer structures of its type in the business district, and which was built by the late John [illegible] Gay, who had extensive holdings in St. Louis and in St. Louis County. The building has been well maintained, and is one of the most substantial in the district east of Fourth street.

Other Large Deals Pending.

The central business area continues to be one of the most buoyant sections of the St. Louis real estate market. Negotiations were concluded, or initiated during the week, for a number of other large holdings, which give promise of successful issue.

The Union Electric Light & Power Co. acquired yesterday, through the Cornet & Zeibig Trust, a lot 40x140 feet on the west side of Eighth street, between Chestnut and Market streets, situated between two east and west alleys. The [illegible] was Florence D. Lucas.

For Automatic Sub-Station.

An automatic sub-station, operating without operators, will be erected on the site by the Union Electric. The building will be equivalent to a two-story brick structure and, with equipment, will cost $160,000.

The sub-station will transform high-voltage alternating current to low-voltage direct current, which can be safely handled commercially. The station will pick up the load automatically as consumption increases at various hours of the day. This will be the second such station in St. Louis, the other being now in operation in the basement of the Union Building, Twelfth boulevard and Locust street. Increasing demands for service downtown necessitate the new station, the company announced.

The plot is one of the original Lucas holdings and has an added value by virtue of its alley advantages.

Jack Dubinsky and Alexander Glick, president of the Glick Real Estate Co., yesterday acquired title to the four-story Orpheum Hotel building and site, at the northetst corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets.

The sale was made on behalf of the Industrial Loan Co., which recently acquired it, and which has made a handsome profit through the resale, according to realty circles. Both transactions were handled by the Cornet & Zeibig Trust.

There has been unprecedented activity on Chestnut and Pine streets since announcement of the [illegible] Telephone Co.'s plans for the building of the block bounded by Chestnut, Pine, Tenth and Eleventh streets, purchased by it through [illegible] T. Cook & Co., and those of the Western Union Telegraph Co. for a large structure at the southeast corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets, purchased by that company through John Dockery & Son. Architects are working on plans for these improvements.

A noteworthy purchase previously announced in the Post-Dispatch, was that by Albert Wenzlick of the southwest corner of Eleventh and Chestnut streets.

Through Cornet & Zeibig Trust Frank Dubinsky recently purchased the northwest corner of Eleventh and Chestnut streets, which he has resold to F. H. Manger, manager of the Harvey Restaurant Co., through the Ben Altheimer & Bro. Real Estate Co., at a large profit. The Bush-Burns Realty Co. bought the building at 1105 Chestnut street, for which a generous profit has been refused.

Predicated on the supposed selection of the old city hall block, as a site for the proopsed courthouse, much property has been purchased on Market street in this vicinity, both as a speculation and as an investment.

Edward Mack of the Edward L. Bakewell agency says that renewed interest is manifest in apartment buildings on the part of investors, as well as speculators. Judging from surface indications, operations involving holdinge of this character soon will reach imposing proportions, he says.

$35,000 Profit in Two Weeks on a $100,000 Realty Deal Refused

A profit of $35,000 already has been refused for the southwest corner of Grand and West Pine boulevards, purchased a fortnight ago by the Carondelet-Buick Motor Co. from the Handlan estate, through Charles E. Richardson. The price paid by the Carondelet-Buick Co. was $100,000.

The site, fronting 113 feet on Grand boulevard and 195 feet on Pine, is to have a gasoline station on the corner and an automobile salesroom on the Pine street side.

The Jefferson Club, a Democratic organization which flourished a number of years ago, formerly occupied the premises.

The corner is considered one of the best on Grand boulevard for the purpose for which it has been acquired.

Edwin R. Methudy is president and Ralph Page is secretary of the company. Methudy also is president of the Methudy Tire and Rubber Co.

George F. Bergfeld Returns.

George F. Bergfeld, president of the George F. Bergfeld Co., returned during the week from the Pacific Coast, where he was accompanied by Mrs. Bergfeld. He is more enthusiastic than ever as to the outlook in St. Louis.

GRAND-DOVER AND HOLLY HILLS SALES EXCEED $450,000

The mild weather of the last week has stimulated inquiries in Holly Hills and Grand-Dover Park subdivisions, according to the Federer Realty Co., agents and owners of the property.

Sales exceeding $25,000 were closed making a total in the new subdivision of more than $450,000. Ground has been broken for six new bungalows in Grand-Dover Park with six more ready to be started this week. The weather has permitted a renewed activity on the part of the graders who are making rapid progress.

OLIVER R. KRAEHE OPENS REALTY AND INSURANCE OFFICE

Oliver R. Kraehe, former football player at Washington University, has established a real estate and insurance office in the new Audrey Building at 2620½ Cherokee street. Kraehe is in charge of the Audrey Building. He had been connected with the Doerflinger Realty Co. for the past five years.

Kraehe reports the sale of two double flats at 4165-67-69-71 DeTonty street. Arthur J. Thomas, who is connected with Kraehe's organization, handled both deals.

LAMBERT-GRAVES MOTOR CO. BUYS SITE ON LINDELL

The Lambert-Graves Motor Co. has purchased through the Chauncey P. Heaht Realty Co., 130 feet on the south side of Lindell boulevard in the 4000 block, just west of Vandeventer avenue and adjoining the Knights of Father Matthews on the east, as a site for automobile sales and show rooms, to be devoted exclusively to the sale of Lincoln motor cars.

The building will be 75 feet wide and 125 feet deep, the balance of the grounds facing Lindell boulevard being devoted to a parkway. It will be of Old English type, two stories high, the show room and sales room finished in Colonial design, with French doors off the driveway into the show room, double Colonial stairs to the second floor, old-fashioned fire place on the side of show floor.

It is hoped the building will be ready for occupancy by the middle of July. Meanwhile all Lincoln business of the firm will be transacted at the present building at Manchester and Kingshighway.

INDIANA CONCERN LEASES FLOOR ON WASHINGTON AV.

The Mullin-Walters Realty Co. reports the Sidway Mercantile Co., which has its main office and factory in Elkhart, Ind., has taken a long term lease on the entire third floor of the building at 1320-22-24 Washington where it will be located on and after April 15. The company manufactures baby carriages, velocipedes and tricycles.

The American Jacket Co. has leased the fifth floor of the seven-story building at 701-03 Lucas avenue.

The Wright Specialty Manufacturing Co. has leased the one-story building at 1709 South Ninth street and the two buildings at 908-10 Soulard street.

Harry Seltzer has leased the fifth floor in the building at 810 Lucas avenue for a men's coat factory.

I. Ornstein and Elias Schoenberg have leased a portion of the fifth floor in the eight-story building at 1517-19 Washington avenue.

The Autotray Co. has taken a long term lease on the store room at 221 Chestnut street.

FLAT ON CHOUTEAU AVENUE SOLD TO ESTELLE FIGLER

The John W. Gibson Realty Co. reports the sale of a flat at 4422-22A Chouteau avenue, for the account of Charles E. Miller to Estelle Figler.

DAVID R. FRANCIS BUYS SKINKER RESIDENCE

Former Ambassador to Russia Will Make Ellenwood Avenue Place His Home.

Former Gov. David R. Francis has purchased the residence of the late Thomas K. Skinker, 6464 Ellenwood avenue, and will make it his home. The sale was negotiated several weeks ago, but its conclusion was delayed by the absence of the purchaser from the city, and by the death of Mrs. Francis.

Since his return from Russia, to which he was the latest American Ambassador, former Gov. Francis has lived in apartments, the Francis home at Maryland and Newstead avenues having been turned over to the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The former Skinker home, henceforth the Francis residence, is of old English design in double arrangement, having rooms on each side of the hall, including large living room, dining room, den, kitchen and maid's dining room on the first floor. Five master bed rooms and three baths connecting them are on the second floor. Four rooms, including maids' rooms, storage rooms and bath, are on the third floor. The house is in part hardwood and part white enamel finish. The grounds are 150 by 200 feet, with driveway.

WEBSTER SCIENTIST CHURCH TO BE ATTRACTIVE EDIFICE

The edifice under construction for the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Webster Groves will form an attractive feature of this suburb. The building will have a seating capacity of 300. The Sunday school room and a reading room will occupy the basement. The site is on Selma avenue opposite the site of the proposed new Junior High School. It was purchased through the Trembley-Wilson Real Estate Co. A picture of the new church is shown on this page.

TWO WEST END APARTMENTS ARE SOLD FOR $85,000

Dyas-Shelp Realty Co. announces the sale of two West End apartment buildings for $85,000. 6660 Washington avenue was sold for the account of Dr. Willard B. Shelp to Abraham and Rose Green. The building contains six apartments of seven rooms each, bringing in a total rent of $9000 per year. 5557 Pershing avenue was sold to Sam S. Crasilneck. The building contains three suites of seven rooms each and brings in a gross rent of $4500 per year. This sale was made for the account of A. Green. All parties to the above sales were represented by the Dyas-Shelp Realty Co. and the property will be placed under its management.

SCHOLLMEYER TAKES 125 LOTS IN PENNSYLVANIA PARK

The A. R. Schollmeyer Real Estate Co. announces the concern has contracted with Pensylvania Park Realty Co. for 125 lots in their subdivision known as Pennsylvania Park. The Schollmeyer company will offer them on terms. The sale will open today at the subdivision office on Pennsylvania avenue and Bruno avenue, just west of the end of the Market street line. Arrangements have been made to finance the building of homes.

ARCHOEFFER REALTY CO. HAS BEEN INCORPORATED

The Archoeffer Realty Co. has been incorporated with a paid-up capital of $100,000. Isaac Archoeffer, president of the company, has had more than 30 years' experience in the real estate field. The other officers of the company are Theodore H. Marglous, secretary and treasurer; Ross Archoeffer and Theresa Marglous, directors. The company is located at 808 Chestnut street and does a general real estate and financial business.

RUSSELL PARK TO BE PLACED ON SALE

Plans Made for Two $50,000 Buildings for Stores and Apartments.

Russell Park, located 1200 feet west of Grand boulevard, south of Tower Grove Park, and 100 feet west of Gravois avenue, will be placed on sale today by the Security Guarantor Realty Co., 512-16 International Life Building, of which S. C. Harding is general manager.

Eighty-five lots have been sold, Harding stated yesterday.

The Security Guarantor Realty Co. has made arrangements to install all improvements, the money for which will be placed in a separate fund in escrow in a downtown bank. Officers of the company have been bonded to the extent of $125,000 as a guarantee that the money placed in escrow will be used for no other purpose other than for improvements.

Plans have been made for a large number of buildings for this addition. Mr. and Mrs. Gorwade have bought four lots as a site for a $50,000 structure of two stores and apartment above, while Julius and August Hess have purchased two lots for three stores and apartments to cost $58,000. There already have been let numerous contracts for homes and flats.

The improvements, which will consist of street, sewer, water, gas, electricity and curbing, are scheduled for completion by Oct. 30. Grading will be started immediately.

The property will be illuminated at night.

PEACOCK SHOP LEASES ARCADE BUILDING STORE

Isaac T. Cook & Co., Inc., reports having leased the store room at 808 Olive street to the Peacock Shops, Inc., operating a chain of high grade women's shoe stores. This firm now has a store at 805 Locust street. The Olive street location in the Arcade Building adjoins the new Herz-Oakes Candy Shop.

Another store in this block, at 820 Olive street, leased to Brandt's, Inc., by Cook's office, will be opened in about 60 days.

The Superior Electric Products Co., manufacturers of electrical household appliances, have taken a long term lease on the third floor of the building at 2206-2208 Pine street, and the Boston Woven Hose & Rubber Co. has leased the second floor of the same building. Isaac T. Cook & Co., Inc., represented all parties in negotiating these leases.

TWO APARTMENT BUILDINGS SOLD BY SINGER-KLEIN CO.

Singer-Klein Realty Co. announces the sale of a four-family apartment building at 7101-03 Alamo avenue for Abraham Schumitzky to the Roselyn Investment Co. Singer-Klein Realty Co. represented both parties to the transaction. Singer-Klein Realty Co. will have the general management of the property.

Also the sale of a three-family apartment building at 746 Heman avenue, for John Jannopoulo to William H. Goldman. Park Savings Trust Co. represented the seller, and the Singer-Klein Realty Co. through M. I. Robbins, represented the purchaser.

AMHERST PLACE APARTMENT AND CHANNING CORNER SOLD

The Henry Heimenz Realty Co. has sold the 6-family apartment building at 1239 Amherst place to Dr. A. M. Simon for $40,000, and the northwest corner of Channing and Market street, consisting of seven stores and 16 flats, to Julius Blum for $35,000. F. A. Dacumer handled the transaction, in connection with Francis Kennedy of the Henry Hiemenz Realty Co.

100 HOMES PLANNED FOR NEW COMMUNITY

Gannondale, at 7500 West, Being Built Complete by Majestic Homes Corporation.

The Majestic Homes Corporation announces the opening of Gannondale, a new community of residences, located just one block north of Delmar boulevard between Hanley (7500 west) and North and South roads.

Gannondale is one of the most ambitious home-building projects ever attempted in St. Louis. It is a community of homes built entire, with grading, sewers, sidewalks, building homes, planting of lawns and shrubbery handled by one company.

One hundred homes are planned for Gannondale. Fifty of these are completed or nearly so, and construction of the remaining 50 will be started shortly.

The homes are of moderate size, modern in every respect and substantial in construction. A feature that will appeal strongly to the prospective home owner is that no two homes in Gannondale are alike. All are varied as to floor plan and each is individual as to outside appearance.

A house in the first group of these Gannondale homes, a Spanish-style residence located at 7537 Stamford avenue, has been completely decorated and furnished and is open for inspection. The public is invited also to view the other homes that are completed or under construction.

The success of the Majestic Homes Corporation with a similar project last year, the building of 48 homes along one block of Chamberlain avenue, argues well for the outcome of the present venture, and indicates that by building home communities entire this corporation is meeting one of the most pressing needs of St. Louis.

SUBURB'N PROP'Y FOR SALE

Webster Groves

IF YOU HAD TWO HOUSES

What would you do? The owners of the three houses described here have purchased other homes that better suit their needs.

They each now have two houses on their hands and each has decided that rathan than rent, it is better to make the price of the former home such that it readily may be sold.

Which one fills your needs?

123 Portland terrace. Large living room, sun room, dining room and kitchen on the first floor. Three beautiful bedrooms, bath and wonderful glazed sleeping porch on the second floor. One room finished on third floor. Hardwood floors and steam heat. White enamel woodwork. Beautifully and artistically decorated throughout. House has fine basement. Both the house and double garage have red tile roofs. Attractive lot 80x180; most desirable location in Webster. Street made, with concrete curb and gutter. Convenient to schools and transportation. Asking $16,000.

413 Fairlawn av. Just 2 blocks from schools and transportation. The house is in beautiful condition and thoroughly modern. Living room, dining room, kitchen and den on the first floor. Three nice bedrooms and large sleeping porch 14x30 on the second floor. Lot 50x175. Garage and drive. Asking only $9000. Arrangements can be made to finance this deal for you. This is a most desirable property and should have the attention of the most conservative buyer.

PERFECT LITTLE HOME.
140 S. Gore av.; 6 rooms and bath; white enamel woodwork throughout; attractive decorations, hardwood floors, screened front porch; large lot 60x263. Garage and drive. Chicken house, grapevines, shade trees and many rose bushes. Two short blocks to Bristol School, cars, train and store section. We have been waiting for this listing for you. Who gets it? Phone Wilson at Webster 776 or Trembley at Webster 1581 today for appointment.

SINGLE FLATS
Bartmer and Crest, 6700 block, University City, adjacent to the beautiful Pershing Public School. We have the most modern and up-to-date flats in St. Louis. We are in a position to sell you these modern buildings for the small down payment of $1500 and a monthly payment, which includes all interest and principal charges, not to exceed the monthly rent of the building. You become and pay yourself rent, just as you now do to someone else. We can give you 10 years' time in which to pay the balance. This plan of ours provides you with the opportunity you have long been hoping for.

The flats contain 5 rooms and a bath on each floor, have large porches, attics, separate hot-water heating plants, hardwood floors throughout, and are properly and well built, with all of those little conveniences which are usually found only in high-priced individual residences.

For your convenience and without obligation on your part, we shall be pleased to send a machine for you. We feel that you must see these flats to appreciate the value we are offering you. Call us and be convinced. Sunday phone, Cabany 8826J.

OWN A FARM WHERE IT IS PROFITABLE
Canadian Pacific Gives 35 Years to Pay.
Be wealthy and independent by securing a fertile farm in Western Canada. Choice irrigated tracts in sunny Southern Alberta. Unfailing water supply. Rich, dry farm lands in Central Alberta and Saskatchewan. Lands yield bumper crops; 1923 wheat crop broke all records. Prize grains of the world raised here. Big returns in stock raising. Dairying very profitable. Climate unexcelled. Prosperity awaits you in agricultural garden spot of North America. Prices $18 to $50 an acre, with 35 years to pay. Settlers pay only 7 pct. of purchase price down. One year's free use of farm. Balance in 34 equal annual payments. The small payments leave you unhampered in making improvements. This is your chance of a lifetime. Write M. E. THORNTON, Supt. of Colonization, Room 520 Canadian Pacific Railway Building, Depot, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada. (c99)

California

SMALL farms in winterless California. You can work a small farm with less capital investment; and in California you can work outdoors all the year. The State Land Board of California is offering choice 20-acre farms at Ballico, Merced County, small down payment, 36 years' time on balance. Ample water for irrigation; a small one-family farm, cutting out high labor costs, insures success. Equally good opportunity in other sections of the San Joaquin Valley, as well as Southern California, for the man of moderate means who wishes to get a home of his own. California is the richest State per capita in United States of America. Most of this wealth comes from the soil. No winter handicaps. Illustrated folders descriptive of California mailed on request. REVOLUTIONARY LIBERALS IN HONDURAS AGAIN TAKE FI

Reconciliation of Party Re
With Two Candidates for Preidency Withdrawing.

By the Associated Press.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, April 5.—The revolutionary liberal forces have taken the field in the host prevalent in Honduras with new columns of troops to repl those routed by rebel forces the command of Generals and Arturo Matute and Simon ilar, says a dispatch from Gu mala City.

It is also reported that Pol Bonilla, Liberal candidate, and Juan Angel Arias, Honduras ernor candidate in the recent tions, have effected a settl of their differences, thus re in a reconciliation of the Hond Liberal party. In consequenc agreement a convention was pledging that neither Arias Bonilla will be candidates fo presidency of Honduras.

Prior to the above advice fighting in Honduras has three-cornered, the conte forces being the de facto gov ment forces, supporters of Arias; rebels backing Polic Bonilla and revolutionaries by Gen. Gregorio Ferrera, nominated Fauvo Davila as sion president of Honduras. would indicate that the contest now developed into a fight betw the combined de facto governm liberal forces against those manded by Gen. Ferrera, who ly was reported to be prepari assault on Tegucigalpa, the capi

REVOLUTIONARY LIBERALS IN HONDURAS AGAIN TAKE FIELD

Reconciliation of Party Reported With Two Candidates for Presidency Withdrawing.

By the Associated Press.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, April 5.—The revolutionary liberal forces have again taken the field in the hostilities prevalent in Honduras with two new columns of troops to replace those routed by rebel forces under the command of Generals Angel and Arture Matute and Simon Aguilar, says a dispatch from Guatemala City.

It is also reported that Policarpo Bonilla, Liberal candidate, and Dr. Juan Angel Arias, Honduran Governor candidate in the recent elections, have effected a settlement of their differences, thus resulting in a reconciliation of the Honduran Liberal party. In consequence of agreement a convention was signed pledging that neither Arias nor Bonilla will be candidates for the presidency of Honduras.

Prior to the above advices, the fighting in Honduras has been three-cornered, the contesting forces being the de facto government forces, supporters of Dr. Arias; rebels backing Policarpo Bonilla and revolutionaries headed by Gen. Gregorio Ferrera, who nominated Fauvo Davila as provision president of Honduras. This would indicate that the contest has now developed into a fight between the combined de facto government-liberal forces against those commanded by Gen. Ferrera, who lately was reported to be preparing an assault on Tegucigalpa, the capital.

Head of King Alexander on Coin.

By the Associated Press.

FIUME, April 5.—The Jugo-Slav Government has decided to coin 20,000,000 dinars in gold, the coins to bear the head of King Alexander. Old Hungarian and Austrian gold coins, which will be used for the coining, were obtained by Jugo-Slavia in the liquidation of the Austro-Hungarian bank.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

A DAILY READER.—We find no record of the "comics" in question.

V M. C.—October 21, 1886, fell on Thursday.

R. I. B.—The large copper cent dated 1795 is worth from 20c to $1.

S.—Take the papers to a dealer in curios in order to determine their value.

SAM L. H.—Write to the "St. Louis Browns" the American League ball team at Battle House Hotel, Mobile, Ala.

INTERESTED.—Write to the officials of the State Committee of the party to which you are affiliated regarding the campaign work.

NEWCOMER. — Inquire of the Water Department at the City Hall regarding the water rates for the rooming house. The rate would depend on how many of the rooms have water.

GEORGE.—The following railroads are the three in the United States which have the longest mileage: (1) New York Central; (2) Southern Pacific; (3) Atlantic Coast Line.

CONSTANT READER—As to the salary paid an electrical engineer it would be impossible to say as it is a matter of private negotiation. Inquire of the Electrical company in question regarding same.

P. D. BOOSTER—The quantities of materials required to build a wall 24 feet wide, ~~52 feet~~ long, 6 feet 6 inches high and 9 inches thick, 1:2½:4 mix are as follows: 104 sacks of cement, 10 cubic yards of sand and 16 cubic yards of gravel.

X. Y. Z.—Application blanks, together with complete information regarding any of the examinations may be secured from the secretary of the local Civil Service Board at the Postoffice or at the Ninth Civil Service District, 302 Old Customs House, Third and Olive streets.

SUBSCRIBER—Following is the recipe for boiled mayonnaise: 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon mustard, ½ tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1-8 teaspoon cayenne, 2 egg yolks, 2½ tablespoons butter, ¾ cup milk and ¼ cup vinegar. Mix all the dry ingredients with egg yolks slightly beaten, add melted butter, milk and lastly hot vinegar. Cook in a double boiler until it thickens, stirring all the time.

BILL.—A good and simple remedy to obviate damp walls is caoutchouc glue, which is prepared from rubber hose. The walls to be laid dry are first to be thoroughly cleaned by brushing and rubbing off; then the caoutchouc size which has been previously made liquid by heating, is applied with a broad brush in a uniform layer, about 8 to 12 inches higher than the wall appears damp, and finally paper is pasted over the glue when the latter is still sticky. The paper will at once adhere very firmly. Or else, apply the liquified glue in a uniform layer upon paper (wall paper, caoutchouc paper, etc.). Upon this, size paint may be applied or it may be covered with wall paper or plaster. If the caoutchouc size is put on with the necessary care, i. e., if all damp spots are covered with it, the wall is laid dry for the future, and no peeling off of the paint or the wall paper needs to be apprehended. In cellars, protection from dampness can be had in a like manner, as the caoutchouc glue adheres equally well to all surfaces, whether stone, glass, metal or wood.

INQUIRER—The first principle to be observed in the erection of a Catholic Church is that of its orientation, that is to say, the main axis of the building must run from due east to west, so that the high altar shall be placed in the east, where the sun rises and the entrance shall be in the west. This is the so-called Holy line prescribed in church architecture. This principle of orientation rests on the liturgical ground, that public worship always takes the oriental position as its starting point. The high altar is placed in the east. The east, the direction of the rising sun, is the emblem of the light of the gospel and still more appropriately of the "Sun of Grace" rising every morning in the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. Tradition, too, adds the weight of its authority, for it tells us, that the Saviour, when dying on Mount Calvary, had His face averted from Jerusalem (the east Jewry) and turned in the opposite direction (the west), towards the future converts from heathenism. And keeping this in mind the Church offers the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, the renewal of the Sacrifice of Calvary, in the east, and the faithful, placed in the west, see in the altar of the church the holy mountain of suffering of the New Testament.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

F. H.—Consult a lawyer regarding the quit claim deed.

A MELLON—You would not be breaking your mother's will by doing what you propose.

O. S. J.—Consult a lawyer regarding an attachment suit against the firm.

A DAILY SUBSCRIBER. — He will have to give the tenant of the garage one month's written notice to vacate.

BEN.—The property can be levied upon, after judgment is obtained, subject to the homestead exemption of the head of a family, amounting (in Illinois) to $1000.

KATHY & MC.—The consent of parent or guardian is required for the marriage in Missouri of a girl under 21, but if she marries without their consent, that is a legal marriage.

MRS. L. E.—You cannot compel him to keep his wife at her mother's home, as he agreed, and you cannot prevent him from taking her to New York, providing that he treats her properly.

WORRIED.—They cannot make you pay the full amount, as they took the piano back. If they sue you, or make any trouble, consult a lawyer, or the Legal Aid Bureau in the Municipal Courts Building.

ANXIOUS.—You should make a will leaving the property in trust for the two boys for such time and under such conditions as you desire. Consult a lawyer and have him draw the will for you.

A DAILY READER.—You do not state of what war your father was a veteran. Write again, stating all the facts, or write directly to your Congressman or Senator regarding the pension, if you prefer.

G. L. P. — (1) He can marry again immediately after his wife's death; he does not have to wait any length of time. (2) So long as you do not live with your husband, it does not matter whether you go to your mother's or not.

F. W.—The judgment is no longer enforceable, unless it was revived. You can find out the desired information by examining the records of the court. You would be entitled to a homestead exemption for your income.

F. P. T.—The children have a right to play on the sidewalk so long as they do not interfere with or get in the way of passersby. If the policeman is unreasonable about the matter, report the facts to the Board of Police Commissioners.

F. G.—He should consult a lawyer regarding the matter. The luyer is probably right in asking for the "additional papers" since the children are under age. The deed should have been signed, not by the minor children, but by their properly appointed guardian.

BROTHER.—If either died without a will, the other would receive one-half of his or her estate, the other one-half going to the relatives of the deceased person. The insurance policies would be paid all to the person named in them as the beneficiary.

A DAILY READER.—If you can show five years of good moral conduct either subsequent to the time of dismissal of your application or after the granting of a divorce to your first wife, you are permitted to make a new application. No appeal is allowed from a dismissal. Inquire at the Naturalization office, in the Custom House, Eighth and Olive streets.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

E. J. R.—Repeat the question, enclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

G.—A person can secure treatment for tuberculosis in any of the principal cities of Arizona. Phoenix perhaps would be as good as any.

E. G. W.—The drink habit can in many instances be cured where there exists a sincere desire to quit. Otherwise little can be done. Even when the desire is present the patient should be in an institution under medical care. The treatment depends upon the individual conditions present.

F. P.—(1) Regular and persistent massage is perhaps the best procedure for enlarging the breast. Olive or cocoanut oil may be used in connection with the massage. (2) A girl 5 feet 5 inches tall should weigh 134 pounds and one 5 feet 6 inches tall should weigh 138 pounds. You are, therefore, 16 pounds underweight.

MISSOURI.—You cannot increase the number of hairs in the scalp. The hair should be washed often enough to keep it clean; there is no stated time. Use soap spirit in the shampoo. The following application may follow: Precipitated sulphur, 1½ drams; acid salicylic, 20 grains; oil lemon q. s. vaseline 1 oz. Apply a small quantity to the scalp once or twice daily. In using this a shampoo will perhaps be necessary every four or five days, or oftener. Do not apply the salve to the hair but to the scalp.

In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Philip Schaefer, who departed this life one year ago, April 4, 1923.
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Edward S. Forman, who departed this life April 6, 1923.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN. (c)

In memory of our darling mother, Lillian Bauer, who departed this life three years ago April 5, 1921. Sadly missed by HER DAUGHTERS AND GRANDCHILD AND ALL WHO LOVED HER. (c)

In loving memory of my dear husband and our dear father, Charles B. Leighton, who passed away April 8, 1920. Gone but not forgotten. Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

It's just one year ago today, the Lord claimed our dear son and brother, James A Dearing, in his twenty-eighth year, from this world to that home eternally in Heaven, not made with hands. Sadly missed by MOTHER AND FAMILY.

In loving memory of our beloved daughter and dear sister, Mary Gerety, who departed this life six years ago April 9, 1918:

Dear is the grave where our loved one is laid,
Sweet is the memory that will never fade.

Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER AND BROTHER.

In loving memory of our dear father and husband, Frank Waldwogel Sr., who departed this life one year ago April 2, 1923:

One year has passed, our hearts still sore,
As time goes on, we miss you more;
Your loving smiles, your loving face,
There is none that can fill your place.

Sadly missed by
DAUGHTER, SONS AND WIFE.

In memory of my darling mother, Mrs. Josephine Woelfel, who died 3 years ago, April 8, 1921.
Gone but not forgotten.
Sadly missed by her
DAUGHTERS, NELL, ANNA, MARIE AND HER SISTER, MARY.

In memory of our dear mother, Henrietta Schomberg, who passed on April 1, 1923.

Watch and wait for us, little mother
For we know it can't be long,
Till we are again united
In the land of sun and song.

Sadly missed by her
SON AND DAUGHTERS. (c)

In loving memory of our dear father, Joseph P. Walter, who passed away April 6, 1923:

Today recalls sad memory
Of the loved one gone to rest;
And those who think of him today
Are the ones who loved him best.

Sadly missed by
CHILDREN AND SISTER.

In memory of our darling son and grandson, Charles L. Hammond Jr., who passed away one year ago, April 9, 1923.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we love is stilled
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

Sadly missed by
FATHER AND MOTHER, GRANDMOTHER AND AUNT. (c)

In loving memory of my dear wife, mother and sister, who entered into rest April 8, 1923, Mrs. Martha Mayer Tuffings, Pacific, Mo.:

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, ANTON TUFFINGS AND CHILDREN; SISTER, MRS. OLGA MAYER STIENS.
Requiem at 7:45 a. m., Perpetual Help Church, 20th and Linton, April 8.

In loving memory of my dear wife, Margaretta Beck, our mother, grandmother, who departed from this life one year ago, April 6 1923.

She bade no one a last farewell,
She said good-bye to none.
Her loving heart had ceased to beat
Before we knew it she was gone.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In loving memory of my dear mother, Christiana Sodan, who departed this life April 1, 1923:

She bade no one a last farewell, said goodby to none,
Her loving heart had ceased to beat before I knew she was gone:
Her cheery smile and kindly way are pleasing to recall;
She had a kind word for each one and died beloved by all.

Sadly missed by her daughter,
ADOLPHINE SODAN.

In sad and loving memory of our dear daughter Irene La Fant, who departed this life one year ago, April 10, 1923.

When we are lingering around your grave
In our deepest sorrow and grief, there
Seems to be a sweet healing voice say
Don't weep, she is safe in the arms of Jesus asleep.
Never shall you be forgotten.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND FATHER, MR. AND MRS. ED. SHANNON.

In memory of my dear husband and father, Mr. Henry C. Tinnemeyer, who passed away four years ago on April 1, 1920:

In a graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly,
But whom we could not save.
Heaven now retains our treasure;
Earth his lovely casket keeps,
And the angels love to linger
Where our darling father sleeps.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our daughter, Katie Schillinger, who died March 27, 1919.

In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we love so dearly,
But one we could not save.
Heaven knows we trained our treasure,
Earthy her lovely casket keeps,
And the angels love to linger
Where our darling daughter sleeps.

Sadly missed by
HER PARENTS, MR. AND MRS. CHARLIE SCHILLINGER. (c)

In memory of our dear wife and mother, Annie Whitley (nee Smith), who departed this life two years ago April 3, 1922:

Gone, dear Mother, gone forever,
How we miss your loving face;
But you left us to remember
None can fill your place.
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade,
Loving hearts will always linger
Around the grave where you are laid.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In memory of my dear wife, Zannie Tindall, and loving mother, who departed from this earth three years ago April 5, 1921:

In a graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly
But one we could not save.
Heaven now retains our treasure,
Earth her lovely casket keeps
And the angels love to linger
Where our darling mother sleeps.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, DAUGHTERS AND SON AND HER MANY FRIENDS; R. TINDALL AND FAMILY.

Truth in Advertising

The value of advertising is a direct ratio to the amount of READER-CONFIDENCE it possesses. That is entirely founded on its quality of TRUTH.

The National Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers and the Better Business Bureau and the Advertising Club of St. Louis, in all of which the Post-Dispatch holds membership, aim to eliminate fraudulent and misleading advertising. This newspaper will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement which does not conform to the highest standards of honesty. (c8)

Why You Should Buy Your Used Car From Us

We are very careful—yet reasonably liberal—in our Used Car trade—in allowances on new Hupmobiles. Prices on new Hupmobiles are not made with the idea of allowing for excessive trade-in prices, therefore cars accepted are not overpriced.

Our greatest business asset is our good reputation and our Used Cars are sold with that thought in mind. All repair work is done in our own shops and at a minimum cost, which makes possible reasonable prices on high quality Used Cars.

Honest value and dependability are a permanent factor in our success and we will not deviate from that rule, because we know that old satisfied customers mean more than quantity sales.

For variety you cannot find a more complete stock in St. Louis. What make do you prefer? See our car first.

DODGE BROTHERS DEALERS SELL GOOD USED CARS

High-grade used cars today bear little resemblance to the used cars of yesterday. Roads are better, garages are better, automobiles are better and owners take care of them better. Incidentally, we KNOW better than to try and build good will with bad goods.

DODGE BROTHERS BUSINESS COUPE.
Looks and drives like new car. Was traded in for larger car. Fully equipped, good tires. We guarantee the mechanical condition. Dollar-for-dollar value.

DODGE BROTHERS SEDAN.
Late model. Newly painted. Equipped with disc wheels, spare tire, transmission lock, Neville steering wheel, front bumper, dome light, heater, etc. An ideal family car. A splendid buy.

CHEVROLET UTILITY COUPE.
Original finish. Good tires. Driven only a few months. A real bargain.

RE-MANUFACTURED MAXWELLS

By this we mean—restoring them to their original state as near as possible and guarantee them

Everyone we offer will give you lasting service and an economical one

In buying a Used or Exchanged Car be careful of the so-called bargains because there are really few of them. Nobody is selling $2 bills for $1 and it will pay you to consider the reputation of the house you are dealing with together with the class of cars they handle. Price is not the main factor in question. You must consider how good the car is—not only in appearance but so far as the internal working parts are concerned. Below are some you should see and ride in before deciding.

1923 Maxwell Sport Touring, complete with bumpers, trunk, spare tire, etc. New paint, re-nickeled and new tires.

1923 Maxwell Standard Touring, complete with all equipment and Winter enclosure.

1923 Maxwell Club Coupe, 3-passenger, new paint, etc.

1923 Maxwell, 4-passenger Coupe, seat covers, bumpers, new paint, new tires. A beauty.

1922 Maxwell Touring, new paint, re-nickeled and new tires.

Also 1919, 1920, 1921, 1922 models that are in excellent condition. Prices vary from $100 to $800.

YES!--"LET ME TELL YOU WHY"

If you ask anyone who has purchased a reconditioned automobile from us the question, "Do you like your car?" the answer will come back quickly as above. He will tell you of the good service the automobile has given him, the low expense of operation, the easy riding qualities and the feeling of security in dealing with an old established house whose reliability has never been questioned.

Our used car department is operated on the same basis as our new car department, and the people who buy used cars from us just know they are getting dollar for dollar value, and that the service we give is unexcelled.

We have a reputation to sustain and we do maintain it by going out of the way to keep our customers satisfied. We see that you remain satisfied after your purchase.

Our interest does not end at the signing of the order, instead, it follows throughout the life of every car we sell. That's why "Once a customer, always a customer." We eliminate all doubt and find that it pays. The future or repeat business means much to us.

The following list of cars is guaranteed to you to be exactly as we represent them or we will cheerfully refund your money:

Higlos Quickway Auto Painting Is by Far the Best Way

When you see a beautifully painted high lustre automobile the chances are, if you stop to inquire, that it is finished with HIGLOS. It may be a year or two old but it still retains that durable high lustre and will for years if only refinished with HIGLOS yearly costing from $20 to $50 depending on make and style of car. Why take chances—when there are hundreds of satisfied users right in St. Louis that will vouch for HIGLOS. Demand that your painter use HIGLOS. HIGLOS VARNISH CO., 1214 Olive st. Phone Main 1130.

HELP BABY CHICKS LIVE AND THRIVE

Feed baby chicks the kind of food that years of experiment has proved exactly right. It will pay you two hundred times what it costs. Start giving them Pratts and see how few chicks you lose from under-nourishment or disease. Old hands with poultry say that it's feeding that first twenty days that counts. And nearly all of them feed Pratts! Your dealer has it; sells it on money-back guarantee.

MARTIN & BREITT REPORT LEASE OF BUSINESS BUILDINGS

Martin and Breitt report having leased to the Barnes-Crosby Co. of Missouri the fourth floor of the building at the southeast corner of Twelfth and St. Charles street, which will give them more floor space than they are now using. This company has been located at the northwest corner of Eleventh and Locust streets for the past 20 years and the nature of its business is photo engraving and art photography. The lease was made for the account of Charles Kurlander. Martin and Breitt represented both parties.

Martin and Breitt also announce having leased to Welch and Co., now located at 1107-09 Olive street, the entire 5-story and basement building adjoining its present quarters at 1105 Olive street. Welch and Co. started in business in 1919 and leased the building at 1109 Olive street. Two years later the steady and continued growth of their business caused them to lease the 5-story and basement building at 1107 Olive street and due to the continued growth of their business, were compelled to lease the entire building at 1105 Olive street, increasing their floor area 50 per cent. This concern sells furniture at retail on deferred payments.

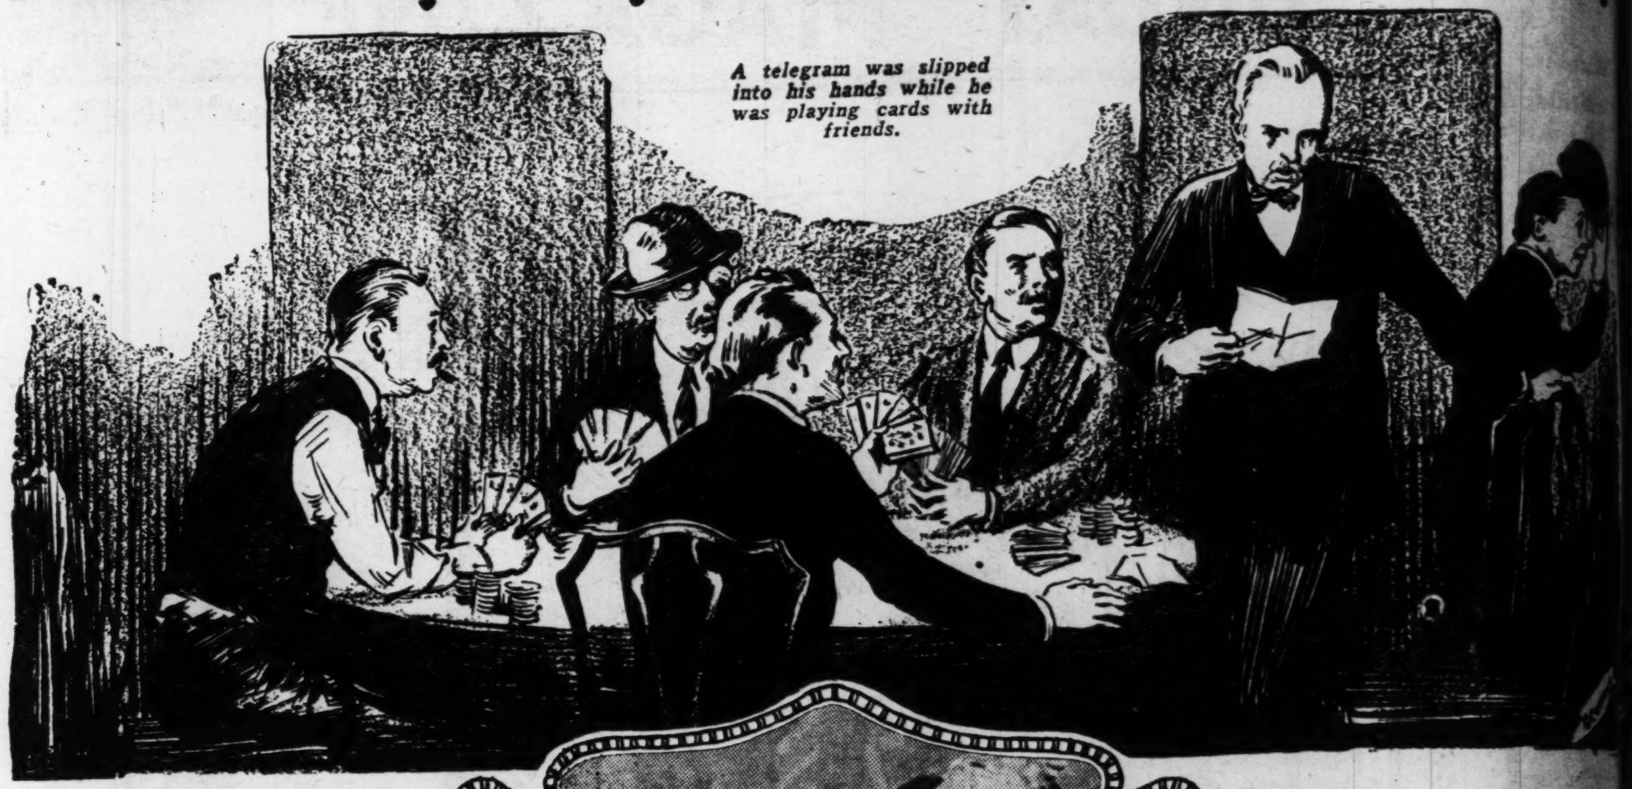
SISTER'S EASTER BONNET GETS A TRY-OUT

Drawn by E. R. Beckham

Makes an Opera of His Own Domestic Tragedy



A telegram was slipped into his hands while he was playing cards with friends.

Richard Strauss, greatest living composer, finds a theme in odd circumstance which caused his wife to leave home—The fateful telegram and the still more portentous letter — Terms of endearment written by a woman seemed to make a perfect case for the divorce court—What the writer revealed to the lawyer—How the tangle was unraveled ::

IT was almost a domestic tragedy, but now it is an opera. Thus does genius transmute the basest metal to gold. In this instance the alchemist is none other than Richard Strauss, greatest of living composers, whose latest work, soon to be staged and sung at the Vienna Opera House, is based on a remarkable incident in the composer's own life—an event which came perilously near dragging him into the divorce court.

Those who know Richard Strauss are well aware that this would have been a crushing tragedy for this man of music, who has always prided himself on the happiness of his domestic relations.

One can imagine, then, what a shock it must have been to a man of this type, strong in the consciousness of constancy, when, on a fateful night a few years ago, many miles away from his Munich home, a telegram was slipped into his hand while he was playing a game of cards with friends. On opening it he was astounded to read that divorce proceedings against him had been instituted. Without wasting time on explanations to his friends, he rushed out into the night and hurried to the railroad station. He sent a telegram to his wife, then supposed to be in Berlin, and he followed in person on the first train that pulled out for the German capital.

In Berlin a taxicab dash for the hotel where Mrs. Strauss had been stopping. She was no longer there. The clerk said she had checked out and departed hurriedly and apparently greatly agitated.

Nor was Mrs. Strauss to be found at their home in Munich or at their summer retreat at Garmisch, in Southern Bavaria.

The half-crazed composer went out and walked about the streets for hours, trying to compose himself.

At last he was calm enough to think, and an idea came to him. He went to his own attorney, laid the facts before him and commissioned him to make a thorough investigation which would disclose the real, underlying reason for his wife's action.

Lawyers sometimes have suspicious minds. This one was at first inclined to listen to his distinguished client with his tongue in his cheek, as the saying is. But the earnestness with which Strauss protested that he had never done anything which could possibly be the basis of such a charge as that made in the divorce action had its effect at last, even on the incredulous and worldly wise lawyer. It was borne in upon him that his was to be the task of proving the innocence of a truly innocent man.

Richard Strauss and the wife he nearly lost through a strange misunderstanding.

So the man of law put all other affairs aside and went to work on this strange case. His investigation showed that in her husband's absence Mrs. Strauss had opened a letter addressed to him and had found what appeared to be unmistakable evidence that he had been deceiving her. The letter was from a woman and was couched in the most endearing terms. On its face the letter seemed to be conclusive evidence against the great composer.

Again Strauss assured the attorney that he was innocent and implored him to push the investigation further so as to clear his good name.

Fortunately, as it turned out, the woman writer of the letter had put a return address on the envelope. The lawyer went to the place indicated. There he found a beautiful young woman, who, after close questioning, admitted authorship of the letter.

Not only that. Under skillful cross-examination she admitted all of the implications in the letter. There could be no doubt, she said, that the man for whom she professed the deepest love was the eminent musician, Richard Strauss. The lawyer's faith in his client was shaken by this revelation. But duty overrode suspicion, and the lawyer did not stop there. He asked the young woman when she would again meet her lover, and she told him that a meeting had been planned for that afternoon in a well-known restaurant.

Strauss' lawyer called on Mrs. Strauss' legal adviser. At the hour set for the meeting both lawyers were in the restaurant. The young woman arrived on time, and a few minutes later she was joined by a man whom neither lawyer had ever seen.

The lawyers contrived to get into conversation with the man. In this the young woman aided them by giving them formal introductions to "Mr. Strauss."

This man at first was puzzled by the interest in his affairs evinced by the two lawyers. Naturally, he was chary of dealing in confidences on so delicate a matter as his love affair, but when he was made to understand that another man's reputation was at stake he became more communicative.

He was, he explained, a fairly well known orchestra conductor. When he told the young woman he was a musician and a conductor she seemed greatly impressed and pleased. In order to heighten the effect, he said, and also to conceal his real identity, he decided to give a false name. He gave the first name that came to his mind, and this chanced to be the name of Richard Strauss.

The young woman was greatly flattered by attention from so noted a musician. To make matters worse, the pretender gave her Strauss' address, not dreaming she would remember the address and send a letter to it.

It was one thing to satisfy the two lawyers of Strauss' innocence, and quite another thing to convince the indignant wife that all her suspicions were unfounded. This was doubly difficult because those most concerned in straightening out the tangle did not at that moment know where Mrs. Strauss was. After much inquiry, her attorney got in touch with her and she agreed to listen to the offered explanations. These convinced her of her husband's innocence. She returned home and the Strausses resumed their tranquil domestic life—a life so tranquil that when Strauss was in St. Louis in 1921 he told friends here that he had written a symphonic poem which was a tone picture of his domestic happiness.

Now time has healed the wounds caused by the distressing episode which for a short time threatened to wreck this happiness, and Strauss has found in the occurrence a theme for his newest opera. This theme was worked up into a libretto by Hermann Bahr. Strauss, however, was not satisfied with the original draft. His criticism of it was that in it his wife had not been treated with the necessary consideration and sympathy. Solely for this reason, he remodeled the entire text.

The opera opens with a quartet by members of the card party at which the telegram was delivered.

AT ONE side are two large cameras, and between them a powerful light. You sit in a little red chair on a platform at the other side of the room; a tall young Englishman snaps his fingers, and the light, shot through a screen, streaks your face with numberless vertical lines of shadow. The cameras click, and you put on your hat and walk out.

Two or three days later a messenger boy brings you a large package. With your family gathered respectfully about, you open it, and there, sculptured in what you are assured is deathless bronze, is John Henry Perkins, down to the last wrinkle and furrow caused by a tax-gathering Government.

The first of the next month, of course, there comes a bill, $250 for a bronze cast. Plaster is considerably less and duplicates cost very little. Medallions, once the original is made, can be struck off for less than a dollar apiece.

Between you (smiling nervously in the little red chair) and the finished bronze is a huge steel machine, which, the day I saw it, was industriously turning out a faithful likeness of the last sitter, Douglas Fairbanks. It is a mechanical sculpturing device, the invention of Howard M. Edmunds, an Englishman, and a former Captain in the Second Scots Guards, decorated by the King with the Military Cross.

He calls the machine the cameograph, and with it he makes exact mechanical relief reproductions in bronze, plaster, ivory, anything, of your face. There are four such machines in existence—two in his American studio at 80 West Fortieth street, in New York, in charge of his associate, Capt. Ernest Chandler, and two in London.

In the New York studio you can see copies of some of his work—Mary Pickford, Lady Diana Manners and Samuel Chipman, from the theater; smiling old Emil Coue, Anton Lang from Oberammergau, George Christian, secretary to President Harding; Irvin Cobb, Carruthers Ewing, Ambrose Swasey and the blond Jesse L. Livermore, who gave copies of his bust to all his friends last Christmas.

Howard M. Edmunds, former Captain in the British Army, who invented mechanical sculpturing device.

Before the war, Edmunds was a mechanical engineer. He served for five years, and after the armistice was stationed at Cologne, near a ruined cemetery. One day he idly watched the shadows of an iron fence around the cemetery on a shattered statue which had once marked a grave. The uprights of the fence, he saw, were rigidly straight, but their shadows, as they wandered across the old sculpture, followed every curve and surface. Edmunds ceased to look idly at the cemetery, at best a gloomy object, and did some hard thinking. He was demobilized and went home to astonish his father by painting the old gentleman's face with parallel lines. When he had him arrayed like King Philip of Pequots, Edmunds would anxiously survey him from every possible angle. Then once more he would return to his T-square and drawing board.

Edmunds worked at his invention for three years. Then he exhibited a little bas-relief of his father, and, about 18 months ago, read a paper before the Royal Society of Arts, containing a large number of sculptors, who saw their livelihood being snatched away before their eyes.

The powerful light, Edmunds explained, shines through a screen containing from 60 to 100 vertical lines to the inch, according to the proposed size of the finished sculpture. From behind the light, the subject appears to be staring out from a particularly well-barred jail. But seen from an angle, these lines follow every contour of the subject's face. Two photographs are now taken, one from each side, each a three-quarters view.

After the camera plates are developed, Edmunds said, one line will be found near the center of each plate which will be the exact opposite of one on the other plate. Each plate is used for the side of the face it shows best, up to that line.

The plates are now placed in the machine, which has been built after Edmunds' patents. In the center of the machine is a block of plaster, across which moves a swiftly revolving drill. At the front of the machine are placed the camera plates, under a powerful microscope which the operator focuses on one of the lines. As the operator guides the microscope along the line, the moving drill bites more or less deeply into the plaster.

After the operator has guided the microscope along some 450 lines—the average for a camera plate—the drill has cut away an exact reproduction of the face of the sitter.

That's all there is to the process. The operator goes to a movie to rest his eyes, the tiny ridges between the 450 paths cut by the whirling drill are smoothed away, a casting is made, and John Henry Perkins is placed on the bookcase for the admiration if his great-grandchildren.

Some day Edmunds hopes to invent a way by which the drill will follow the lines on the plate automatically, and dispense entirely with the human equation, typified by the squint-eyed operator. As yet, too, hair, unless it is heavily powdered, cannot be reproduced, because shadows on hair do not photograph well. So little Emil Coue's goatee had to be touched in by hand.

To make a complete bust, it is necessary to make a sculpture, in the round, of the face, and another of the back of the head, and then fit them together. All these are details which Edmunds is confident of soon clearing away.

Edmunds' invention met with immediate response from the commercially minded, and the Cameograph Co. was formed to exploit it. The best the art critics could find to say for it was that it was "ingenious," and the critic of the London Observer took one peek, muttered "abominable" and fled.

"What is to become of the dignity of art," they exclaimed, "if portrait busts can be turned out like door knobs?" All the arguments which seemed so fresh when used against the photograph, and only slightly moth-eaten against the movies, were republished, out after another in the London newspapers.

LONE BANDIT'S $15,000 DIAMOND ROBBERY IN SMOKING CAR

One of the boldest exploits in criminal history occurred on a fast-moving train when youth, who looked like a farmer's lad, suddenly confronted salesman, one of a dozen passengers. Demanding "them diamonds," robber immediately struck victim over the head with a slungshot and fired four shots from revolver, wounding him, while other passengers hid under seats. Then assailant pulled bell rope and jumped from train as it slowed down. Shrewd detective work to trace the guilty man :: ::

By CLEVELAND MOFFETT.

THERE were 13 men in the smoker of a train on the Sioux City & Pacific Railroad when it drew out of Omaha at 6 o'clock on Friday evening, Nov. 4, 1887, and started on its eastward run. Among these 13, sitting about half way down the aisle, enjoying a good cigar, was Mr. W. C. Pollock of New York, a traveling salesman for W. L. Pollock & Co. of the same city, dealers in diamonds.

In the inside pocket of his vest he carried $15,000 worth of uncut diamonds, while a leather satchel on the seat beside him contained a quantity of valuable stones in settings.

On the front seat of the car, just behind the stove, sat a stolid-looking young man, who would have passed for a farmer's lad. He seemed scarcely over 20, smooth shaven, and a stranger would have put him down as a rather stupid, inoffensive fellow. Compared with Mr. Pollock, he was slighter in build, although an inch or so taller.

As he sat there staring at the stove the passenger in the seat behind him, J. H. Shaw, an Omaha well-digger, a bluff, hearty man of social instincts, tried to draw him into conversation, but the young fellow only shook his head sulkily, and the well digger relapsed into silence. Presently, as the train was approaching California Junction, the young man on the front seat rose and started down the aisle. Curiously enough, he now wore a full beard of black hair five or six inches long.

No one paid any attention to him until he stopped at Mr. Pollock's seat, drew a revolver, and said, loud enough for everyone in the car to hear him:

"Give me them diamonds."

Then, without waiting for a reply, he shifted the revolver to his left hand, drew a slungshot from his coat pocket, and struck Mr. Pollock over the head such a heavy blow that the bag of the slungshot burst, and the shot itself fell to the floor. Then he said again: "Give me them diamonds."

Realizing that the situation was desperate, Mr. Pollock took out his pocketbook and handed it to his assailant, saying:

"I have only a hundred dollars; here it is."

Flinging back the pocketbook as if unworthy of his attention, the man coolly aimed his revolver at Mr. Pollock's right shoulder and fired. Then he aimed at the left shoulder and fired. Both bullets hit, and were followed by two more, which went whizzing by the diamond merchant's head on either side, missing him, perhaps by accident, but probably by design, as the men were not three feet apart.

By this time the other people in the car had disappeared under the seats like rats into their holes. To all intents and purposes Mr. Pollock was alone with his assailant. The latter evidently knew where the diamonds were secreted, for, ripping open his victim's vest, he drew out the leather wallet in which they were [illegible] and started [illegible] into his pocket.

Wounded though he was, Mr. Pollock now grappled with the thief, who, using the butt of his revolver as a cudgel, brought down fearful blows on Pollock's head. The latter, however, getting into the aisle, fought the robber up and down the car, but a crushing blow at last left him senseless on the floor.

[illegible]

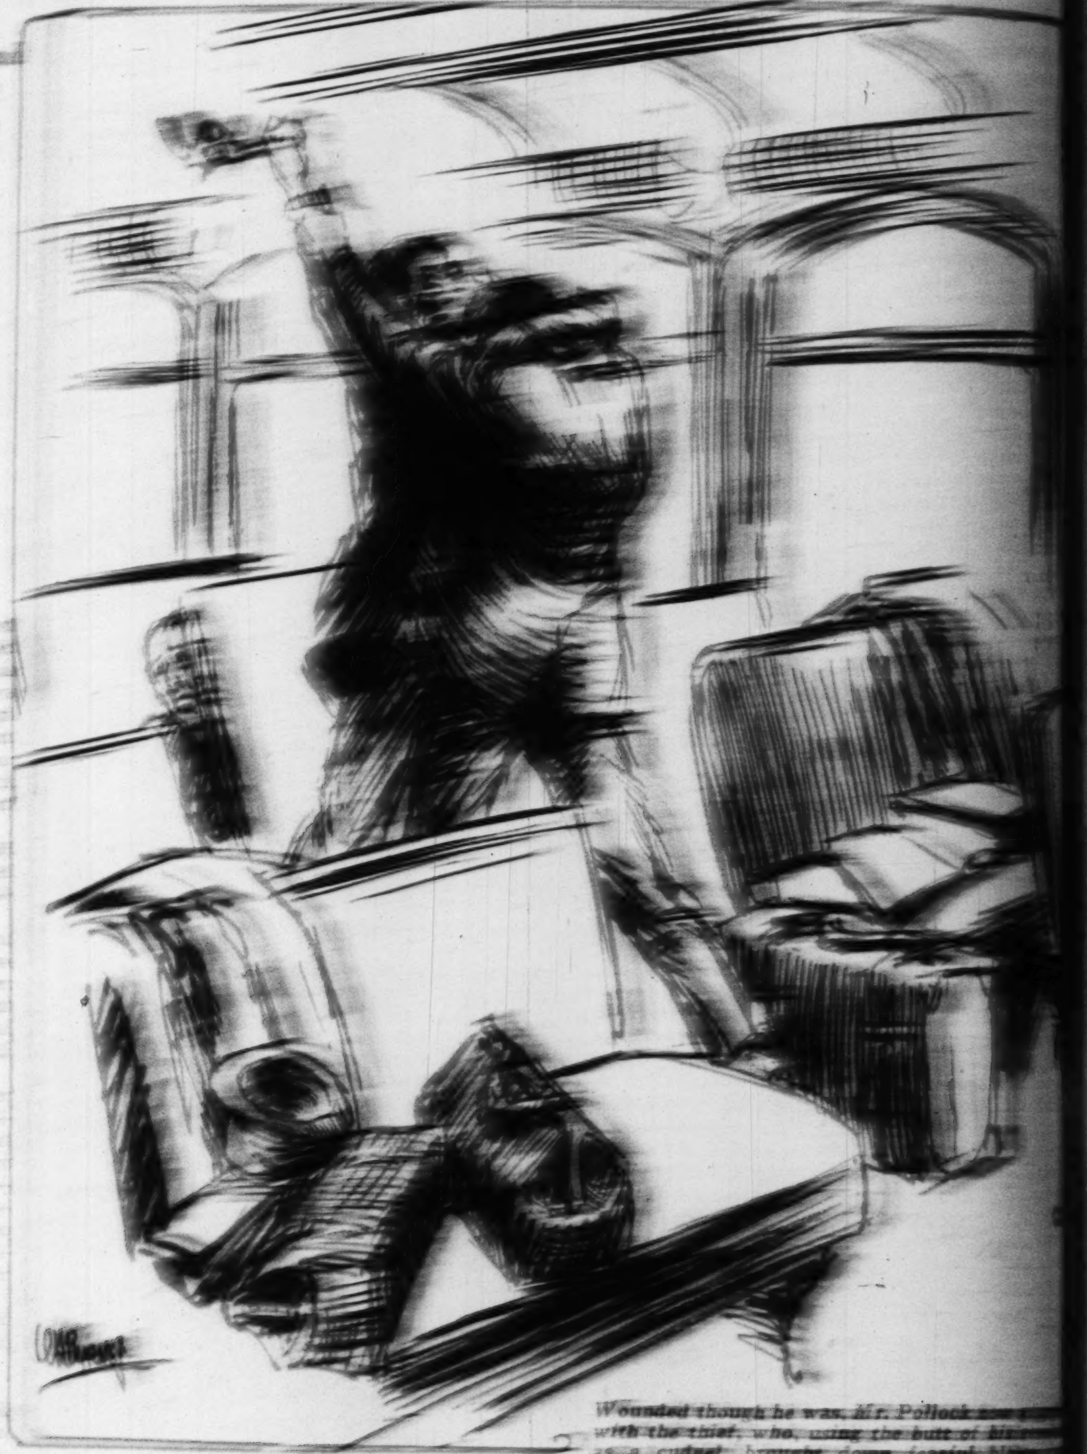
Shortly afterwards, in the general consternation and terror inspired by the young fellow, the conductor, instead of holding the train to pursue the thief, signaled the engineer to go ahead, and no effort was made for a capture until the train reached California Junction, several miles farther on. Meanwhile, the panic-stricken passengers recovered, at their leisure, their composure and their seats.

Had but one of his fellow travelers gone to the assistance of Mr. Pollock, the robber might easily have been overpowered. As it was, he all but murdered his man, plundered him of his diamonds, and escaped without the slightest interference. When his pistol was picked up, near the spot where he left the train, it was found that in the struggle the cylinder had caught, so that it would have been impossible to discharge the two chambers remaining loaded.

Thus 11 able-bodied men were held in a state of abject terror by one slender lad, who at the last was practically unarmed.

At California Junction the wounded diamond merchant was carried from the train, and that same night taken back to Omaha. Mr. Pollock, being a member of the Jewelers' Protective Union, a rich and powerful organization, established for the protection of jewelry salesmen against thieves, was entitled to its aid.

When the detectives reached the scene of the robbery, the robber had vanished as completely as if he had been whisked off to another planet. To be sure, farmers in the neighborhood brought rumors of the stealing of horses, of a strange man sleeping in the woods and of a desperate looking character seen limping along the road. But all this came to nothing except to establish what seemed probable, that the diamond thief had fled back to Omaha. A patient and exhaustive search in Omaha resulted in nothing. The man was gone, and the diamonds were gone, [illegible]



Wounded though he was, Mr. Pollock now g with the thief, who, using the butt of his r as a cudgel, brought down fearful blow Pollock's head.

What made the case more difficult was certainty as to the robber's description; of the passengers testified to one thing, to another. The black beard was a cause sion; only one witness besides Mr. Pollock bered that the man wore such a beard. Mr. however, was positive as to this particular seemed as if he ought to know. It was also sible to decide, from conflicting statements, the robber had a mustache or not, and whether dark or light in color.

The fact is, the passengers had been so frightened at the time of the assault that the ibility of their testimony was much to be qu

Mr. Pollock reported that for several vious to the robbery he had suspected that being followed. many times before declaring war to the death upon 11 men in a narrow car, on a swiftly moving train.

This was surely no novice in crime, reasoned Mr. Pinkerton, but a man whose record would already show deeds of the greatest daring; a brave fellow, though a bad one. And even among the well-known, experienced criminals there must be very few who were capable of this deed.

Mr. Pinkerton, therefore, set himself to studying the bureau's records and rogues' gallery to first pick out these few. Page after page of photographs were turned over, drawer after drawer of records was searched through, and at last a dozen or more men were decided upon as sufficiently pre-eminent to merit consideration in connection with the present case.

Photographs of these dozen or so were speedily struck off and submitted by the detectives to all the men who had been in the smoking car at the time of the robbery, to the conductor and the trainmen, to other passengers, to farmers and others who might have seen the robber while making his escape, and to various people in Omaha.

The result was startling. Conductor D. M. Ashmore, without hesitation, selected from the dozen or more portraits one as that of the robber. Mr. Shaw, the Omaha well digger, who had sat just behind the robber, selected the same photograph, and was positive it pictured the man he had tried to talk to. Other passengers also picked out this photograph, as did various persons who had caught sight of the man as he escaped.

The portrait thus chosen by common accord was that of Frank Bruce, one of the most desperate burglars of the younger generation in the country, and it seemed only necessary now to find Bruce, to have the problem solved. Many days were spent, and hundreds of dollars, in searching for him. Dozens of cities were visited, and every conceivable effort made to get on his track; but it was not until his pursuers were almost weary of the chase that he was finally discovered living quietly in Chicago, on Cottage Grove avenue, near Thirty-sixth street, where he was operating with another high-class burglar, "Billy" Boyce.

Requisition papers were at once procured from the Governor of Iowa on the Governor of Illinois, and men were sent to take Bruce into custody, when the "shadows" reported that he and Boyce had left for Milwaukee, where, of course, the requisition papers were valueless. Fortunately, that same night they attempted a burglary in Milwaukee, for which they were arrested and held for 90 days. This gave the Chicago detectives abundant time to identify Bruce as the missing robber.

Mr. Pinkerton himself went at once to Milwaukee, saw Bruce in the jail, heard his story, verified its essential facts, and within two days, to his own complete disappointment, and in spite of himself, had proved a complete alibi for Bruce. To satisfy himself in this connection, Mr. Pinkerton brought Conductor Ashmore and Mr. Shaw to Milwaukee, and pointed Bruce out to them; and, after looking carefully at him, both men declared they had made a mistake in choosing his portrait, and that Bruce was not the robber.

With Bruce clear, the detectives were again without a suspect, and almost without a clew. Just here, however, Mr. Pinkerton recalled that on a trip to the West some three years previous, to investigate the case of a man arrested at Reno, Nev., on a charge of holding up a faro bank, and while stopping over in Salt Lake City, Utah, he had run across some sporting men in that city with whom he was well acquainted, and on his telling them where he was going and what his business was, one of them, whom Mr. Pinkerton had known for years, had said:

"Why, the man at Reno is innocent. The men who committed that robbery are in this city. One of them is a smooth-faced boy, about 20 years of age, and the other is a heavy-set, dark-complexioned fellow, with a dark mustache. They are the intimate friends and companions of Jack Denton, the well-known gambler of Salt Lake; and only a short time ago, at Salt Lake, they entered a house one night, going in through a rear door, and compelled two ladies, who were just returned from a ball, to give up their diamonds."

Though not interested in this particular robbery, Mr. Pinkerton had mentally jotted down the intimacy of Jack Denton with this class of people; and he recalled it now in connection with the fact that Jack Denton was one of the two gamblers to whom Pollock had exposed his diamonds at the pawnshop in Omaha.

He at once decided to secure definite information in regard to the boy who had been with Denton in Salt Lake three years earlier. Proceeding immediately to Salt Lake City, and making cautious inquiries, he learned that the boy in question, since he first heard of him, had been arrested and convicted of robbery at Ogden, Utah, and sentenced to one year's term in the penitentiary.

An investigation at the penitentiary disclosed that the young man had given the name of James Burke, had served out his sentence under that name and had been released about one month previous to the Pollock robbery.

Denton, in the meantime, had left Salt Lake and gone to Omaha, there to make his home. The boy, Burke, argued the detective, had naturally followed his friend to that place. An accurate description of Burke was got from the records of the Utah Penitentiary, and some idea of him and his friends was derived from the officials of the prison. But where to find him in the whole great West was a question.

Inquiries at Salt Lake developed the further fact that Burke had had one intimate friend there, a man named Marshall P. Hooker. Hooker had now, however, left Salt Lake and removed to Denver. For a man of his class, Hooker was unusually talkative, and was known by crooks throughout the country as "Windy" Hooker. Plans were made for keeping a watch on him and on Jack Denton, in the hope, by shadowing the movements of these two, of ultimately locating Burke.

Through the free talk of Hooker, reported back to the detective, it was soon learned that Burke was known by the alias of "Kid" McCoy, and that he had recently been operating on the Pacific coast in "holding up" faro banks, and had also been concerned in two large robberies, one at Lincoln, Neb., and the other at Sacramento, Cal. His whereabouts at that time, however, was unknown.

Much time had now elapsed since the robbery, and the sensation caused by it had died out. Jack Denton and his friends seldom spoke of it, and Hooker never spoke of it unless the subject was introduced to him. Both men were extremely shy of strangers, and it was almost impossible for a detective to draw them out, as anybody who introduced the subject of the robbery was at once looked upon with suspicion. For the purpose of creating further talk upon the subject, Mr. Pinkerton caused to be inserted in the Omaha papers an advertisement, as follows:

"Five hundred dollars will be paid for any information leading up to the identification of the party who robbed William G. Pollock on the Sioux City & Pacific train, Nov. 4, 1892.

"WILLIAM A. PINKERTON,
"Paxton House, Omaha, Neb."

This at once attracted the attention of the local newspaper men, and when Mr. Pinkerton arrived in Omaha he was interviewed by all the papers in the city in regard to the robbery. Thus interest in the robbery was at once renewed. Denton and the other persons under suspicion commenced talking of the matter again, none more freely than Hooker.

The latter was then in Denver. Mr. Pinkerton instructed James McParland, Denver superintendent of the Pinkerton agency, to send for him and say to him that he had understood that he (Hooker) could throw some light on the robbery, and that a large sum of money would be paid to him for the information he gave. Mr. Pinkerton explained to Mr. McParland that Hooker would lie to him and endeavor to get the money by giving him false information, but to listen patiently to what he had to say and lead him on as far as possible without giving him any money. This done, Mr. Pinkerton further predicted that Hooker would go back to his cronies and boast of the way he was fooling Pinkerton and how much money he expected to get; and that eventually, through his boasting, he would prove the means of locating Burke, alias McCoy.

And so, precisely, it fell out. Some of Hooker's companions were Pinkerton detectives, although Hooker did not know them as such, and they in time reported back that Burke was really the Pollock robber; that after committing the robbery he had gone back to Omaha, and from there had gone to Denver. From Denver he went to Salt Lake and visited a prisoner in the Salt Lake Penitentiary with whom he was intimate, gave this prisoner some money, and went from Salt Lake west to the Pacific coast.

Mr. Pinkerton next instructed that the record be examined for daring "hold-ups" that might have occurred in the country lately traversed by Burke.

It was then found that a faro bank at Colorado City, a small place between Manitou Springs and Colorado Springs, had been entered late at night by a masked robber, who compelled the dealer and other persons to hold up their hands, took the money in the drawer, and escaped; that later on a similar robbery had been perpetrated at San Bernardino, Cal.; that later still the poolrooms of James Malone, a noted gambler at Tacoma, Wash., had been treated in the same manner; and, finally, that a pane of glass in a jewelry store at Sacramento had been broken in and a tray of diamonds snatched from the window by a daring thief. And all of these deeds, Mr. Pinkerton learned ultimately, through Hooker's talk, had been done by Burke.

The watch on Denton at Omaha developed little, if anything, except that a close companionship existed between him and the Omaha pawnbroker.

During the summer of 1893, learning that an intimate friend of Burke's, a burglar who had been in prison with him in the Utah Penitentiary, was confined in jail at Georgetown, Tex., Mr. Pinkerton decided to go and interview this man, and see if he could get any trace, through him, of the robber. In the meantime he instructed the detectives at Omaha and Denver to keep a particularly close watch on Jack Denton and Hooker.

On Mr. Pinkerton's arrival at Austin, Tex., he found awaiting him dispatches from Supt. McParland of the Denver agency, stating that through Hooker's talk they had learned that "Kid" McCoy, or Burke, had been arrested at Eagle, Colo., with a kit of burglar tools in his possession, and was then in jail at Leadville, Colo.

Mr. Pinkerton at once telegraphed to have Conductor Ashmore and Mr. Shaw, the well-digger, go to Leadville and see if they could identify the prisoner. Word was also sent to New York for Mr.

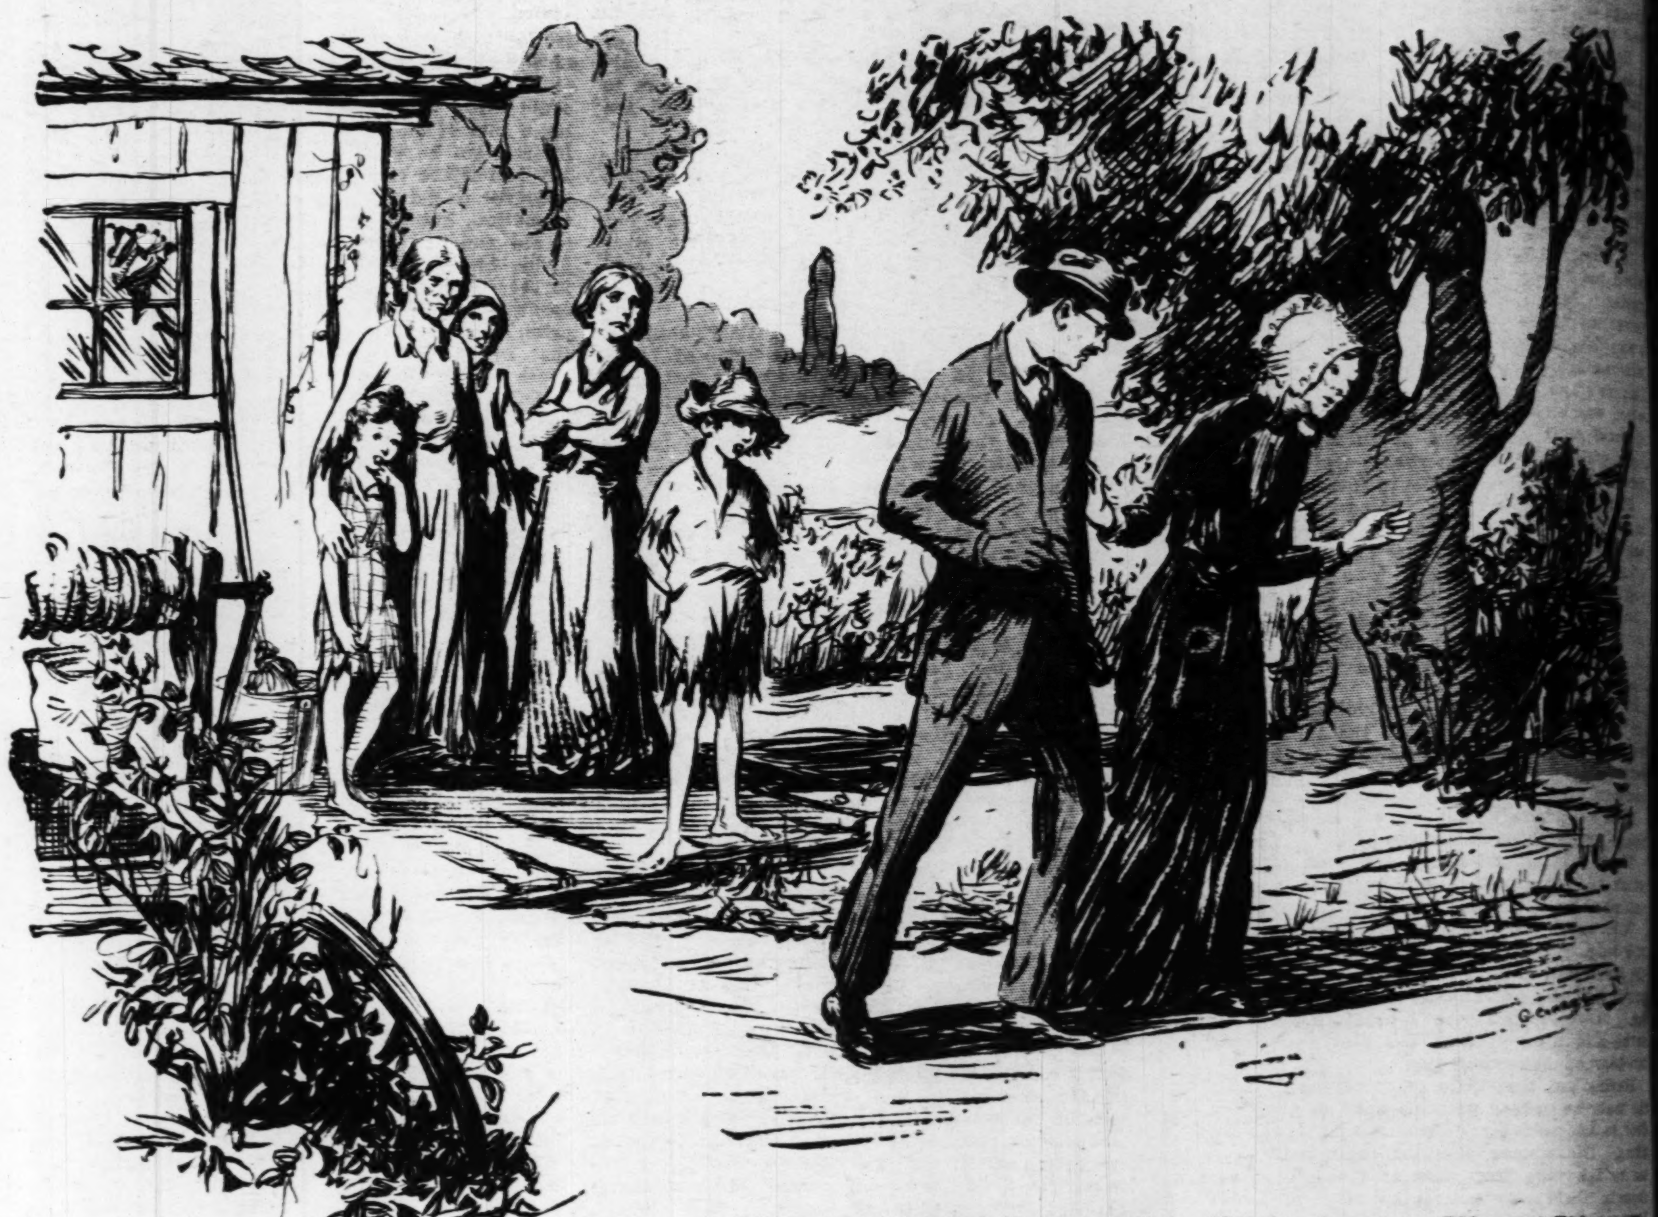
On the Swamp Road

by Will Payne



"Have y' seen the tracks?" she demanded. "I'll show 'em to y'. This way! This way!"

THE farmhouse had never been painted and was now black with age. To keep out the winter cold it was banked with dirt about the base. At one corner the spring rains, pouring down from a broken eaves-trough, had washed away the dirt embankment, disclosing the rotten ends of the perpendicular siding boards. At the other corner of the north front was a gnarled honeysuckle vine, two-thirds dead. Its spreading branches, leafless or bearing only scant and sickly verdure, clung to the warped sideboards like the gaunt arms of an old hag embracing the ruinous house. One grimy pane was broken out of the window in the west gable and the hole had been stuffed with rags.

For a long time debt and drink and sin had blasted this place, and now there was something else. Under the hot morning sun, three women and two children stood in the bare dooryard, visibly huddling together, blanched and agape. They stared now at the house, now at the two empty automobiles standing by the roadside—one of them a long, gray, five-passenger car, the other a red two-passenger roadster. Sometimes, with an excess of horror, they looked over at a skinny old crone who hopped and peered about the two automobiles with an uncanny excitement. One of the children was a red-headed, freckled boy of 10, whose long legs protruded from frayed breeches that failed by some inches to reach his knobby knees. His mouth was open as though it had been frozen that way.

Coming out of the house, Skinner noticed this gaping boy first of all. In his rapid walk toward the red automobile he even looked around and noticed a bony horse standing with his head over the rickety barnyard fence and looking on as though it, too, were speculating upon what had happened. Then he saw the skinny crone behind his machine, watching him with snappy little eyes—as beady and nervous as those of a rat—and he apprehended at once that she burned with a grewsome excitement. Her snappy eyes watched his advance a moment; then she darted at him.

"Have y' seen the tracks?" she demanded. "I'll show 'em to y'. This way! This way!" Her weazen hand clutched at his coatsleeve and she nodded her old head at him.

Skinner thought of an unclean old bird as she bobbed along the roadside—keeping a little in advance of him, in her febrile eagerness. At the lilac thicket she halted, stooping and pointing her lean arm and extended index finger in a rigid line. The tracks of an automobile showed plainly on the grass there. At a glance Skinner saw that a machine had drawn up in the cover of the lilac thicket, then backed away to turn around.

"He turned it around," said the crone, her beady eyes snapping at Skinner. "See yere!" Stooping, with her arm and forefinger extended, she followed the curving track which the machine had made in backing and turning.

"Backed plumb into that!" she said, triumphantly, and even before she pointed to them, Skinner noticed that twigs and branches of the young tree were broken. He reached up and picked a thread of black cloth from a broken branch. Plainly, the top of the car had been up and the collision with the tree had torn it.

"Backed plumb around! Plum around!" she said, and swung her skinny old arms in a half-circle, as though she were swinging the car around. "Plumb around!" she repeated, repeating the gesture also. Skinner found it peculiarly grewsome.

"I see," he murmured, and started abruptly across the road toward his car.

In following the long gray car out from town he had taken most of the curves on two wheels, at risk of his neck. Even now, after 10 minutes spent in the farmhouse, the deed had only just accomplished itself. It was so recent that it still oozed and quivered under the bright morning sun.

That came to him as he drove away, and he shuddered. Partly from a mere instinct of flight, he jammed his foot savagely against the accelerator. But there was a professional reason for speed, too; and as the little red car leaped away his shocked brain began composing the story as it would appear in the extra. It would be the first extra Allentown had ever experienced, and he wondered how much of a hit that metropolitan touch would make.

A wiry and undersized man was Skinner, tanned a good leathery brown. There were a few gray hairs in his bristling, intractable mustache, and his gray eyes studied the back-reeling road through a pair of round, gold-bowed spectacles. A faded cloth hat was jammed down on his solid head. He wore a limp shirt, with a rusty little tie under the limp turn-down collar and an office-stained alpaca jacket over that. Manifold adventures had enriched him little, except in experience; but as usual he was boyishly eager over this new adventure of the Allentown Gazette.

A quick side glance showed that the speedometer was registering 35 miles an hour, and when he looked back to the road two galloping horsemen had popped up out of the ground. He recognized the grizzly bearded one on the left and nodded, as he flashed past—with a grim little smile, for the man carried a repeating shotgun, and Skinner approved of that. Under certain circumstances buckshot was very effective.

Two minutes later he slowed up with a frown. Coming out, he had simply trailed the gray car over an unknown road. He knew the general direction, of course; but just ahead a road branched to the left. Should he turn there? By general direction it ought to be his way; but, in any event, it could hardly take him far out. He swung into the left branch and jammed down the accelerator again. It was very good going until he passed a small white farmhouse; then the gravel ceased and it became a dirt road.

In a few minutes the ground sloped down and the dirt road resolved itself into a rutty wagon track. The road grew worse. Overhanging bushes on both sides lashed the churning car. The heat and the dank smell became stronger. Obviously, he was in a swamp. Now and then through the bushes, in fact, he could see where a ditch had been run on both sides of the road in some long-abandoned attempt at drainage. It was impossible to turn here. The prospect of backing up a mile through that tortuous, rutty road was not inviting. He pushed on, hoping to come either to a better road or at least into a space where he could turn around. So far the road had been dry and baked hard as iron. Now it dropped into lush ground that yielded spongily and with a squashy sound under the wheels. Three rods ahead the miserable road curved out of sight beneath overhanging bushes.

With a bitter thought that the road couldn't be worse, he shifted into low gear, churned through the screen of overhanging bushes at the curve and almost immediately stopped the car, every nerve in his body tingling.

A rod ahead of him the road was blocked by an automobile with the top up. The back of the car was scratched and the top torn in half a dozen places. Gaping at this apparition, Skinner's first thought—which came with a deep pang—was that he had no weapon. His second thought, which came fast on the heels of the first, was to shift the driving lever into reverse position for backing. He was doing that when a man stepped out of the bushes and laid a right hand on the foredoor of the car, as though he were taking possession of it. "Git out," said the man.

He was a burly person, with broad shoulders and a deep chest. Although he wore a loose, faded, gray coat, one might see that his waist, encircled by a rusty leather belt that held up his frayed trousers—was smaller than his chest. He had lean loins, and in comparison with the mighty chest his legs looked almost spindling. His collarless calico shirt was open at the throat, showing a hairy chest and the base of a thick neck.

In other circumstances, Skinner might have admired his figure and guessed that he was a prizefighter. Just now he could see scarcely anything except the man's face a foot from his own. It was a swarthy, animal face and there was a peculiar meaning upon it—in the cat eyes that glittered into Skinner's and on the lips that made a straight line which was bisected by a diagonal white scar. That diagonal scar across the long, straight line of the lips seemed to belong to the face like a natural feature of it.

That is what Skinner noticed—and the pockets in the man's loose, faded, gray coat. The man's hand was thrust into the left pocket, where it grasped an automatic revolver. From the gaping right-hand pocket a hammer protruded. It was clear to Skinner that on the approach of his noisy car the man had taken that hammer out of the tool kit of the stalled car and put it in his right-hand coat pocket, as though he had an idea of using it, and that idea was implicit in the peculiar look on the man's swarthy face. Implicit in that look also were the things Skinner had seen in the weather-beaten farmhouse. They had been beaten with a hammer.

"Get out where?" said Skinner, aimlessly, as these things swam through his mind.

There was no mistaking the cold ferocity with which the man replied, opening his lips just wide enough to emit the sounds: "Git out o' the car."

"Oh, sure!" Skinner replied, cheerfully. "Devil of a road, aint it?" He shut off the engine, threw the lever into neutral and set the hand brake—not pausing in the operations, and certainly not hurrying. "Live around here?" he inquired, cheerfully, as he slid nimbly along the seat and opened the foredoor on the other side.

Having put that little space between himself and the man, he paused with his hand on the open foredoor to add sociably: "I'm driving through from Indiana. Old woman at a log cabin back there told me to take the first turn to the left. Guess she thought she'd play a trick on me. Rottenest road I ever saw in my life.

"It's rotten luck, too," Skinner complained; "rotten luck." He stepped down to the weedy roadside, and continued: "I wanted to make a place they call Allentown by 8:30 sure. I'd like to wring that old scarecrow's neck for sending me off here!"

He was, of course, merely fighting for time and trying to think up something. "Your car break down?" he added, neighborly, as he stepped over in front of the man and looked mildly up into his swarthy face.

By contrast his stature seemed that of a boy. As he looked into the sinister eyes, where a peculiar meaning lay, he felt to his marrow that there was going to be no delay, and he was inspired to say, with a confident little smile and nod: "Fact is, I got into some trouble last night; been driving like the devil ever since 10 o'clock. I guess they're after me." He thought the man's eyes wavered a hair's breadth, and he added, with another confidential little nod: "I shot a man. Can't we get out of this?"

Plainly, then, the man hesitated, with a slight scowl. "Know anything about a car?" he asked.

"You bet I do!" Skinner asserted, confidently. "I was in that business once."

"If you git my car to goin'," said the man, in his peculiar manner of speaking, which was like a curse, "you can follow me out in your car." It was an offer—a promise, whatever that might be good for.

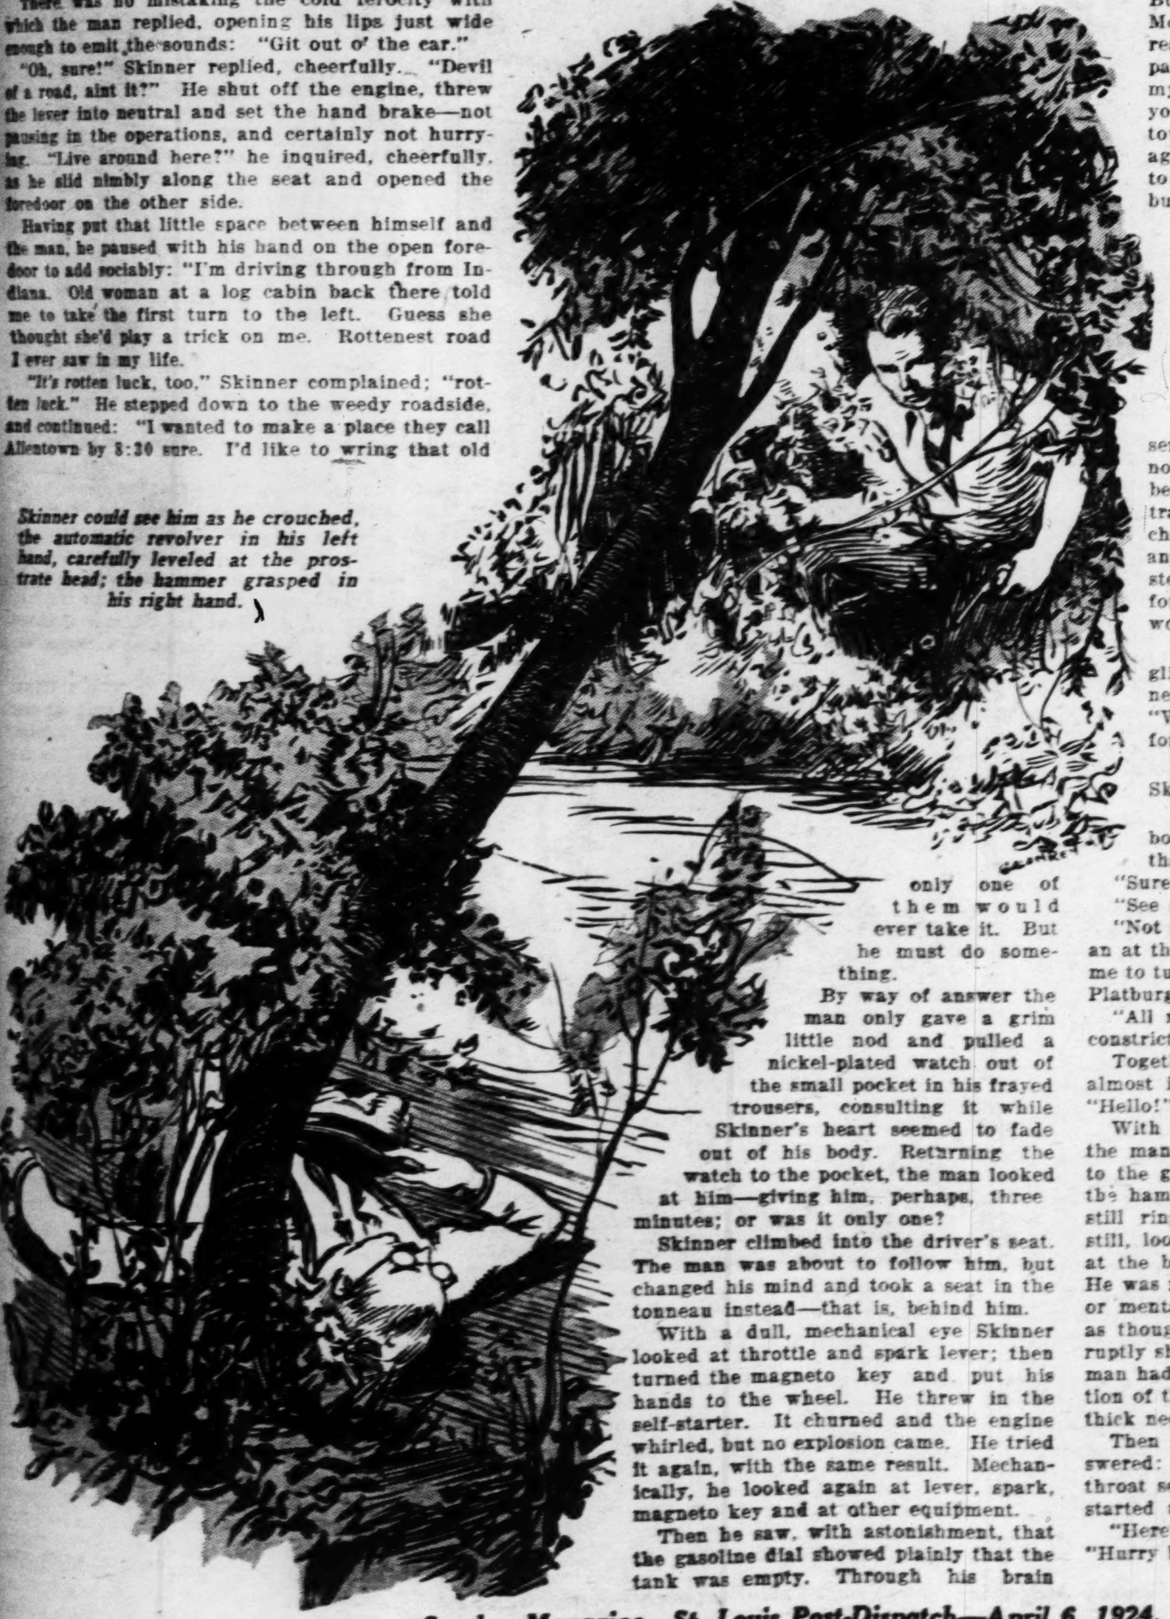
"Sure!" said Skinner, cheerfully; "let's have a look at it." And lifting the hood to look at the engine, he continued: "Mighty good car, too. I know it like a book. Used to have the agency for it. Trouble is, it's too high priced for farmers."

And he rattled on while his hands fussed pointlessly with spark plug and carburetor.

He must gain all the time he could—but not push it a second too far—for the minutes in which this man might hope to escape were running out. So far as his scant knowledge went the engine seemed sound.

"Looks all right. Let's give her a try," he said, shutting the hood.

Starting the stalled car might be as bad for him as failing to start it, for he had a leaden notion that once there was a clear way out of the swamp only one of them would ever take it. But he must do something.



Skinner could see him as he crouched, the automatic revolver in his left hand, carefully leveled at the prostrate head; the hammer grasped in his right hand.

By way of answer the man only gave a grim little nod and pulled a nickel-plated watch out of the small pocket in his frayed trousers, consulting it while Skinner's heart seemed to fade out of his body. Returning the watch to the pocket, the man looked at him—giving him, perhaps, three minutes; or was it only one?

Skinner climbed into the driver's seat. The man was about to follow him, but changed his mind and took a seat in the tonneau instead—that is, behind him.

With a dull, mechanical eye Skinner looked at throttle and spark lever; then turned the magneto key and put his hands to the wheel. He threw in the self-starter. It churned and the engine whirled, but no explosion came. He tried it again, with the same result. Mechanically, he looked again at lever, spark, magneto key and at other equipment.

Then he saw, with astonishment, that the gasoline dial showed plainly that the tank was empty. Through his brain flitted the surprised and contemptuous thought: "Here's a man running for his life with an empty tank and not knowing it!" He was about to call out, with a touch of indignation, "Why, you're out of juice!" In fact, he half turned his head for that purpose. But immediately he looked back again; applied the self-starter twice more; then slipped quickly to the other end of the seat, saying: It won't go!" at the same time springing from the car.

"I tell you what," he added, as the man was getting out of the car, "We've got to turn my car around and beat it back to the main road. It's the only way. You and I together can swing it around."

He supposed it was exactly what the man had in mind; but it would gain him three minutes—and his help in lifting the car around ought to be worth that little respite, especially as the man must turn the car before he could leave, unless he chose the slow and difficult process of backing up.

"All right," said the man, grimly, and together they started up the road to the red car.

But Skinner walked ahead and so crossed over to the right-hand side of the road. Thus when they turned behind the car to lift it he would be at the man's left and his right hand would be close to the gaping pocket in which the automatic revolver lay. It was a desperate chance, but that was better than no chance at all. He kept talking. He was talking as they took positions behind the car, and he thought: "When we stoop I will grab for it."

But before they stooped the man very deliberatly took the revolver out of his left-hand pocket and put it in the right-hand one, looking down into Skinner's eyes then with a tigerish little grin—as though some brute instinct had sensed a danger.

"Guess you'd like that gun," he suggested, with a ghastly sort of grin. A horrible joke seemed stirring in his mind and Skinner suddenly smelled blood upon him. He must have grinned that way when he was at work back there on the main road.

"Look here!" said Skinner, promptly, "I don't know who you are or what you're doing down here. But I know you want to get out. My name's Morrison and I'm from Shelbyville, Ind. You'll read about me if you get an Indianapolis newspaper this morning. I've got to get out to save my neck. Now, I know a way to get out and you don't. Listen to this: I came through a town called Turner Junction about an hour ago. I know a fellow there. He advised me to strike for a little flag station called Platburg and swing on a freight there and so get up to Chicago. This red car of mine is pretty easy to follow and I knew I'd have to drop it pretty soon. He told me the road to Platburg—not used very much and most of the way through the woods. I ought to have turned five miles back; but, like a fool, I decided to keep on to Allentown. The woods road looked sort of rough and I thought I could make Allentown and catch a passenger train. But it's too late for Allentown now. They'd be pretty sure to have word there before we could make it, and the passenger train would be gone. Platburg is the only chance I see, and I know the way there. If anybody's looking for you," he added, his eyes steadily upon the man's, "it won't be long before they find that car, and this neighborhood won't be healthy."

As the man looked at Skinner an instant his glittering eyes seemed to beat in so that Skinner could feel their impact upon his nerves. "What makes you think somebody's looking for me?" he asked.

"You're pretty particular about that gun," Skinner replied, with a little nod.

The man asked another question, his eyes boring into Skinner's head. "You come along that road?" He pointed south.

"Sure!" Skinner replied, promptly.

"See anybody?" asked the man.

"Not a soul," said Skinner, "except the old woman at the log cabin that I told you about. She told me to turn here. You come with me and we'll make Platburg."

"All right," said the man, grimly; and Skinner's constricted heart expanded exultantly.

Together they stooped to lift, and behind them—almost in their ears, it seemed—a voice shouted: "Hello!"

With the marvelous swiftness of a pouncing cat the man glanced over his shoulder, hurled Skinner to the ground, caught him by the throat and drew the hammer. It all happened while the shout was still ringing in Skinner's ears. He lay perfectly still, looking up through his gold-bowed spectacles at the burly form of death which knelt over him. He was not struggling in the least, either physically or mentally; but lying in a kind of quiet wonder, as though the mechanism of his life had been abruptly shut off, awaiting the blow. He saw that the man had turned his head again to look in the direction of the sound and noted the swelling vein on his thick neck.

Then another voice, some distance away, answered: "Hello, there!" The hand at Skinner's throat sensibly relaxed and the arrested mechanism started up again.

"Here's the track of a car!" called the first voice. "Hurry back to Tetroe's and telephone to watch the Rosita Forbes, born in England 31 years ago, is probably the greatest woman explorer of recent times. It was as the first white woman to cross the Sahara Desert, reach Kufara and gather first-hand information about the much-feared Senussi that she attracted the world's attention. Then she led an expedition to the almost unknown coast of Asir, in Lower Arabia, and quite recently went to Morocco, where she talked with the famous bandit chief, Raisuli, being the first white woman to interview him. These are some of the bigger achievements in a career which has been filled with travels all over the world, including India, where she became an expert tiger shot; Australia, Africa, Japan and China. In 1911 she married Maj. Ronald Forbes of Scotland; during part of the World War drove an ambulance in France, and in 1917 made a trip around the world. In 1919 she journeyed from Morocco to Tripoli by camel, and witnessed the Jerusalem riots of 1920. The article which follows, the first of a series by Mrs. Forbes which will appear in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine, describes a picturesque adventure in Syria.

By ROSITA FORBES.

ALL day long we had been driving in an armored car across the desert. Towards sunset the land swelled into faint waves and ridges, whose shadows were magnified in pools of mirage.

"We are very near the village," said our Bedouin guide. "Allah grant that they do not take us for strangers and kill us."

The New Jersey chauffeur lent me by Feisul, then King of Syria, smiled. "I guess Americans don't die as easily as all that," he said, cheerfully.

"But, alas! I am not an American."

The man looked at me, amused. "I guess I never heard of a woman dying before an American, either," he remarked.

One of the Arab guard interposed: "Let my friend put on a kufiya to show that he is one of us," he suggested.

The chauffeur submitted to being disguised in a cream-colored headdress, the end of which he wound about his mouth so that only his good-humored blue eyes distinguished him from his companions. He threw in the clutch quickly. "We'll have to move some." And the car leaped at the desert track as if it were a live thing which it would devour.

The sky was molten as we approached Palmyra and we saw the old Turkish castle as a fantastic etching against a sheet of flame.

Where the hills narrowed to a pass, black tents were scattered among the herd of camels. A woman rode by on a donkey, a child in her arms, and I was reminded of the flight into Egypt.

A boy, nude, but decorated with one enormous earring, and some little girls with coins tied to their front hair, ran to watch us, and a goatherd piped shrilly from a crevice among the rocks.

A moment later I had my first glimpse of the city of Zenobia. Palmyra, famous in the days of Aurelian, who defeated her Queen, is a golden ruin, and the sunset lit each arch and pillar and dyed rose-red the sands of that immortal caravan route to Bagdad. From the Temple of Baal stole dark-robed women with orange flowers in their hair. The boulders came suddenly to life and showed figures in earth-brown mantles, their rifles ready, for this was a year of war, when all Syria fought for her independence, in defiance of Euopean treaties.

"We are from the Sherif—Allah keep you!" shouted the Bedouin, Abdulla.

The hostile murmurs died and we were led into a fortified khan, whose main room overlooked the yard where camels lay beside their scarlet saddles. The floor was strewn with carpets and sheepskins. "God make you strong—you are welcome," sounded from the shadows.

The dust of a long journey caked in my throat, so a man, whose gravity was in keeping with the length of his beard, brought me a bowl of curdled goat's milk and a water pipe with a mouthpiece of amber. We talked Arab politics till a message came from the Sheik summoning us to his house.

In moonlight we stumbled between blind walls, skirting date gardens, ankle deep in mud, until we came to the threshold of Mohamed, son of Saoud, of the lineage of the Prophet, lord of 5000 desert horsemen and beneficent despot of Palmyra.

For a moment I thought we had chanced upon the village school, for a crowd of elfin children swarmed in the court, but the warrior who guided us announced that they were the offspring of our host.

He led us into a room where an old man lay on a pile of mattresses in a corner, his swords, rifles and pipestems hung on the wall behind him and, before him, a brazier with pots of bitter coffee, from which a slave poured mouthfuls for his guests. His voice was weak and sweat poured from his skin.

"I believe it's 'flue' and all my quinine is in the back of beyond," I murmured.

"Take no notice," warned Abdulla. "Would you tell a lion when it is sick?"

Meekly I went forward to crouch on the striped mats beside the Sheik. "Allah give you many sons," he greeted me, and began to talk of war. "Man is born to fight and woman to work," he said. "So it was written before your time or mine."

From outside came the groans of camels as they jerked, protesting, to their knees, and the clatter of dishes where hidden women cooked supper. Inside it was very still except for the rustle of coarse garments as, one by one, the headmen slipped in and arranged themselves in a circle, silent after their first dignified greeting.

The Sheik's voice strengthened as his audience increased, and he raised himself on an arm, so that his great bulk showed beneath the tautened folds of his burnous. "A youth has but one chance to prove his manhood, and that in a raid. The warrior whose face has been whitened (to whiten a man's face means to proclaim his valor in public after a battle) will not lack for a bride. By Allah, if a man does not love his rifles better than his pipes, his women hang a haik over his door and call him a virgin!"

The eyes of the old man burned in hollows, worn by wind and sun and darkened by smeared Kohl. He forgot his fever and there was something wild and unrestrained in the sudden movement which left him leaning against a camel saddle covered with sheepskins.

"It is good that you have come, for when a man talks with a friend, he finds a mirror by may see his own mind. Here in the ly speak—there is so much time for man puts off speech till tomorrow

y last conscious thought was that the chauffeur would be ill if his eyes protruded any more. Then, with one awful gulp, I swallowed the bonne bouche!

Abdulla had considered himself the mother and father of my expedition ever since it and I had been confided to his care by King Feisul. "Remember," he ordered me, sternly, while I struggled with my smile, "you cannot be ill—you must not be ill."

I looked at him dazed, and then the American bent forward.

"A sheep has two eyes," he said, hoarsely, "what is going to happen to the second?"

Some time later the Sheik noticed that I hadn't eaten very much, so he placed a large fowl before me. Undaunted by my lack of appetite, he poured a whole custard pudding over the chicken.

"You eat less than the birds," he said, "so you remain thin. If you stay with me a little while I will make you so fat that you will have no difficulty in getting a good husband."

Tea, flavored with mint, followed the meat. Just as the last Bedouin took his cup, there came a burst of much nearer firing. One by one the headmen rose and, according to their rank, went out unhurried, and I could hear them shuffling in their heelless slippers across the threshold.

"What has your civilization given you?" asked the Sheik, as he signed to the boy crouched beside the brazier. "In my land everything is possible to a man. In yours he is safe. Yet all of us carry our fate on a thread around our necks."

The intermittent firing receded into the distance, while the Sheik talked in the same way, using the same words, as men of his race have done, in black tent or mud-walled dwelling, for 3000 years. He did not interrupt a sentence when a messenger appeared in the doorway, his burnous stained with blood. "Salaam Alekum, son of my brother, what is your news?" he asked, at last, and something swift and fierce flashed between the two men.

ROSITA FORBES.

"Alaikum es salaam," came the answer. "The news is good." And there was no more talk till the newcomer had been served with bitter coffee. Then the Sheik rose with unexpected swiftness and took my arm. "This is not a woman's work," he said. "Come, I will introduce you to my house," and led me to where a throng of women whispered round an open door. "Allah bless your sleep," he murmured, and left me in a room carpeted with rugs from Bokhara, hung with gilt Birmingham mirrors and furnished with an enormous couch, on which hard quilts were piled one upon another.

I was just wondering whether it would be possible to sleep on top of them, as they seemed not to have been disturbed for years, when the Sheik's wives trooped in and sat down on the floor, evidently prepared to watch my movements. There were a dozen of them, of all ages and races. The oldest, white-haired and shriveled, looked like the Mother of Time. The youngest was a child of 13, with apple cheeks, expecting her first baby. I looked into green eyes, brown eyes, dark-rimmed, marvelous green eyes, and wondered how to begin a conversation.

Abdulla's voice came from outside: "Sayeda, have you all your desires?"

"No," I answered, firmly, "I want a bath."

Footsteps crunched across the yard and returned more slowly. The women giggled and pulled their robes of indigo and scarlet across their faces. A bowl like a large breakfast cup was pushed through the door, with a murmured "All that we have is yours," and I was left staring at the exquisite damascened brass of my "bath."

Timidly I refused the crone's offer of a brush, which showed signs of baldness, due to age rather than use, I imagine, since Arab women prefer combs made of wood, and climbed as unobtrusively as possible, onto, not into, the bed.

There was a sigh of disappointment among the audience, but no movement. Gingerly, for fear of disturbing the insect life of the bed, I sat up and made an appropriate speech. "May your night be peaceful as the land your master rules."

Eyes young with hope, tired with age, mystic with motherhood gazed at me expectantly, and suddenly I realized that I was expected to invite some of the harem to share my couch. The choice was wide. While I struggled with a certain embarrassment, a few words of execrable French, uttered by the owner of the bluest eyes, reminded of my host's romance when he had accompanied a Syrian mission to Paris. I beckoned to the speaker to share the repose which I felt would be troubled.

"You are sweet—so sweet," she said, as she curled up beside me, "and tomorrow I will give you a paste that will make you fat—so fat that a man will give many camels for you."

Identifying Bodies by Their Teeth—and a Famous Ca

It was a dentist's testimony which sent a Harvard College teacher to the gallows, 75 years ago—The murderer, a chemist, had worked hard in destroying the corpse of victim, but had neglected to pulverize the teeth—No part of your body is so permanent and so characteristic as these little bits of ivory — Scientist calls them more reliable than finger prints :: ::

By E. E. FREE,
Fellow of American Association for the Advancement of Science.

THERE is probably just one man in all the world who could be certain of identifying your body after you are dead. That man is your dentist.

Your face, the height or shape of your body, the color of your eyes or hair—none of these can be relied upon for identification. In a corpse that has been burned or drowned all these features may have changed or may be unreadable. Other people may resemble you in these superficial characteristics. Many human doubles are difficult to distinguish from one another even during life, let alone after they are dead.

But no other man, dead or living, will ever have teeth that are exactly the same as yours. Nothing that there is about you is so permanently and characteristically your own as are those 32 little bits of ivory that help you to chew your food.

Not even your finger prints are so sure a means of identification. When a dead body has been burned or dismembered or submerged for a long time in water, the finger prints are often no longer legible. Furthermore, few persons, outside the criminal classes, have had their finger prints recorded. If an ordinary man disappears and if a body that may be his is found somewhere later on, it is seldom that an authentic set of finger prints can be obtained as an aid to identification.

This is why more and more attention is being paid by criminologists to the possibility of identification, in such cases, by means of teeth. "Tooth prints" instead of finger prints may be our chief reliance in the not far distant future.

The occasional use of such identification by the teeth is nothing new in criminology. The first case that I know of in which is was used was the famous murder of Dr. George Parkman of Boston by Prof. John W. Webster, a case that greatly agitated all of New England in the year 1849.

Prof. Webster was a distinguished scientist, a teacher of chemistry and mineralogy in Harvard College. Then, as now, the salaries of scientific men were low, and Prof. Webster was in debt. To stave off some threatening financial misfortune he borrowed, on one occasion, the sum of $2400 from Dr. Parkman, a well-known physician of Boston. He gave as security a mortgage on a valuable collection of minerals which he owned.

But money troubles continued to harass the unhappy professor. In a short time an additional loan was necessary. Yielding, as many a worse man has done, to the pressure of necessity, Prof. Webster borrowed more money from a Mr. Shaw, a friend of both Parkman and himself, giving for a second time a mortgage on the same collection of minerals.

This second mortgage was kept secret from Parkman, nor was the existence of Parkman's prior mortgage disclosed to Shaw. So Prof. Webster, able, respected and successful, committed his first crime, a fraud of money, in that he gave two separate mortgages, secretly, on the same property.

This crime led speedily to the more terrible crime of murder. Parkman, who seems to have been an upright but intensely disagreeable person, learned of the second mortgage to Shaw. He taxed Webster with the fraud and demanded immediate payment of the first loan.

It was impossible for Webster to comply. Twenty-four hundred dollars was as vast a sum of money to him just then as twenty-four millions would have been. It was, in fact, just twice his yearly salary as professor. His cash resources at the time totaled less than $200. He had no conceivable means of raising more.

Parkman was obdurate. He insisted that Webster pay at once or be exposed as a trickster and a cheat, an exposure which would have meant in those days in New England the professor's utter ruin, both professionally and socially.

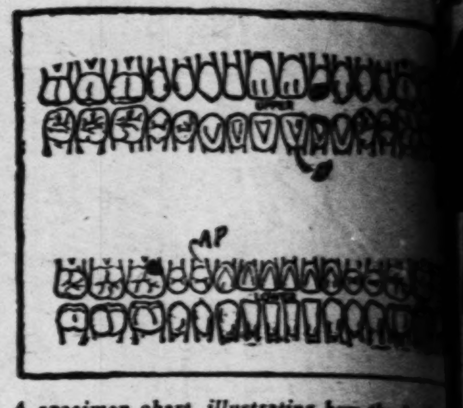
This insistence cost Parkman his life. Prof. Webster determined to murder him.

Making an appointment with Parkman at the chemical laboratory at an hour when he knew no troublesome witnesses would be about, Webster struck the doctor on the head with a heavy club and killed him.

He then proceeded to dispose of the body. Dismembering it under a stream of running water in the sink where chemical apparatus was washed, the professor worked two evenings and one holiday in his locked laboratory, burning the fragments of his erstwhile creditor in the furnace that was for assaying.

The labor proved too long. The second day, when students must be admitted again to the laboratory, came before the grewsome task was done. It was necessary to hide the relics of the crime that remained unconsumed. Some parts of the body the professor hid in a vault beneath the laboratory. Other parts he concealed in a locked box or tea chest to which he had the only key.

These precautions proved vain. Dr. Parkman was missed immediately. He had been seen near the laboratory. Some inkling of the professor's financial relations leaked out. Suspicion directed itself to the unfortunate chemist. A janitor in the chemical laboratory, whose feelings toward the professor seem never to have been too kindly (he said the professor "had never given him a single present in all the seven years he had worked at the college") broke into the vault underneath the laboratory and found some fragments of a human form.



A specimen chart, illustrating how the [illegible] his record of your teeth.

There was, however, no actual evidence that these fragments belonged to the body of the missing Parkman. Students of medicine used the laboratory as well as students of chemistry. (The famous Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, author of "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," occupied a lecture room in the building.) The grisly fragments that the janitor found might come from the dissecting room, not from the locus of a crime.

That this, in fact, was not their source, that they were verily the last mortal remains of Dr. Parkman, was determined by the teeth.

These teeth were not found in the vault nor in the tea chest. But the discoveries in those places induced the police to make a full search of the laboratory. In the ashes inside the assay furnace the teeth were found. The police took them for examination to a Dr. Keep, then a well-known dentist in the city. He recognized them instantly. He had made them himself. They were, he swore, the teeth of Parkman.

Essentially the case was over. Webster was arrested, tried and convicted. Before his execution he confessed. But for one bit of neglect he might never have been tried at all. He neglected to pulverize the teeth.

In this instance the teeth that figured in the case were false ones, but the identification could have been made just as easily from real teeth, provided, of course, that Parkman had been equally a patient of Dr. Keep.

I remember walking one day with a well-known dentist of Baltimore up the street toward his office. Suddenly my friend stooped and picked up something from the pavement. "Let us hurry," he said. "Dr. Blank is waiting for me and I imagine he is in a good deal of pain."

"How do you know?" I asked, surprised.

"This tooth," said my friend, exhibiting what he had picked up. "It is one of Rev. Blank's. I recognized it instantly. It is evident that it has broken off. Doubtless he was [illegible] sult me and bringing it along [illegible] have dropped it accidentally [illegible] street."

the name of the victim's dentist is known, the facilities for tooth identification are already complete enough. They are less satisfactory for tracing the identity of a body that is entirely unknown. There is no central bureau where tooth charts may be filed nor any way of classifying them for reference, both of which aids to the detective have been provided for finger prints. If one finds an unidentified body it is impossible to search the offices of all the dentists in the United States in the hope of finding that particular dentist who will be able to make the identification.

It is worth considering, therefore, whether it may not be wise for some governmental or other agency to establish a central bureau where all the dentists of the country may be requested to file copies of the tooth charts of their patients. A system of indexing these would not be difficult to devise. They would then be available for consultation whenever the identity of a body was in doubt.

Edmunds, a mechanical engineer, afflicted with modesty, made no reply. He might have used the same arguments that were finally brought to defend the photograph. Libraries, public buildings, railway stations, are filled with statues that pretend to be no more than reasonably faithful likenesses of philosophers, authors, Presidents, Kings and railway executives. Edmunds would have done the business for them with none of the labor and a fraction of the time for both the person who was posing and the man who made the sculpture.

Sculpture, Edmunds might have pointed out, is only the last citadel in a conquered land. Once everything which had the faintest connection with art was hard and tedious and only to be possessed by the rich and powerful. Once you had to be a minor millionaire to own a library, and people's pride in their books was badly damaged by the invention of the printing press. Those who could afford to have portraits painted of themselves were outraged when anyone could run to a photographer. The same is true of music and drama.

Now, everyone can have his photograph, his phonograph, see his movie, listen to his radio, and soon he can have statues of Uncle Jim and Cousin Belle to his heart's desire. Edmunds might have pointed out, too, that this belief of John Henry Perkins that he is entitled to get all the rare and beautiful things in life in the simplest, most direct and economical way, without the fuss and ceremony of tradition, is why in this country he warmly supported Henry Ford, and in Edmunds' country has voted for the custom-defying Labor party.

Edmunds has said what photo-sculpture gives is permanency. Short of an attack with a hammer, the likeness of your best girl will endure long after you have repented, married her best friend, and died.

As there have been beautiful photographs, all the beauty, uninspired by an artist's genius, which is in the human face and body can be and already has, in several studies of the nude, been caught by the cameograph. It will send men who can do no more than carve a simple likeness hunting for jobs.

Archipenko's recently published bust of the Princess Matchabelli, who plays the Madonna with Lady Diana Manners in "The Miracle," compared with the cameograph's likeness of Lady Diana, will show how little it can affect real sculptors.

True Stories From Pinkerton Archives

Pollock to do the same. He also instructed Supt. McParland at Denver to send his assistant, J. C. Fraser, to watch the case, so that if McCoy gave bail, or attempted to escape from the Leadville Jail, they could be ready with a warrant for his arrest on account of the Pollock robbery. Having wired these instructions, Mr. Pinkerton proceeded on his journey to Georgetown, Tex., where he called on McCoy's former prison associate in the Utah Penitentiary, but was unable to get him to tell anything about McCoy, though he volunteered, if Mr. Pinkerton would furnish him a bond and get him out of his Texas scrape, to go to Omaha and compel the "fence" who had received the diamonds to turn back the property.

But the rule of the Jewelers' Protective union was to get the thief first and the property afterward; so no treaty was made with the Texas prisoner.

Mr. Pinkerton now went to Kansas City, and found awaiting him there dispatches from Supt. McParland of the Denver agency, stating that Conductor Ashmore and Messrs. Shaw and Pollock had positively identified the prisoner, James Burke, alias "Kid" McCoy, as the man who assaulted Mr. Pollock and robbed him of his diamonds.

Burke winced perceptibly when he saw Conductor Ashmore and Mr. Shaw, and went fairly wild when confronted by Mr. Pollock. Requisition papers were obtained from the Governor of the State of Iowa on the Governor of Colorado, and, the Colorado offense being a minor one, Burke was turned over to Assistant Superintendent Fraser and another detective, to be taken to Logan, Harrison County, Ia.

Before leaving Leadville, Mr. Fraser was confidentially warned by the Sheriff of the county that he could not be too careful of his prisoner; for that Burke, through a friend of the Sheriff, had made a proposition to the latter to pay him a thousand dollars if he would secretly furnish him with a revolver when he left the jail, his design being, with this revolver, to either "hold up" or kill the two detectives who had him in custody and make his escape from the train.

On trial at Logan, the man was easily convicted, and was sentenced to imprisonment for a term of 17 years.

Nothing Will Take the Place of Sufficient Sleep

By DR. R. R. DANIELS.

THESE are strenuous times. The man who would succeed has got to "step on her." Our speed-making inventions—rapid transit, rapid communication and mechanized activity generally—have geared up our lives to an unconscionable rapidity. If a man doesn't take care he will be caught in this maelstrom and whirled to pieces. And so it is that a false idea of the necessity to "hit the ball" leads to overwork. We say a false idea because the overworked physical organism fails to develop maximum power, every time. No man can possibly be too busy to play and rest, for the very simple reason that when he cuts himself short on these things, his total output of useful work becomes, not more, but less. That conclusion is self-evident and axiomatic; there is no way to get around it.

It has been definitely determined, in industrial plants, that both the brain worker and the muscle worker do their maximum amount of work in eight hours. If the daily hours are increased to say 10, the yearly production of the individual is decreased.

The greatest total amount can be accomplished by a proper alternation of work and rest. Even the heart, that tireless muscle that pumps your blood from birth till death, rests between beats. Night work is the poorest sort of economy; it is a veritable squandering of health-capital.

Get your sleep. Nothing will take its place. Notwithstanding Mr. Edison's dictum that most of us sleep too much, it is the writer's opinion that the average American gets too little sleep. Abbreviated hours of sleep may suit Mr. Edison's personal idiosyncrasy; but the average adult needs eight hours of good, sound sleep, every night. Sleep is a period of elimination of fatigue-toxins; it is a time of recuperation and tissue-building. The man who is food-poisoned needs more sleep that the man who eats carefully. But whether you need less sleep or more, take all you need. There is no danger of your sleeping too much, though there is danger of your not getting it soon enough at night.

Going to bed early should be your Big Ben. I don't believe in the alarm-clock habit.

One word may be used as a summing-up of it, the word fighting.

The WORLD OUTSIDE EGYPT IN TUTANKHAMEN'S TIME

Assyria and Babylonia, most notable of Egypt's neighbors, were engaged chiefly in fighting each other whilst the Pharaohs by the Nile were building time-challenging tombs for themselves—Greece and Rome were far in future—In ancient Gaul and Britain nobody was making records for posterity—Europe as geographied today was veritably a howling wilderness, with wild tribes warring on each other :: ::

SOMEBODY—and, as he insisted upon being shown, he must have been from Missouri—asked the present writer, the other day, point-blank:

"Well, what was going on in the rest of the world in the time of the late King Tutankhamen of Egypt?"

The present writer, not having been present anywhere, so far as he is able to recall, 3270 years ago, or thereabout, was unable to give direct and accurate reply to that interesting query. The question was put rather suddenly, and he took refuge in the modern court witness' sanctuary of evasion, though what he said was strictly true.

"I don't know," he said.

"I didn't suppose you knew," remarked the inquisitor, "but I do wish you'd try to find out and let me know. It's a somewhat fascinating subject, don't you think?"

The writer, after briefly considering the matter, admitted that he thought so too. He went home and slept over the problem, wondering, between naps disturbed by eager phantoms of unrecorded history, just what really was going on in the world exclusive of Egypt, along about 33 centuries ago. "I do wish you'd try to find out and let me know." That was a challenge. "Well," he promised himself—but not the other fellow, mind you—"I'll try."

Having got himself into a sufficiently ancient frame of mind, he made bold to follow the example of the ancients; he consulted the oracles. In this case the oracles were the historians. There exists, past and present, a long list of such oracles who have studied the records and written ancient history. Some of them have written more myth than history. Others have tried hard, apparently, to devote their talents to the telling of the truths of history. On the whole, what they have written, between them all, appears to be an inexhaustible storehouse of undigested and probably indigestible information and conjecture.

Scholars, like doctors, disagree. Lord Macaulay, in a famous essay, succeeded in showing up history, so called, as rather much of a mess of hearsay evidence, largely incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. But out of the mass—or mess—Macaulay himself managed to produce a history of a certain important period in England which has been accepted generally as competent, relevant and material. However, he wrote of days comparatively recent.

We are now upon the imminent edge of trying to write briefly of days—or let us say years, so that we shall not be tied down to exact dates—so very far in the past that the business of capturing a clear-cut fact is almost as difficult as the job of catching a bird by putting salt on its tail. Nevertheless, the historians seems to have reached, or approximated, agreement upon certain essential points with regard to King Tut's times elsewhere than in Egypt, and herein is recorded the effort of a non-historian to tell what was going on in that era in the story of mankind.

One word may be used as a summing-up of it, the word fighting. It appears that mankind was engaged, around 3300 years ago, chiefly in fighting. Those who despair of the human race because we have had, but a few years ago, the most tremendous of all wars, possibly may take some little comfort in the fact that the human race has made a considerable measure of progress notwithstanding the companion fact that it has been fighting, more or less, ever since the first man got a grudge against his neighbor and sought satisfaction through the foolish process of assault and battery.

Between wars and rumors of wars, man has engaged in pursuits making for progress. This is proved by our present possession of houses and garments and arts and literatures superior in many respects to any that were known to the ancients. It may be, of course, that this happy state of affairs is due largely to the ancient ignorance as to the destructive possibilities residing in the science of chemistry; but that is a matter foreign to the present purpose.

Discoveries in the antechambers and the tomb of Tutankhamen have added appreciably to our knowledge of the status of the arts and sciences in the time of that far-off and forgotten Pharaoh—forgotten, at least, until the American, Howard Carter, and the Englishman, Lord Carnarvon, discovered his place of burial in the Valley of the Kings, on the banks of the Nile. Owing to the fact that monarchs of nations contemporaneous with Tutankhamen made the building of temples their specialty, instead of providing time-challenging tombs for themselves, no such riches of furnishings as were found in the Pharaoh's tomb are preserved to modern knowledge as relics of Babylonia, Assyria and other lands where peoples of that period flourished. The temples perished, their treasures were carried off by foreign soldiers, and only crumbling walls remain here and there.

Histories are sadly indefinite as to dates of events that took place prior to the golden days of Greece and Rome. When one reflects that the celebrated exploits of Alexander the Great, for instance, belonged to an era a thousand years this side of the time of Tutankh-amen, it is not a matter of wonder that so little is known definitely as to the tremendous activities of the peoples who preceded or were of comparatively even date with the Egyptian monarch recently unearthed.

Mankind, 3300 years ago, was engaged chiefly in fighting.

Tutankhamen had been dead hundreds of years when the great epic poet of ancient times, Homer, flourished. Grecian statements concerning the epoch of Homer differ almost 500 years from one another, though it is held in modern times that he lived about 1000 years before the time of Christ. The Trojan War, which he celebrated in his epics, occupied the years 1193-1184 B. C., according to modern computation; and that, let it be borne in mind, was almost 200 years later than the reign of Tutankhamen. Thus, with the era under discussion antedating even such semi-mythical events as the abduction of the beautiful Helen of Troy and the war for her deliverance, it becomes evident that history has a hard task in pinning definite dates upon happenings in the fourteenth century before Christ.

The country known modernly as Mesopotamia (or, since the World War, as Irak), over which Great Britain now exercises a mandate, was perhaps the most conspicuously active part of the world other than Egypt in the century which, for a few brief years, knew the young King Tutankhamen. It was in Mesopotamia that the empires of Babylonia and Assyria arose and declined, with centuries of warfare preceding the fall of each.

Assyria was, roughly speaking, a colony of Babylonia; that is, much of its population had migrated north from the Babylonian area and settled in the younger country's territory. Assyria soon became a powerful rival of "the mother country." We learn from the historical records that the two centuries from 1500 to 1300 B. C., which period includes the time of Tutankhamen, were noted chiefly for almost constant warfare between the Babylonians and the Assyrians.

Both of these peoples were largely of Semitic origin. Their religion was essentially identical, leeway being left for a different classification of gods. It was a worship of nature, divinity being conceived as the personified force of nature in human form, male and female. El was the oldest of the Babylonian gods, Asshur the oldest of the Assyrian deities. Bel was "lord of all," being the god both of creative and destructive forces. Belit or Baaltis was the goddess of love, fertility and birth. She was a sort of "queen mother" of the gods.

Then there was Istar. Don't forget Istar, who was the goddess of war and destruction. These peoples of ancient Mesopotamia made much of Istar, their principal occupation being, as stated, that of making war upon each other.

The Kings of those countries and those times had the habit of building temples to their own glory. It is believed that virtually every monarch who succeeded to the throne busied himself and his hard-worked subjects promptly in erecting a new temple. The temples of dead Kings were despoiled of their treasures, and in many instances their walls were razed and the material was used in constructing the temple of the ruler of the time being. When the male population was not on the warpath, death-gripped in close combat, there was plenty of work on hand to keep everybody busy building new temples and new cities.

These fighting tribes developed an exact system of weights and measures, believed to have originated in Babylon. Cuneiform writing, successor to the older hieroglyphics, became the principal method of transmitting records to posterity. Both the Assyrians and the Babylonians built magnificent structures of brick, constructed systems of canals for irrigation and for the regulation of the annual overflow from the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers. There was important and extensive commerce with Egypt and other countries. The cuneiform writings which have been preserved and discovered show many names inscribed, but few dates prior to 900 B. C. are established to the satisfaction of modern scholarship.

Assyria as an empire came to a tragic end about the year 608 B. C., when Nineveh, the later capital, was taken and destroyed; and the new empire of Babylon, which was built upon its ruins, the old empire having been conquered by Assyria about a century earlier, lasted but a few years as a powerful state, and in less than a century became a Persian province. But those events are of far later date than Tutankhamen's era.

The one outstanding fact of historic record is that while Tutankhamen was reigning over Egypt and commanding the labor of many of his subjects in cutting out for himself a tomb in the solid rock in the Valley of the Kings, over in future Mesopotamian territory the Kings of Assyria and Babylonia were employing their male populations largely in fighting. Each country was trying to subjugate and swallow the other. Definite records of the innumerable battles occupying the period from 1525 to 1257 B. C. are missing; but history assumes that there must have been breathing spells when both peoples settled down to a few years of comparative quiet, in which the arts and sciences of that remote age were cultivated.

No such remarkable relics of the handiwork of those peoples have been left as in the case of Egypt; and again the explanation lies in the carelessness of the Assyrian and Babylonian monarchs as to the preservation of their dead bodies and their places of sepulture. But for the process of mummification practiced by the ancient Egyptians and the burial of royal persons and of wealthy folk in time-defying tombs, most of the things we know today about the domestic and esthetic arts of the Egyptians would belong to perished history.

The Egyptians, as various archeologists have discovered, had the habit of trying to take along with them into the spirit world a plentiful supply of household furnishings, foods, drinks, oils, jewelry and of thrones and the like, in the case of Kings. Their contemporary ancients, on the other hand, set no such great store by the things of the hereafter as concerning individuals; and therefore but little is known with regard to their implements of warfare, their household outfits, their tastes in jewelry and other ornamentation.

However, judging from the barbaric splendors of their temples and the amount of energy they put forth in their wars of conquest, as related in the Bible and in profane history to a limited degree of elucidation, it is not to be doubted that the Assyrians who "came down as a wolf on the fold," and the Babylonians, who, finally—and something like 800 years later than King

Tutankhamen- -reached the end of their magnificence when Nebuchadnezzar read the handwriting on the wall, had developed even as early as the fourteenth century before Christ a civilization of a sort not to be dismissed sneeringly by moderns merely because most of the activities had to do with warfare. It is recalled, even by children still in their teens, that the thing called civilization has not yet progressed beyond the stage where world-wide warfare is a fact and not a fantasy.

Getting into Biblical history, it was only a few years, perhaps 40 to 50, after Tutankhamen's entombment when Moses led the Hebrews out of Egypt. The year 1320 B. C. is given by historians as the date of that interesting event, though as a rule a question mark in parentheses follows the date. The Ten Commandments at Mount Sinai date from this time.

As to Greece and Rome, when Tutankhamen lived their beginnings still were hundreds of years in the future. History has virtually nothing to say, save through hazy surmise, as to the nomadic tribes wandering about in the lands where those two illustrious civilizations were to ensue. Even the familiar story of the founding of Rome, which is supposed to have taken place nearly six centuries after the time of Tutankhamen, is clouded in the mist of myth. In fact, a high authority says that "the results of modern scientific investigations leave not the least doubt that the Roman story of the foundation of the city is not historical, but an invention, having not the slightest basis of fact." So perish Romulus and Remus, but, thanks to the Egyptians' keen interest in the hereafter, we still have Tutankhamen, some 600 years earlier than the Roman myth, as a historical fact.

So indefinite is history respecting the beginnings of Greece, or rather the forerunners of the Grecians, that the handy unknown quantity sign "x" is employed in covering the mythical, or first, epoch. From "x" to 1104, with a question mark following that date, is the mythical period of Greece; and that, it is seen, comes down to more than two centuries this side of the now-renowned Tutankhamen. In the time of that Pharaoh, then, so far as human knowledge goes today, the country that became Greece was but the abode of mythical gods and goddesses and the credulous worshipers of those imaginary deities. No human names or achievements come down definitely to this day, as to Greece, until long after the Egyptian King passed from the scene.

In "King Tut's" time, Europe, as known to modern history, was for the most part a veritable howling wilderness. There were many wild tribes, some roving, others more of the homebody sort, inhabiting the regions which ultimately became the Teutonic, Gallic, Celtic and so-called Anglo-Saxon nations. Until the Roman conquest, 58-51 B. C., little is known of the inhabitants of ancient Gaul, of which modern France and Belgium are the principal parts. These people were Celtic, with a considerable mixture of the Teutonic tribes, though most of the Teutons then, as now, dwelt beyond the Rhine.

Great Britain, supposed to have been peopled originally by Celts who crossed over from Gaul, was, in Tutankhamen's era, a totally unknown quantity in the minds of men now named in history—unknown and unsuspected. The time of the first inflow of Celtic tribes is unknown.

Both Gaul and Britain, in the fourteenth century before Christ, are supposed to have been under the influence of the Druids, a priestly barbarian order which Caesar found when he came and saw and conquered.

As to the New World, discovered only 432 years ago, archeology's spade has turned up many ancient records, but, unfortunately, those who made the records were careless, as are some letter writers of today, and did not date them. It is, consequently, impossible at this late day to set forth anything even dreamily definite as to human activities on our half of the terrestrial sphere's surface 3300 years ago.

Perhaps the only thing one may surmise with any degree of fact foundation is that, locally speaking, the Mississippi River did not flow then where it flows today, under the air space occupied now by the celebrated Eads Bridge. The channel of the stream was over against the Edgemont Bluffs, some miles east of East St. Louis; and probably it would have returned to its ancient channel, or, at any rate part way, but for the interesting fact that about 85 years ago a young Lieutenant in the United States Engineer Corps, widely known later as Gen. Robert Edward Lee, came to St. Louis and spent two years in superintending construction of works which kept the channel close to the Levee on the St. Louis side. But when the river ran past the Edgemont Bluffs nobody worried about the importance of a channel farther to the west, for only the ancient Mound Builders were here—if they were here, for even that is not known to mortal man of A. D. 1924.

On the Swamp Road

other end of this road. Then come back here. We'll follow the road through."

"I guess they're after me," Skinner whispered at random.

The man paid no attention to that. With one heavy hand resting on Skinner's chest at the base of the throat, he stretched his thick neck, turning his head from side to side, trying to make out the person who had shouted.

"I can't see," he growled under his breath, looking down at the prostrate man.

"Stand up," Skinner suggested, in a whisper.

The man glowered dubiously down at him an instant, and it seemed that the pupils of his eyes contracted.

"I killed three this morning," the man growled. "I'd as lief kill you as look at you." With that he got on his haunches and slowly raised himself, stretching his neck and peering. When he was upright he glowered down and motioned Skinner to rise. Two or three yards brought them to a place where, above the intervening bushes, Skinner could see the head and gray slouch hat of his grizzle-bearded friend.

"He's horseback and he's got a gun," the man mumbled in Skinner's ear as they crouched out of sight. "I could git him easy enough, but the horse'd git away."

He evidently revolved the problem which that presented, as his eyes turned restlessly up and down the road; and through the hand that rested on his back Skinner could feel the trembling and quivering of nerves and muscles as in a big animal that prepares to crouch for a spring. At the same time the man's sweat and odor, and the subtle feel of something obscene and bloody about him, were sickening.

The restless, glittering eyes came back to Skinner. "There's a bridle-path back there a ways," he said. "I seen it when I drove down here."

"With a horse a felleh could follow that," the man added.

It seemed, in fact, the only outlet. With the telephoned alarm, their bad road would soon be blocked at both ends and for a man to make his painful way afoot across the swamp would take many hours. But with a horse one might follow the bridle-path to something that would give a chance of escape.

"I'll git him and you git his horse," said the man, grumbling under his breath; "and I'll give you a lift as far back as the bridle-path," he added, with another little grin. Obviously the last was a lie, but Skinner was too much occupied with other things to pay attention to that.

"You'll lay down on your back with your hat over your face beside the bushes here and keep groanin'," the man explained. "I'll be in the bushes. He'll git off'n his horse to take a look at you and he'll put the bridle around his arm—see?" He made a motion like a horseman slipping a bridle over his arm. "When he squats down to take the hat off'n your face you reach up and grab the bridle." He nodded his head as though that were all; then added as a sort of elaboration: "I'll jump out the bushes and kill him."

It seemed to Skinner, in fact, horribly ingenious. He could fairly see the grizzle-bearded man dismounting, slipping the bridle over his arm and stooping with his shotgun tucked uselessly under his arm or laid upon the ground, and this other leaping from the bushes upon his bowed back.

"We ought to have some blood on the hat," he said, stupidly. It was all he could think of.

The man nodded and drew a jackknife from his pocket. Skinner stupidly held out his arm and wondered dully how much blood-poisoning there might be in the blade which the man drew across it. He stared down at the red streak which broadened on his tanned arm, while the man caught the cloth hat from his head and dabbled the crown with red.

Skinner took that hat, without bothering to put it on, and as he did so something that had been lying in reserve in his brain recurred to him in a flash.

"See here," he said, himself smearing the hat crown against his arm, "we've got to make sure he does get off the horse, you see. He might just reach down with his gun and poke the hat off my face. Or he might wait till the other man comes back. We've got to make sure he gets off the horse," he repeated, earnestly; "we must scatter some things around for him to get off and look at."

The man nodded assent.

"I'll lie down beside the ditch there," Skinner went on, pointing to the side of the little clearing, "and you get in the bushes just behind me. I've got a leather wallet in my hip pocket. I'll spread that out beside the ditch, as though somebody might have been going through it. And I've got some notepaper in my pocket." He took from the pocket of his alpaca jacket a dozen sheets of memorandum paper and the stub of an editorial pencil that made a broad black mark—things that he had hastily caught up from the desk when news of the murder came into the office. He exhibited them to his companion. "I'll fold over a sheet of this paper—see?—so it looks like the back of a big envelope, and I'll write my address on it. He'll want to see what's in it."

Writing rapidly on the folded sheet in a large hand, he pronounced the words as he traced them: "Thomas Morrison, Shelbyville, Indiana, Lane County," while the man silently looked on.

Finishing the rapid writing, Skinner stepped excitedly down the road a few feet to the beginning of the little clearing and spoke breathlessly, for their business demanded haste: "He'll ride around this clump of bushes—see? I'll be lying in that narrow place between the bushes and the ditch, just on the edge of the ditch. He'll have to get off his horse to look these things over and he'll have to stay this side of the ditch. That'll bring him with his back to the bushes when he bends over. You'll be in the bushes."

The man surveyed the scene and nodded. Having dismounted at the spot to which Skinner pointed the stooping horseman's back would be only a foot from the bushes. A leap and a blow of the hammer would do it easily.

Having surveyed the scene the man's cat eyes turned to Skinner. He took the automatic revolver from his coat pocket, exhibiting it in his huge palm. "If you try a game you git this through the head," he said, parting the hard line of his lips just enough to emit sounds.

"Sure!" said Skinner, as though that were understood. He stepped forward to the spot he had indicated, tossed his open purse to the ground and laid the decoy envelope near it; then stretched himself on his back and looked up at the man.

The man stepped over him and thrust himself into the screen of bushes, squatting. Skinner could see him as he crouched, the automatic revolver in his left hand, carefully leveled at the prostrate head; the hammer grasped in his right hand.

Then Skinner, with his face toward the bushes, put the cloth hat over his head and cheek, spread his limbs as though he lay sprawling from a blow, and uttered a loud groan. An instant later he groaned again, louder yet, and the grizzle-bearded horseman shouted: "Hello, there!"

Twice again Skinner groaned and again the horseman, nearer at hand, called: "Hello, there!"

Another groan, an interval of silence; then the voice asked: "Are you hurt?" Evidently the rider had come to the edge of the clearing, in view of the prostrate body and paused there. But all Skinner could see, out of one eye under the hatbrim, was the little space directly in front of his head, the edge of the bushes and, through the leafage a bit of one knee of the crouching man. His heart fairly stopped beating and the hand that hung over the ditch side clutched into the weeds. He gave a feeble moan and heard a horse's hoof sink squashily into the wet ground. The rider evidently was coming toward him and in another second would dismount, or else——

Skinner's hand clutched tighter into the weeds and he held his breath. Then he heard a rustling and crackling of the thick bushes and he could see motion in those that were within his little field of vision as though a large object had been thrust against them. With all the agility of which he was capable, pulling himself by the hand clutched into the weeds, he rolled over into the ditch and as he went over he heard the grizzle-bearded man say: "Come out of that!"

When he sat up in the ditch the horse's forequarters were pressed into the brush. The grizzle-bearded rider was standing in the stirrups, the shotgun at his shoulder aiming downward, his finger on the trigger. Its muzzle was two feet above the head of the swarthy man who crouched there. To him the sudden leap of the spurred horse into the bushes had come like a flash of lightning out of a clear sky.

A quarter of an hour later Skinner was explaining in gleeful excitement: "You see, his gasoline dial showed the tank was empty—plain as the nose on your face. It must have been almost empty when he drove up to the farmhouse—and his life depending upon his get-away. So I made up my mind he couldn't read, and when it came right down to the pinch, I staked everything on that."

With a forefinger he affectionately tapped the sheet of memorandum paper which he had folded to look like a large envelope and superscribed before the swarthy man's eyes and then laid on the ground. The writing on it, arranged in the order of an address on an envelope was: "The Murderer, Is in the bushes, At your left," and in the lower left-hand corner, where the name of a county is often put, "Look Out!" heavily underscored.

"But say," he added to the grizzle-bearded man, "I lost 10 years' growth while I was lying there waiting to see whether you'd notice the envelope, or whether I'd have to shout to you and get a bullet through my head."

Though P. T. Barnum died long ago, the Barnum & Bailey Circus still has "the smallest man in the world," and probably the bona-fide smallest this time. Here he is, after arriving in New York to appear with the circus, taking a stroll with a young lady friend. He is known as Major Mite.

This unusual photograph shows the Prince of Wales being picked up after his most recent riding accident. The Prince was riding his horse, Little Favourite, in army maneuvers and was thrown to the ground. Little Favourite, being innocent as to lese majeste, kicked the Prince in the face after he fell, as one may gather from the expression on the Wales physiognomy. The Prince has had several accidents from horseback riding recently.

Gray Hair

You are right to be skeptical in regard to any preparation offered to restore gray hair. So many can't do the work—so many only further disfigure your hair.

A trial on one lock of hair is your safeguard, and this I offer free. Accept this offer and prove for yourself that your gray hair can be restored safely, easily and surely.

I perfected my Restorer many years ago to bring back the original color to my own gray hair, and since, hundreds of thousands of gray haired people have used it. It is a clear, colorless liquid, clean as water and as pleasant to use. No greasy sediment, nothing to wash or rub off. Restored color even and natural in all lights. Results just as satisfactory when hair has been bleached or otherwise discolored.

Don't Risk offensive breath
It spoils all good impressions

In every conversation guard the breath. There are very often odors which offend. And no charm can offset them.

Cigars or cigarettes may cause them. Or decaying food between the teeth. Or some tooth or gum trouble. Or a stomach disorder, or certain foods or drinks.

The offender can't detect those odors, but no dainty person can afford that risk.

May Breath tablets form a sure protection. Countless people never go without them.

Not a mere perfume, to overwhelm one odor with another. That suggests concealment.

May Breath is a purifier. An antiseptic mouth wash in candy tablet form. It combats the odors, whether they arise in the mouth or stomach. It brings the odor of purity—the scent of spring.

It also aids digestion.

May Breath comes in metal boxes, to fit vest pockets or a lady's bag. You can always have them with you.

Before any close contact, eat a tablet to be safe. Then your breath will be inviting—an added charm.

Use them in your home as well as elsewhere. You wish to be dainty there. Eat one on waking, to destroy bad tastes and odors which so often come overnight.

Maintain at all times the delight, the satisfaction of a pleasant breath.

Let us send you a free box to show how May Breath does that. Clip coupon now.

Teeth Like...
Don't leave that film...

Wherever dainty people meet, you see prettier teeth today.

In old days most teeth were film-coated. Now millions use a new-type tooth paste which fights film.

Make this free test, if only for beauty's sake. Ten days will show you what it means to you.

Those cloudy coats
Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it. Much of it clings and stays under old-way methods.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That's how teeth lose luster.

Film also causes most tooth troubles, and very few escape them. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

The new-day method
Dental science has found two effective ways to daily fight that film. One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. The other removes it without harmful scouring.

Teeth Like Pearls

Don't leave that film-coat on them

Wherever dainty people meet, you see prettier teeth today.

In old days most teeth were film-coated. Now millions use a new-type tooth paste which fights film.

Make this free test, if only for beauty's sake. Ten days will show you what it means to you.

Those cloudy coats

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it. Much of it clings and stays under old-way methods.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That's how teeth lose luster.

Film also causes most tooth troubles, and very few escape them. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

The new-day method

Dental science has found two effective ways to daily fight that film. One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. The other removes it without harmful scouring.

After many careful tests these methods were embodied in a new-type tooth paste. The name is Pepsodent. Leading dentists the world over began to advise it. Now careful people of some 50 nations employ it every day. And to millions of homes it is bringing a new dental situation.

Other discoveries

A way was also found to multiply the alkalinity of the saliva as well as the starch digestant. Those are Nature's agents for neutralizing acid and digesting starch deposits. Pepsodent with every use gives them manifold effect.

These discoveries are everywhere changing the old methods of teeth cleaning. They have brought a new conception of what clean teeth mean.

A delightful test

We offer here a delightful test which will be a revelation.

Send coupon for the 10-day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

What you see and feel will very soon convince you. You will learn the way to benefits you want. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

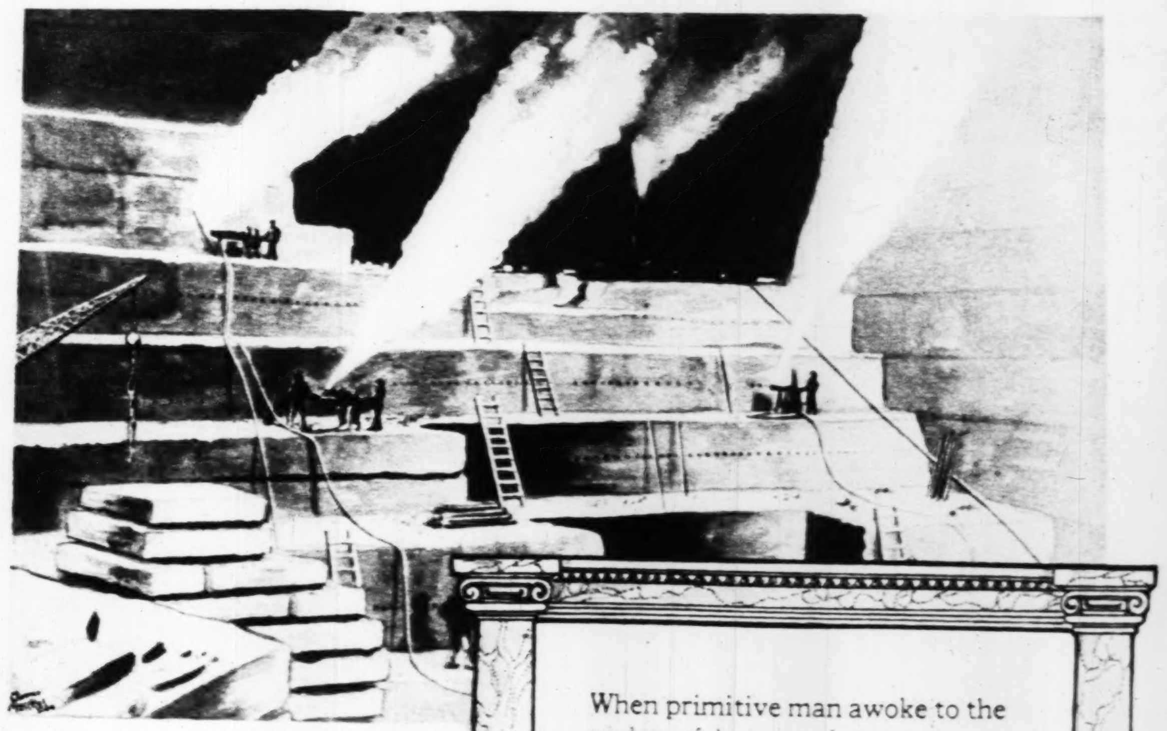
MARBLE

Its Important Part in Ancient and Modern Architecture



When primitive man awoke to the wisdom of beauty and permanence in buildings he selected marble, and it is in these marble-protected piles of antiquity that are found the surest chronicles of the racial march from barbarism to civilization.

Marble, formerly the building material of monarchs and ecclesiastical potentates, has, through improved methods of production, now become a modern necessity, moderately priced and generally used.

By the use of marble, office buildings, apartment houses, banks and residences are now more ornate and beautiful than the palaces of ancient kings.

The Missouri Marble Quarries — only forty-eight miles south of St. Louis—produce an excellent quality of marble, rivalling and even excelling the most distinctive formations of the Eastern and Western Hemispheres.

The proximity to St. Louis of this recently discovered and virtually inexhaustible bed of high-grade marble, and the improved methods of production, place this durable, desirable material within the reach of the average builder.

To more thoroughly familiarize the public with the advantages of the use of marble, there will appear each Saturday in the Post-Dispatch for a number of weeks an interesting and informative advertisement to which your attention is respectfully directed.

There's beauty in every line of the new Nymfaun Double Compacts

PERHAPS you are fortunate enough to have already learned that Nymfaun Double Compacts —are shaped like a smart, flat cigarette case and are in golden satin-finish, decorated with dainty incised lines —that they have large rectangular mirrors

—that they carry generous-sized powder and rouge compacts with satin-backed puffs

—and that both powder and rouge are delightfully scented with the new Nymfaun odor.

Poudre Nymfaun

They are both lovely, the Nymfaun Powder and the box in which it is packed. The powder has a finely adherent quality and its odor is the new Nymfaun, a refreshing combination of French floral oils. The box has an embossed covering of gay Roman red, gold and black and white, its grace and smartness keenly reminiscent of the Paris boulevards.

— "if I can't have you, then your husband shall not have you, either!"

Even on her honeymoon his threat haunted her!

BY day and by night it dinned in her ears—the Parisian perfumer's curse: "If I can't have you, then your husband shall not have you either!"

What could he have meant?

But the months that followed brought her the answer. This new and strange perfume had made her the most sought-after woman in all of Spain—and yet the most unhappy!

Finally, it wrecked her home and her life—and—but you must read the entire story yourself.

The complete story of this tragic romance is told in a charmingly prepared booklet which is yours for the asking; either by mail or by requesting "that Mi Nena booklet" at your favorite perfumer's, who now carries this wonderful new odeur.

It tells of how the formula of this irresistible perfume called Mi Nena (Spanish for "My Darling") was found in the vault of the French perfumer after his death; how it was secured and perfected by Parfumerie Rigaud and how it has now been made available for the women of today.

Generous trial vial for you

A generous flacon of Rigaud's Mi Nena, Petite size, most artistic in design and suited for your purse or hand-bag, will be mailed you with the complete booklet story of the origin of this wonderful romance-odeur if you will pin a one dollar bill to this advertisement and send us your name and address plainly written. Address Petite Dept. 6-R, Geo. Borgfeldt & Co., 111 East 16th Street, New York.

Your perfumer carries the following complete line of toilet accessories, all fragrant with Parfum Mi Nena: Extract, Toilet Water, Talcum Powder, Face Powder, Sachet Powder, Lip Stick, Cold Cream, Vanishing Cream, Face Powder Compact, Rouge Compact, Bath Salts, Body Powder.

Blemishes

How you can free your skin from blemishes

Dust carries bacteria into the pores of your skin.

The result is an infection—a tiny abscess—and that disfiguring thing known as a skin blemish.

Free your skin from blemishes by this special cleansing treatment:

EACH night before retiring, wash your face with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap, finishing with a dash of cold water. Then dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes. Then rinse, first with clear hot water, then with cold.

You will be surprised to see how quickly this treatment will clear your skin.

Get a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for this treatment and for regular toilet use.

The Secret of Better Health

Clearer skin · Easier digestion · Regular elimination

THESE remarkable reports are typical of thousands of similar tributes to Fleischmann's Yeast.

There is nothing mysterious about its action. It is not a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense. But when the body is choked with the poisons of constipation—or when its vitality is low so that skin, stomach and general health are affected—this simple, natural food achieves literally amazing results.

Concentrated in every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast are millions of tiny yeast-plants, alive and active. At once they go to work—invigorating the whole system, clearing the skin, aiding digestion, strengthening the intestinal muscles and making them healthy and active. Health is yours once more.

"AT the age of forty I found myself slipping in health. I was troubled with indigestion, constipation and nervous debility. I had read about people taking Fleischmann's Yeast, and ordered some. A while later, in answer to a friend's inquiry, I was surprised to hear myself reply, 'I feel like a prize-fighter' and realized then that I had not felt any sign of indigestion for some time, and was putting in ten to twelve hours' hard brain work daily. I knew I was back again."

(A letter from Mr. W. L. King of Washington, D. C.)

"WHEN all the other girls were wearing their first low-necked dresses, I was staying at home—all on account of a breaking-out on my back that I simply couldn't get rid of. Dad is a druggist so I tried all the medicated soaps and creams that he had in stock, but finally gave up. It was awful. One day my chum told me about Fleischmann's Yeast and urged me to take it. I took half a cake dissolved in water before every meal—it is not only easy to take but delightful—and in two weeks every trace of the eruption had disappeared. It worked like magic, really, and made me feel like a different person."

(A letter from Miss Esther Shaw of Sanford, Calif.)

"WHEN I commenced to eat yeast about two years ago, I was the grouchiest grouch that ever nursed a grouch. My complexion looked the color of bread dough and I realized that my Nemesis was that curse of mankind—constipation. About every cathartic on the market went through my system. My grocer suggested that I give Fleischmann's Yeast a trial. Since I began eating it my bowels function perfectly night and morning—the proverbial kitten has nothing on me for sound slumber. I do not claim Yeast to be a universal 'cure-all'—but it certainly gave me an excellent start on the road to health."

(A letter from Mr. Cyril A. Gendermarn of 1022 Tenth Avenue, Brooklyn)

"CAME a period of real worry: of haphazard living: of irregular sleep and diet. The result . . . a distressing case of nerves . . . misery from my digestive system, a rough and unclear skin. When someone suggested yeast I laughed. . . . Secretly I tried it and now, knowing how simple the remedy, I laugh at nerves, scorn a skin that is not smooth and clear, and find my digestive system a thing to be ignored."

(Mrs. Betty Knight of Los Angeles, Calif.)

"THIS is what the doctor told me. 'Your husband is run down. . . . he has overworked and eaten so irregularly, and taken so little notice of his physical condition that now he is a very sick man.' . . . At the end of the second week's yeast treatment digestion was improved, and constipation relieved. For six months he ate three cakes each day, and no doubt he owes his complete recovery to the fact that he was so steadfast in following this treatment."

(Mrs. St. Chrisman of Richmond, Indiana)

EAT FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST FOR HEALTH
Dissolve one cake in a glass of water (just hot enough to drink)

—before breakfast and at bedtime. Fleischmann's Yeast, when taken this way, is especially effective in overcoming or preventing constipation.

Or eat 2 or 3 cakes a day—spread on bread or crackers—dissolved in fruit juices or milk—or eat it plain.

Fleischmann's Yeast comes only in the tinfoil package—it cannot be purchased in tablet form. All grocers have it. Start eating it today! A few days' supply will keep as well in your ice box as in the grocer's. Write us for further information or for a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. THAT'S ALL RIGHT - BUT THAT DON'T GIVE YOU LICENSE TO HAVE THEM HERE ALL THE TIME!
WELL - YOU SAID -
YOU SAID I COULD - - - -
I DON'T CARE WHAT I SAID -
YOU SAY THINGS AND THEN YOU TAKE THEM BACK - YOU DO
THAT'S ALL RIGHT I'M NOT GOING TO FEEL THAT WE'VE GOT TO INVITE YOUR FOLKS EVERY TIME WE EAT - NOT ON YOUR LIFE
IF IT WAS YOUR FOLKS IT WOULD BE ALL RIGHT I SUPPOSE - - YOU NEVER WANT PAPA AND MAMA HERE FOR A DINNER! IT'S MIGHTY FUNNY TO ME - -
THEY'VE ALWAYS BEEN SO NICE TO YOU TOO! GIVEN YOU LOVELY THINGS FOR CHRISTMAS AND BEEN NICE IN EVERY WAY - - - AND BESIDES YOU SAID I COULD INVITE WHO I PLEASED
YOU'VE GOT IT IN FOR THEM FOR SOME REASON OR OTHER I DON'T UNDERSTAND - I'VE BEEN MIGHTY NICE TO YOUR FOLKS AND YOU CERTAINLY CAN'T DENY THAT - - - AFTER YOU SAID - I COULD INVITE WHOM I PLEASED - SAY THINGS AND TAKE 'EM BACK - ALL SET?
BRIGGS
OH ALL RIGHT GO AHEAD AND INVITE YOUR FOLKS IF IT'LL MAKE YOU ANY THE HAPPIER!
I HAVE INVITED 'EM

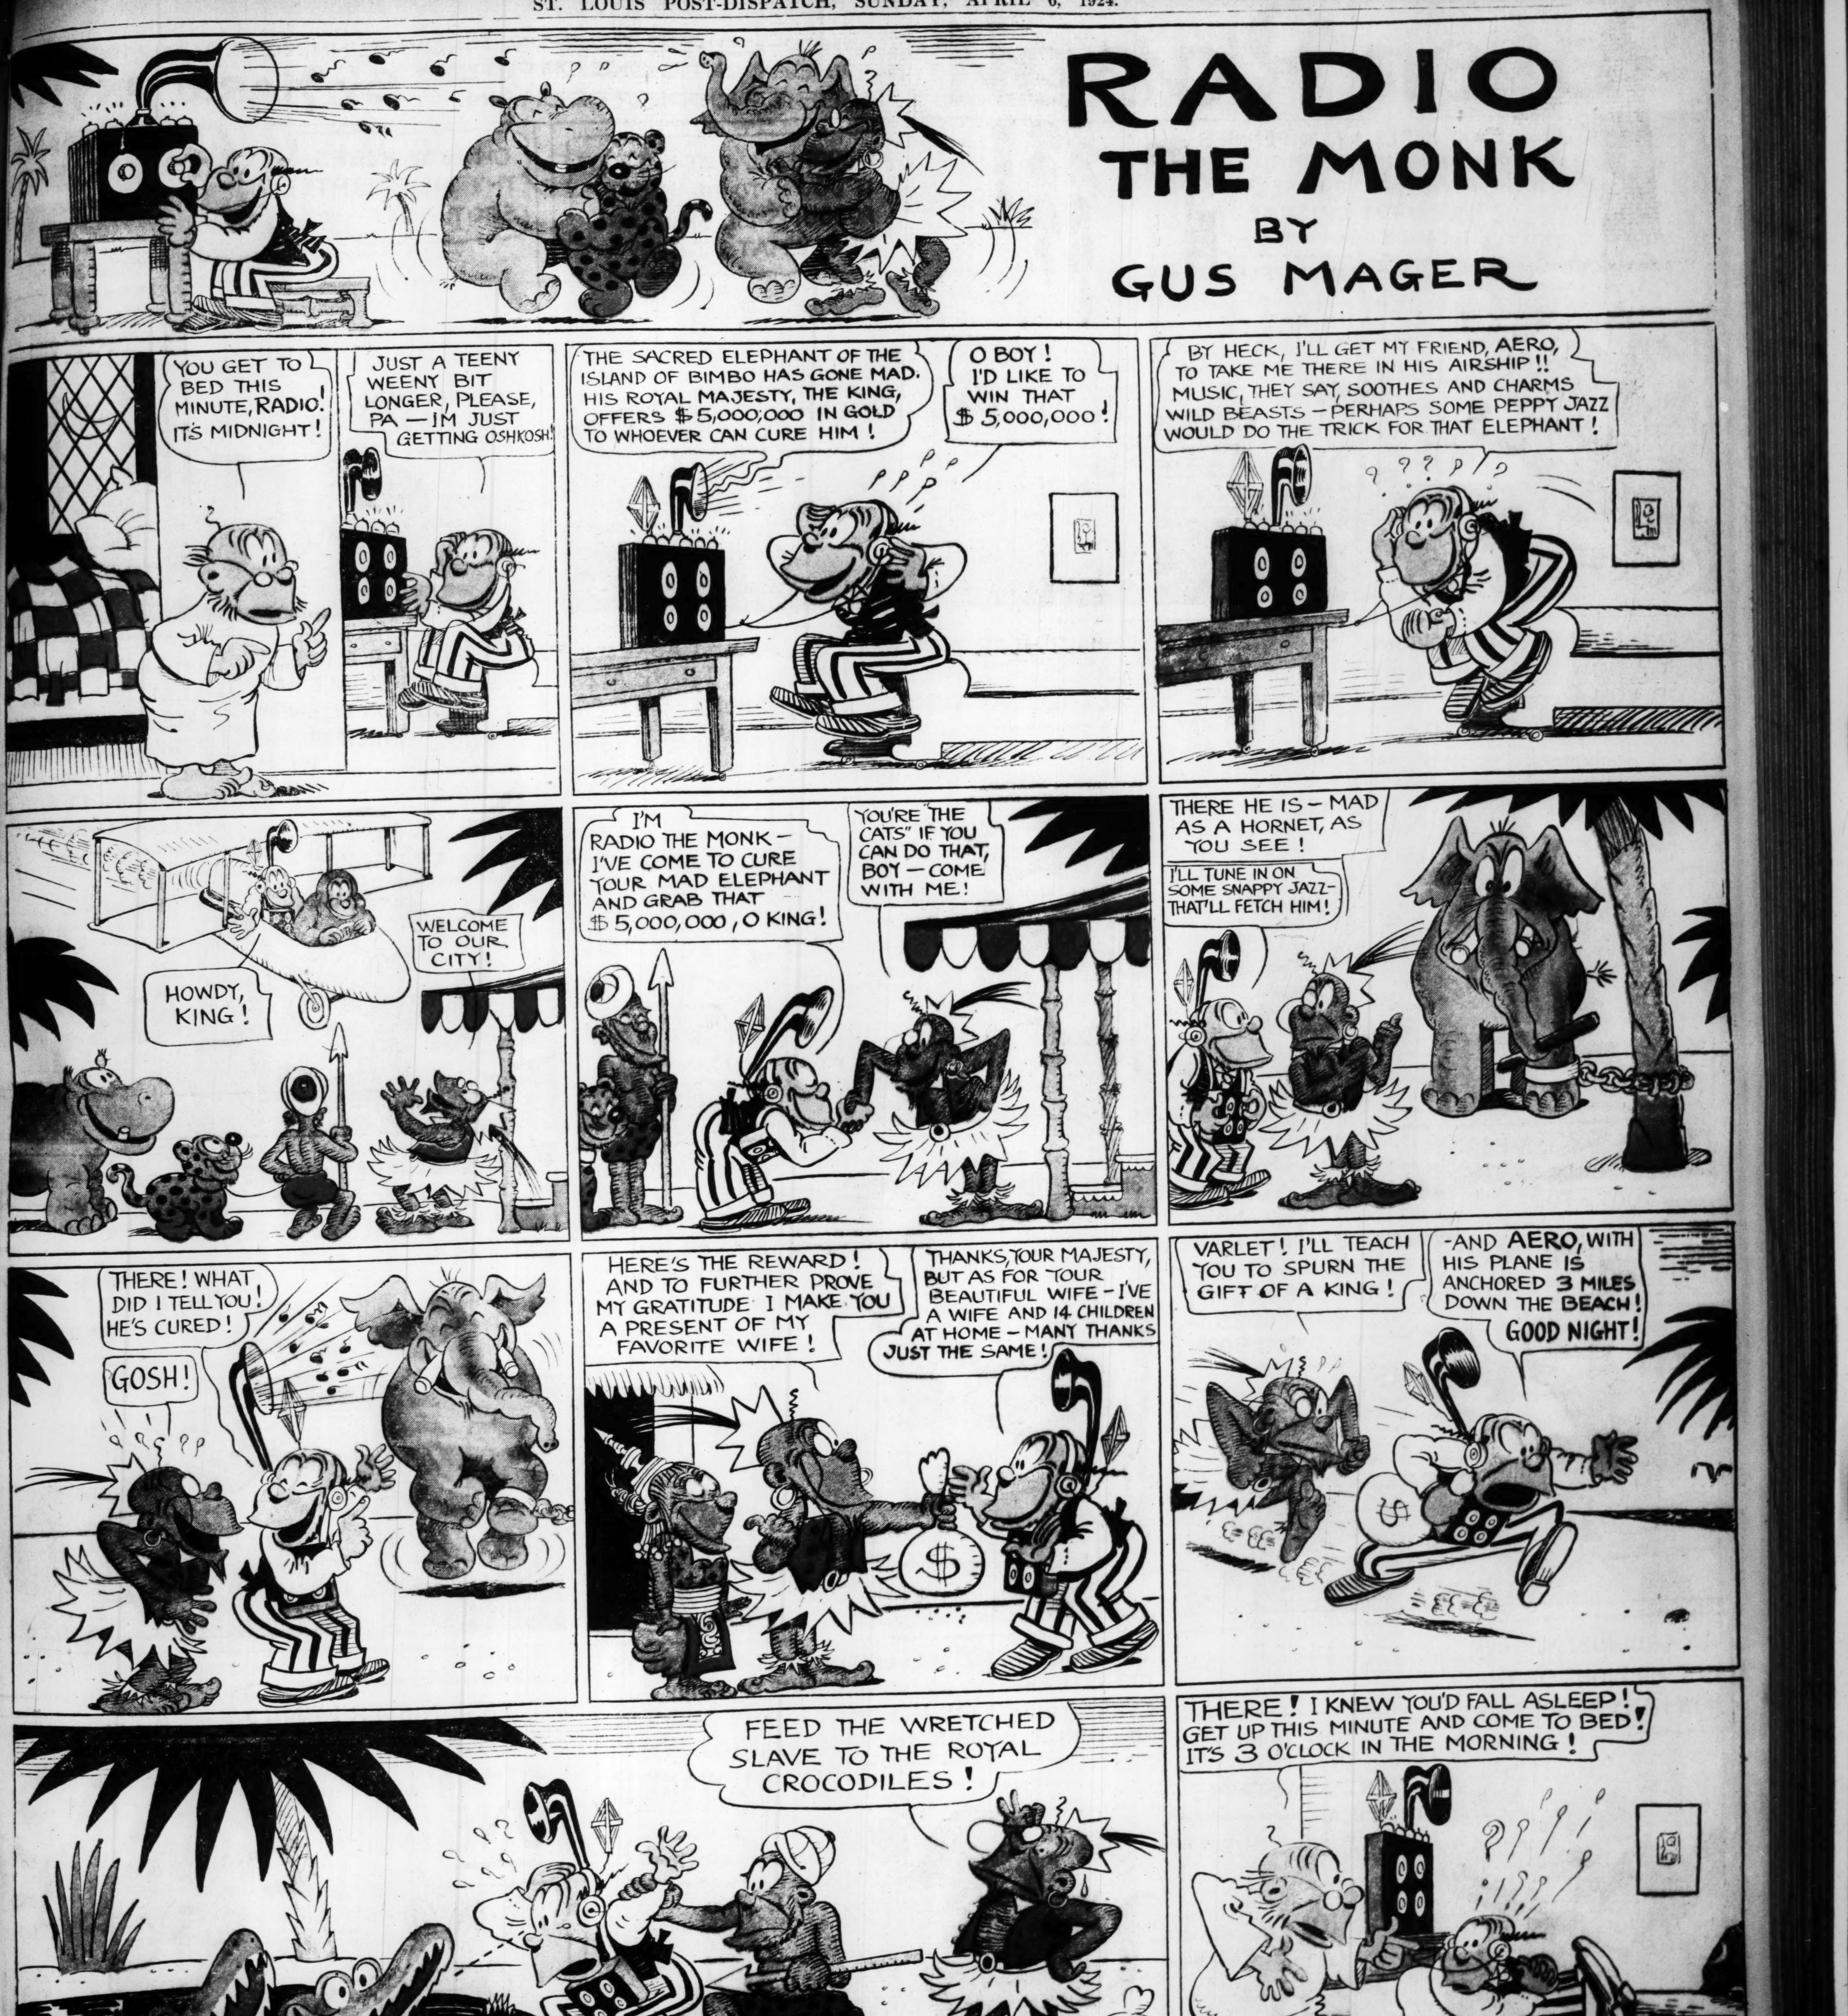
BY GUS MAGER



YOU GET TO BED THIS MINUTE, RADIO! IT'S MIDNIGHT!
JUST A TEENY WEENY BIT LONGER, PLEASE, PA — I'M JUST GETTING OSHKOSH!
THE SACRED ELEPHANT OF THE ISLAND OF BIMBO HAS GONE MAD. HIS ROYAL MAJESTY, THE KING, OFFERS $5,000,000 IN GOLD TO WHOEVER CAN CURE HIM!
O BOY! I'D LIKE TO WIN THAT $5,000,000!
BY HECK, I'LL GET MY FRIEND, AERO, TO TAKE ME THERE IN HIS AIRSHIP!! MUSIC, THEY SAY, SOOTHES AND CHARMS WILD BEASTS — PERHAPS SOME PEPPY JAZZ WOULD DO THE TRICK FOR THAT ELEPHANT!
HOWDY, KING!
WELCOME TO OUR CITY!
I'M RADIO THE MONK — I'VE COME TO CURE YOUR MAD ELEPHANT AND GRAB THAT $5,000,000, O KING!
YOU'RE "THE CATS" IF YOU CAN DO THAT, BOY — COME WITH ME!
THERE HE IS — MAD AS A HORNET, AS YOU SEE!
I'LL TUNE IN ON SOME SNAPPY JAZZ — THAT'LL FETCH HIM!
THERE! WHAT DID I TELL YOU! HE'S CURED!
GOSH!
HERE'S THE REWARD! AND TO FURTHER PROVE MY GRATITUDE I MAKE YOU A PRESENT OF MY FAVORITE WIFE!
THANKS, YOUR MAJESTY, BUT AS FOR YOUR BEAUTIFUL WIFE — I'VE A WIFE AND 14 CHILDREN AT HOME — MANY THANKS JUST THE SAME!
VARLET! I'LL TEACH YOU TO SPURN THE GIFT OF A KING!
— AND AERO, WITH HIS PLANE IS ANCHORED 3 MILES DOWN THE BEACH! GOOD NIGHT!
FEED THE WRETCHED SLAVE TO THE ROYAL CROCODILES!

SAYS HAMON PAID $400,000 IN OKLAHOMA FOR HARDING

Former Partner in Oil Ventures With Late G. O. P. Leader Testifies Latter Said He Gave $25,000 to Pay Hotel Bill for Harding Committee.

"QUIT LOWDEN AT WIFE'S REQUEST"

Declares Hamon Did Not Discuss Oil Lease Plan and Would Not Have Accepted Any Place in the Cabinet.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Jake Hamon, late oil operator and Republican National Committeeman, spent $400,000 to carry Oklahoma for Harding and the Republican ticket in 1920, in addition to the $100,000 which he spent to elect a delegation to the National Convention which would elect him committeeman, and also gave $25,000 to pay off the debt contracted for the Harding convention headquarters in Chicago. That, at least, is what he afterward told his intimate friend, John B. French, the latter testified before the oil investigating committee today. French said he had no knowledge of the matter except what Hamon told him.

By way of comparison, it may be recalled that the amount shown to have been spent for Newberry in the famous Michigan campaign, and which led to Newberry's resignation from the Senate was approximately $200,000. The total vote of Michigan is slightly more than twice as large as that of Oklahoma.

Asked by Senator Walsh how Hamon could spend half a million dollars legitimately for such purposes, French said he understood it was expended for organization purposes. More than 4000 persons were on Hamon's payroll during the campaign, he said.

Further Proof of "Conspiracy."

This testimony was introduced by Walsh as a further step in his effort to prove that the nomination of Harding was part of a conspiracy, which had as its aim the appointment of a Secretary of the Interior who would be complacent toward the leasing of the naval oil reserves. In connection with French's testimony that Hamon said he had spent $500,000, Walsh recalled after today's hearing the statement made on the witness stand by J. E. Dyche, Hamon's campaign manager, that "Jake wasn't the man to spend his own money for other people."

French identified himself as a personal friend of Hamon, as distinguished from a political friend, French being a Democrat. He said they had adjoining rooms at the hotel where Hamon lived for many years, and were on close terms of intimacy and that Hamon often discussed his enterprises with him. When Hamon told him of furnishing $400,000 for the Republican campaign in the State he expressed his astonishment at the amount, he said, and Hamon remarked, "Well, I promised the boys I'd put Harding over in Oklahoma, and I did, but it cost some money."

Wife Cousin of Mrs. Harding.

During the convention, he continued, Hamon wired him to come to Chicago, saying that he was having some difficulty carrying out his plans, but he replied in a telegram saying that he was "a Texas Democrat," and had no intention of taking any part in the affairs of a Republican National Convention.

Although the fact has not been disclosed in the testimony, Mrs. Hamon is a second cousin of Mrs. Harding, and French said it was well known in Oklahoma that Mrs. Hamon was a good friend of Harding's candidacy for the nomination, although Hamon was a declared supporter of Gov. Frank O. Lowden. He said he afterward "kidded" Hamon over the fact that the Oklahoma delegation had voted for Harding on the last two ballots, and chaffed him with having "let Mrs. Hamon put one over on him."

It developed during his testimony that William Miller, former Attorney-General of Ohio, had gone to Oklahoma in the interest
